LET'S ALL GET IN ON IT.

DOWN on the coast an attitude seems to prevail that everything ing after sowing is not necessary must give way to the completion of the Roosevelt highway. The atti-tude, while laudable on the part of those who would build up an extremely beautiful part of our mother state, has lamentably crept into the primary gubernatorial campaign

Not content, after an attempt to bring about the expenditure of nearly all available state highway funds on the Roosevelt highway until it is completed, it seems the coast folks hope their purpose may yet be accomplished if they can put a native son at the helm of the state government. Hall was the rage down there when first announced as candidate, but since, the tide has been shifting considerably toward Norblad, who it might be argued has a better chance for election through his present incumbency. and who should be just as solid for the Roosevelt project.

It would be lamentable if the election of a governor should result in one locality "wagging" the whole state. A governor should be bigger than that. But, if the popular political pastime is to be the dragging out of favorite sons to promote local interests, let's all get in on it.

Corbett might be a good man for eastern Oregon to get behind. He at least has sympathetic interests, and would qualify with the slogan of the wide open spaces, "where men are men, and the women are glad of it." Having a competency provided from the resources of Oregon, he is content to live in the state of his birth and maintain business interests at home. That he is from one of the "first families" is much in his favor. He is solid substantial; a big man to whom Oregon could point with pride should be be elected. However, Corbett lives in Portland, and there may be some in eastern Oregon who and O. Coryell made a business trip would look askance at Portland to Heppner Thursday. capitalistic interests in control at toward eastern Oregon.

THE TWELVE SENT FORTH Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Jesus was never a plous recluse Some think of Him as effeminate. Rather, He was always a man's man, rugged physically, energetic at all times and always alert to observe the needs of those about Him. The population of Palestine was much greater in those days. Josephus was careful writer and he declared that there were 204 populous villages and cities in Galilee. We are now in the middle of public ministry and about one year and eight nths have elapsed. Meanwhile this Master Teacher had visited "all the cities and villages." Through the meetings in the synagogues He came into intimate acquaintance with the Jewish leaders and as He went from place to place learned the needs and heart hunger of the masses. The people literally flocked to Him. This was not altogether unselfish, for they were healed of all manner of disease and all manner of sickness."

All these opportunities for observ-ation revealed the need of a friendly leadership. The idea of helpfulness had not developed even as we find it today, and there is still much to learn in Christian benevolence. The parable in which the priest and the levite passed by without rendering any help, indicated the general attitude of that time. Jesus resorted to the familiar, rather than to the commonplace, when He likened the situation to sheep without a shep-herd. The unprotected sheep soon become a prey to any roving thief. personal blief in Him as their Sav-Lord of the harvest, that he send there are at least 400,000,000 child-forth laborers into his harvest." The ren and youth in the world without major question, when it comes to any form of religious instruction.

Early in His ministry the Master discerned that comparatively few of the people would attach themselves to Him. Another method must be worked out and the "WIN ONE" campaign was inaugurated. which is the one method of aggres sive campaign in building up the Kingdom of God on earth that Jesus presented. There were many who could be classed as disciples meaning learners. At one time there is record of as many as seventy be ing sent forth on this "WIN ONE" enterprise. Some plan of organiza tion that was both constructive and permanent must be found. There fore from among the many disciple TWELVE were chosen to be apos ties, and the meaning of that word is "sent forth." These men were selected after a night given over t prayer, as was frequently the custom of their Leader. Commit the names to memory. Peter alway heads the list and Judas, the berayer, concludes it.

Having been called, these me were charged with a definite service in Kingdom-building. They were to be both evangelists nad healers, as well as constant teach ers. These three divisions still hold in any missionary enterprise today -soul winning, schooling and medi-cal missions. Practically all of the benevolent institutions throughout the world are the result of following the principles taught by Jesus Christ and His followers. Jesus made it very clear that the work would be hard and that His ambassadors would suffer many rebuffs, but nothing was to stop them in seeking to win individuals to a The solution was promulgated in the Golden Text: "The harvest in-this life and still greater returns in deed is plenteous, but the laborers the Kingdom above.
