A Hot Egg Dessert

Beat the yolk of four eggs, mix with them a teaspoon flour, three tablespoons powdered sugar, a very little salt; flavor with extract lemon or any other flavors that may be preferred. Whisk the whites of the six eggs to firm froth; mix them lightly with yolks; pour mixture into a greased pan or dish; bake in quick oven. When well risen and lightly browned on the top it is done; roll out in dish, sift pulverized sugar over and send to table.

Vegetarian Dishes—Spanish Loaf

This calls for one can of spinach, four cups boiled rice, two cups white sauce and one red pepper. Mix sauce with the rice, chopped spinach and pepper. Pour into a loaf and bake twenty minutes.

Scalloped Meat

Two cups of chopped cooked meat (cold), one cup of boiled rice, one cup of tomatoes, butter size of walnut or a cup of nice gravy, salt and pepper to taste, one sweet pepper (chopped). Mix together and put in baking dish; cover the top with breadcrumbs and little dots of butter. Bake forty minutes.

HUMORETTES

Teacher: "What is a cannibal, Tommy?"
Tommy: "Please, teacher, I don't know."
Teacher: "Well, if you ate your father and mother, what would you be?"
Tommy: "An orphan, miss!"

"I hope you'll dance with me tonight, Mr. Jones."
"Oh, rather! I hope you don't think I came here merely for pleasure!"

"Was Maude in a bright red frock at the dance?"
"Some of her, darling, some of her."
"Did you say he doesn't know how to kiss?"
"No, I said he didn't know how to kiss."

"That man cheats," said a golfer as he entered the club-house. "He lost his ball in the rough and played another ball without losing a stroke."
"How do you know he didn't find his ball?" asked a friend.
"Because I've got it in my pocket!"

Here's How

BY E.W. HOWE
"The Sage of Potato Hill"

BE GENTLE, SUPERIOR PEOPLE. LETTERS.

People are needlessly mean to each other. We would all be better off if gentler in our manners. Occasionally a man, must be rough, but as a very general rule gentleness is easier than a fight.

"The real fool is he who does not know himself," said Oscar Wilde. I have always believed everyone knows himself, and lies when he says he does not.

Those old persons who believe they are superior to the plain people, and struggle unsuccessfully for years to prove it, have a very poor opinion of us. Their formula of abuse is always about the same. One of them lately wrote: "Another eager human soul on the threshold longing to find some suitable high work in the world, all unwitting of the fact that ideal strivings are everywhere despised and discouraged." ... Clarence Whistler, a real Art man who could at least paint pictures which sold readily, and afforded him a living, said there never was an artistic period; never an art-loving nation.

I have observed that the more lenient the world is with criminals, the bolder and more impudent criminals become.

In reading I often encounter letters from famous people. They usually are dull, though exploited by the magazines or newspapers in which I see them. Letters have not been marked in my life as a means of imparting wisdom. I find conversation more valuable. A large steady stream of a jewel is frequently encountered. My objection to print is that it is monotonous big talk from persons on parade trying to attract favor by flattering the prejudices of prejudiced persons. It is in conversation one finds real opinions.

Oscar Wilde, most tremendous of critics of plain people, once made an admission I thought surprising. He wrote: "One who is entirely ignorant of the modes of Art in its revelation, or the moods of thought in its progress; of the pomp of the Latin line, or the richer music of the vowelized Greek, of Tuscan sculpture or Elizabethan song, may yet be full of the very sweetest wisdom." Most of the really important things in the world have been accomplished by men who knew nothing of Tuscan sculpture, vowelized Greek or Latin line.

DON'T BE KIDDED!

Says old Bill Der: "I've got a notion to go and jump right in the ocean. Each time it trickles thru my dome that I'm a man without a home!"
