

ALPINE.

A heavy rain swept over the Alpine district Wednesday.

Miss Anna Carty, a graduate nurse of St. Vincent's hospital, Portland, is visiting at her home north of Lexington. She will probably remain here for an extended visit.

Dan Doherty, a sheepman of this district, moved a band of sheep from his place in Juniper to the Grant Buchanan ranch on Butter creek early last week, where he has been feeding them during the winter.

Frances McCabe who has been working in Idaho for some time has been visiting friends in this community this week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lindsay attended the sale at the Callahan ranch last Tuesday.

Miss Mae Doherty of Lone Tree attended the farm bureau meeting at Alpine March 1.

Claude Finley was transacting business in Hermiston Saturday.

Irl Clary moved his tractor to the Shaw place last week.

Lawrence Doherty, Bill McDavid and Edmond Hiri were Hermiston visitors Sunday.

The cast for the Alpine high school play, "The Mummy and the Mumps," has been practicing several evenings a week at the school.

A 4-H club meeting was held by the club members of the Lone Tree and Strawberry districts at the Strawberry schoolhouse last Thursday. All members are progressing well.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lindsay and daughter Annie Ree motored to Pendleton Friday where they attended to some business.

Stuart Arnold was transacting business in Lexington on Thursday.

Arthur Schmidt went to Hermiston and Lexington Saturday night.

All is in readiness for the play, "Mummy and the Mumps," to be given by the Alpine student body assisted by several young people of the community. The students have been working hard to make a success of it, practicing every night for the last three weeks. The cast: Irl Clary; Anna Hampton, is very helpful to the real Irl Clary, Rosella Doherty; Maude Mullen, an eastern girl—she has a fear of mumps—Celalitha Lambirth; Dulcie Dumble, rather beautiful but dumb, Ruth Bennett; Agatha Laidlaw, founder of the most exclusive school in New England, Dorothy Doherty; Phoebe Beebe, reporter on the "Daily Deliverance," Margaret McDavid. Time, the present; place, girls' school in Fenella.

The divisional declamation contest for the grades which will be held at the Alpine school on Saturday night, March 22, at 8 p. m., promises to be good. The first and second winners at this event will compete with the other winners of the county at the county contest to be held in Heppner April 5, and the winners there will speak against those from Umatilla and Gilliam counties also in Heppner on April 13.

Grover Sibley and Harold Woodward, accompanied by the Misses Ruth Bennett and Celalitha Lambirth drove to Hermiston and Umatilla on Saturday night.

Several students have been ill lately with severe colds. At present Juanita Nirschei and Bruce Lindsay are absent on that account.

Both Mrs. Bennett and Juanita Nirschei are ill at the Bennett home. Ruth was absent Monday and Tuesday to help at home.

The Alpine school has a new fountain which works beautifully.

THE HISTORY OF SPRINKLING.

History tells the story of sprinkling as a substitute to the original baptism. And that history will be outlined at the morning service at the Church of Christ. Do the thousands of unimmersed know by whose authority they were sprinkled? There seems grave reason for doubt.

The evening service will adjourn to Lone. All who possibly can are urged to drive there for the service which begins at 7:30.

Our Bible school meets at 9:45. Christian Endeavor will meet at 5:30 for a social time and business meeting before the regular meeting.

MILTON W. BOWER, Minister.

ESTRAYED.

From my place in Dry Fork, 4 head of horses: one sorrel horse, branded PS on right stifle; one bay horse, weight 1400 pounds; one gray horse, weight about 1100 pounds; one blue mare with white spots, weight about 1200 pounds. Animals left my place about 5th of February. Suitable reward for information leading to their recovery.

The best time for grafting most fruit trees is about two or three weeks before the buds open, says C. E. Schuster, horticulturist of the Oregon Extension service in Extension Bulletin 384, entitled "Grafting and Budding," which is just off the press and ready for distribution.

Mrs. Pearl Berg, who resides in school district 38, near Lexington, was in Heppner Wednesday, conferring with the school superintendent relative to her son's school attendance.

F. B. Swayze, president of the First National bank of Hermiston, was in Heppner Wednesday transacting business at the sheriff's office.

