

Local Happenings

Mrs. Glen P. White left Heppner for Portland where she will be employed in the main postoffice in handling the heavy Christmas mail. Before her marriage, Mrs. White was with the postal service for nine years. Rev. Mr. White and their daughter Mary will leave next Monday for Portland to join Mrs. White for the holidays, but will stop off at The Dalles for a short time to visit with his mother and their other daughter, who is taking nurses training at The Dalles hospital.

W. P. Mahoney, vice president of First National bank, returned Saturday night from spending a week in Portland. On the way up, Mr. Mahoney stopped over for a day at The Dalles to make some preliminary arrangements for the January meeting of the Oregon Woolgrowers association, of which he is the president. The program is not yet completed, but should be announced soon.

W. L. Applegate and W. B. Duncan, state dairy and food inspectors, arrived in Heppner Friday to make an inspection of dairies, stores, restaurants, and other places where food products are handled for sale. Applegate, a member of the Roseburg American Legion post, was a guest at the meeting and dinner held during the attendance of state officers.

Bruce Spaulding, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Spaulding former pastor in the local Methodist church, who is now studying at Willamette university, Salem, will be one of the attorneys for the plaintiff in a moot court involving proceedings of attachment and garnishment, at the university on December 19.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rice of Artesian Well farm, were visitors in the city Saturday. They report very fine rains for the wheat belt out that way, the ground was in a very receptive mood, and every bit of the moisture was taken in. Wheat is now coming along in good shape.

Wright Saling is spending the winter in the mountains. He was in town on Monday, and stated that up to that time there had been no snow to speak of, but plenty of rain. He looks for the snow to arrive soon, but is inclined to predict an open winter.

Wm. H. Padberg was in from his Clark's canyon farm on Wednesday and out his way there is an abundance of moisture in the shape of some six inches of very wet snow. The covering is good for the wheat fields, and farmers are now sporting a very broad smile.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Duvall were Clark's canyon folks in the city on Wednesday, spending a few hours here doing Christmas shopping. Mr. Duvall, who is located on the Bengie place, is well pleased with the splendid amount of moisture his section is getting.

Oscar Keithley, pioneer wheat-raiser of Eight Mile, was in Heppner on Wednesday. He thought by noon of that day his section had about 8 inches of wet snow over the wheat fields, and when he left home it was still snowing.

Rev. T. E. Elliott, who is connected with the Retired Preachers fund of the Methodist church, conducted the services at the local Methodist church Sunday, and left for his Portland headquarters by stage on Monday morning.

Maurice Edmundson and Paul Jones returned Tuesday night from Gateway, where they went to get six horses, belonging to Alonzo Edmundson. Rain was encountered most of the way on the return trip.

E. C. Ampsper, telegraph operator, employed at the local station of the Union Pacific, left Heppner Saturday evening for New Orleans, La., where he will spend two months leave visiting his mother.

W. P. Mahoney returned home from Portland Saturday night. He made a stop at The Dalles. He reports arrangements progressing favorably for the Oregon Wool Growers' meeting there.

Dr. A. H. Johnston this week disposed of his hospital property on Baltimore street to Lester Doolittle. Mr. Doolittle and family will move into the residence, making their future home there.

D. B. Stalter will be leaving Heppner the last of this week for Portland, Seaside and Tillamook. While in Portland he will spend some time with his daughter, Elizabeth Van Valkenburg.

Herman Neilson, extensive wheat-raiser of the Rood canyon section, was looking after business in the city on Tuesday. Lots and lots of rain out his way of late.

Mr. and Mrs. William Poulson went to Pendleton Saturday on a business trip. They were accompanied by Mrs. William Driscoll and son James.

Dr. C. W. Barr, local dentist, will leave for Astoria Saturday to visit with his family. He plans to return to Heppner next Thursday.

David and William Hynd and Miss Annie Hynd were visitors in Heppner from Rose Lawn farm in Sand Hollow on Monday.

R. E. Dever, Union Pacific relief operator, has been detailed to the local station, during the absence of E. C. Ampsper.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Neill of Pine City were in Heppner on Monday spending several hours doing Christmas shopping.

Noah Clark of Eight Mile was looking after business in this city on Tuesday.

Mrs. Ralph Jackson, Mrs. Earl Eskelson and Mrs. Hunt, members of the Lexington school board, were in Heppner Wednesday to select an electric range to add to the school's equipment.

S. E. Nolson, C. L. Sweek and Joseph J. Nys drove to Pendleton Monday afternoon to attend to legal business.

Rice McHaley left by train last night for Prairie City to visit with his children over the Christmas holidays.

Legion Auxiliary Aids By Welfare Activities

That much had been done in child and hospital welfare activities was shown by committee reports at the meeting of Heppner unit of the American Legion Auxiliary Tuesday evening at Legion hall. Mrs. A. W. Jones, hospital chairman, sent seven pneumonia jackets to the Veterans' hospital in Portland. Mrs. J. D. Bauman, child welfare chairman, is sending two quilts and five bloomer dresses to the department chairman for distribution.

To add Christmas cheer the unit sent a cash gift of $5 for child welfare and one of $10 to the Veterans' hospital. Mrs. Lydia Jackson, gold star member, presented $5 for welfare work.

Plum pudding and coffee were served as refreshments at the meeting, the table being decorated with a lighted Christmas tree. Hostesses were Mrs. A. M. Phelps and Mrs. W. E. Moore.
