

The "Just a Little Late" Club

When I was a commuter I sometimes went to the station early to watch the other commuters running for the trains.

I came to know many of them by sight.

There were ladies and old men, infrequent visitors to the city, who arrived long before train-time.

There were business men, who arrived one minute ahead.

And—just as the gate was about to open—there would come piling across the station the members of the Just a Little Late Club.

I used to sympathize with them at first, supposing them to be unfortunate who had missed a car or lost their watches.

But after two years of watching I knew different.

The membership of the Just a Little Late Club does not change from day to day. Membership is not a misfortune: it is a habit. And one of the most exasperating habits in the world.

I was lunching with a friend the other day when a "captain of industry" passed us. He began work twenty years ago as an office-boy, and today heads one of the great manufacturing concerns of his city.

"A wonderful fellow," said my friend. "Last year I had a long series of negotiations with him about the formation of a new company. It was necessary for us to meet practically every day for nearly three months. In all that time he was never late but twice, and then only for a few minutes. And each time he sent word to me from his office that he would be late."

J. P. Morgan figured that every hour of his time was worth $1000, and he had no patience with men who were late for appointments, or who, when they came to see him, did not give him his money's worth in exchange for the time they took.

"It is not necessary for me to live," said Pompey, "but it is necessary that I be at a certain point at a certain time."

And Lord Nelson said: "I owe all my success in life to having been a quarter of an hour before time."

I hold up the record of these famous men, in the faint hope that it may do some good.

And yet, the hope is very faint. The habit of unpromptness is very tenacious.

If I am fortunate enough to be inside when the peary gates are closed on the judgment-day, I shall know what to expect.

Five minutes later there will be a terrific battering on the gate. St. Peter may be surprised, but I shall not be.

When the gates swing open again, there they will be—some of the most lovable and exasperating people who ever lived—panting, apologetic, explanatory to the last.

men of means about it and they began giving away radio sets. Out of that has grown the "We Follow Him" club with members all over the United States. Thousands of radios have been given to hospitals, to charitable institutions and to prisoners. All anyone has to do to become a member is to give a radio set to some "shut-in" invalid or prisoner and send his name to Mr. Mills.

GREATNESS

I attended a social gathering a few nights ago at which those present were asked to decide who were the five greatest men and the five greatest women of all time. Several persons offered lists of names and the prize was given to the one who named these:

Greatest men: Buddha, Julius Caesar, St. Paul, Charles Darwin and Karl Marx. Greatest women: Joan of Arc, Queen Elizabeth, Florence Nightingale, Queen Victoria, Susan B. Anthony.

It is an interesting game, and proves nothing. The greatest men and women who ever lived are probably unknown to history. The man who discovered how to make a fire and the woman who first cooked a rabbit over the fire certainly started something which changed the whole world.

Anson Wright, pioneer ranchman of the Hardman section, was looking after business in this city on Saturday.

FOR JOINT REPRESENTATIVE.

I have decided to file as a candidate for reelection as Representative in the Legislature for Umatilla and Morrow counties. If the voters of this district approve of my record in office I will consider it an honor to represent them in the State Legislature again. With the experience gained in two sessions of the Legislature I believe I can do some good work for this district and the State of Oregon.

I have not attempted to make a record in the way of introduction of bills but in consideration of the hundreds of measures presented at each session I have done my best to promote good legislation and to help defeat that which seemed to me to be injurious to the interests of the people of the state.

I was one of the sponsors of the individual income tax bill which will be on the ballot at the coming November election and I worked on the committee which put it in its final form. The Constitutional Amendment which will give the people of Oregon the opportunity at the next general election, to adopt the

ATHEISM

The Russian government's war against religion may prove the spur needed to unite all Christianity into making common cause against the enemies of God. Incredible as it sounds, the armed and disciplined minority which controls Russia has prohibited religious teaching and preaching, is seizing churches and converting them into museums and factories, is killing missionaries and confiscating the property of farmers who support the churches.

There have been many religious wars in history, but always each side has professed the fighting to be in the name of its own God. The organ of this anti-religious movement in Russia is a newspaper published in Moscow called "The Godless One." The avowed purpose is to stamp out all religion and destroy all faith.

Unless Christianity is to confess failure, a greater war than the world has ever seen is inevitable. It will be the war of all Christians against the Godless rulers of Soviet Russia.

DUCKS

A Boston man went hunting in Maine. He shot ninety ducks. The other day he paid $2,700 for them in the United States Court. Thirty dollars a duck. That is the fine imposed by the Federal government for killing eider ducks, for which there is no open season.

Too few hunters are informed of the Federal game laws which protect migratory birds. Before going out with a gun one is required, in most states, to take out a shooting license and to be informed about the state and local game laws. Any state game warden can give full information about the Federal game laws, also. Unless they as well as state laws are enforced there will soon be no game left to hunt.

CARS

There are approximately twenty-seven million families in the United States. There are about twenty-two million automobiles registered in the various states, including trucks, busses and other commercial vehicles. The average of passenger cars is about one car in every one and one-half families.

It will not be long before there will be as many passenger cars as there are families, and a high percentage of all families will own two cars. Little cars weighing only half as much as a Ford and costing a third less will be on the American market this year. More paved roads will tend to multiply cars. We can look forward to the day when nobody will walk except for exercise.

GIVING

Two brothers named Mills started a country weekly newspaper in Sodus, N. Y., about thirty years ago. They got into other enterprises, including electric light and power companies. They sold their power interests recently for several million dollars. But they still own and run the Sodus Record, still live in the little country town where they were born.

G. R. Mills, one of the brothers, decided he wanted to do some good with his money. He gave a radio set to a crippled woman in the village. She got so much pleasure out of it that he gave some more radio sets to shut-ins. He got so much fun out of that that he told other