LEXINGTON SCENE OF GROWERS' MEET

Mr. Shumway said no provision for this had yet been made, but he expected this would be added as a fourth option. It may seem strange, he declared, but the national association did not know of this method of marketing wheat until they started investigations in the northwest. In order to give the association free rein in selling the wheat, and to leave no strings between the farmer and the association after the grain is delivered, a clause is provided in the agreement whereby the farmer gives full and complete title to the association as soon as the grain is delivered. This clause is also necessary that the association be enabled to borrow money on grain in its hands.

When a grower sells his grain he is paid in full by the association. However, if he does not elect to sell at time of delivery he may obtain a loan of 90 per cent of the estimated value of the grain at terminal points at that time. For this section Portland is the terminal point.

The estimated price there at the present time is $1.12 Under this plan the farmer would receive approximately 90 cents per bushel on wheat in Heppner at the present time. Mr. Shumway declared that returns should be received as quickly as is the case at present, though in this district, checks will probably be mailed from Spokane, as it is impracticable for the association to carry the necessary funds to handle all local needs in local banks.

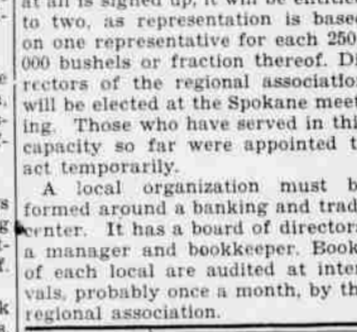

Regional Approval Needed.

Before a local association can be established its by-laws, board of directors and all must be approved by the regional association. In the same way all business of the regional is supervised by the Farmers National Grain corporation, which is responsible in turn to the Federal Farm board. The Federal Farm board is responsible to the president and congress, so the association is really a part of the federal government, and should be just as solid.

Mr. Shumway, on being asked how soon a local could be in position to transact business, said that not more than 10 days should be required from the time of the organization meeting. If a local is to be organized in Morrow county, it was emphasized that it should be done within the next two weeks, in order that the local association might be represented at a meeting of the North Pacific Grain growers in Spokane, Wash., during the first week in April. It is declared imperative that all interested growers sign the grower's contract immediately, and that the signers elect a temporary board of directors for the local association, and complete local association plans. With 250,000 bushels signed up this local is entitled to one representative at the Spokane meeting, and if any more at all is signed up, it will be entitled to two, as representation is based on one representative for each 250,000 bushels or fraction thereof. Directors of the regional association will be elected at the Spokane meeting. Those who have served in this capacity so far were appointed to act temporarily.

A local organization must be formed around a banking and trade center. It has a board of directors, a manager and bookkeeper. Books of each local are audited at intervals, probably once a month, by the regional association.

Douglas Fir Passes Rigid Test at U. of O.

Douglas fir timbers, after 53 years service in Hayden bridge, near Eugene, were found not only to equal new timbers in strength, but were actually stronger, when tested by E. H. McAllister, professor of mechanics at the University of Oregon. Here Prof. McAllister is shown with the machine which is exerting thousands of pounds of pressure down on the fir beam.

University of Oregon, Eugene.—Douglas fir timbers, after 53 years of service, were found not only to equal new timbers in strength, but were actually stronger, it is stated by E. H. McAllister, professor of mechanics at the University of Oregon, who has completed a research investigation on material taken from Hayden Bridge, a structure erected near Eugene in 1874.

The timbers in the bridge were found to be in an excellent state of preservation, and Professor McAllister's conclusion is that Douglas fir can be preserved in sound structural condition for at least half a century by the simple expedient of covering from weather and providing for a free circulation of air.

More than 200 tests, on machines which exert from 30,000 to 200,000 pounds pressure, were made on the old timbers, while for basis of comparison similar tests were made on both green and seasoned pieces of the same size. Although some of the timbers that went into construction of the bridge would not be acceptable as bridge material under modern grading rules, the average strength was found to be in excess of the average strength of new timber in green condition, while in most cases it was well above the average for unused timber that had been air dried for two or three years.
