

THE FIDDLERS

It was at a concert in New York where a celebrated teacher of the violin was exhibiting his pupils. A boy of eighteen stepped on the stage and began to play. A hush fell over the room. His face, his fingers, every move and look proclaimed an ambry artist.

It comes too easy; he will not work.

If you have read much of biography you know that the teacher was right. Nothing is more impressive than the infinite pains which great men have taken, not merely to achieve position, but to keep it.

Emerson tells of a letter from an artist friend describing Michaelangelo's huge mural painting of the Last Judgment, which the friend "had the opportunity of seeing very near, and was astonished at the minute finish of muscles and nerves, finished like a miniature." No detail was too small for the artist whose shoulders were bent by the long effort of finishing his immortal pictures under the dome of St. Peter's.

Booth, the great actor, was never satisfied. One night, after a performance in which he seemed to the audience to have surpassed himself, a friend went to congratulate him.

He "found Booth with his head in his hands in the deepest dejection, from which not even the praise of an old friend could arouse him, disgusted at having given so miserable a performance."

Whether great success is worth what it costs or whether mediocrity is a happier state are debatable questions. But there is no secret about the formula. Eternal work is the difference between the artist—and the fiddler.

POLITICS

Presidential politics always become a topic of conversation in any President's second year. Some people are hinting that Mr. Coolidge would like to run again in 1932. Mr. Coolidge is reported to have said to a friend that there are only two possible candidates for the presidency next time, Herbert Hoover and "some Democrat."

From here it looks certain that it will not be Mr. Smith. It also looks certain that it will not be Governor Ritchie of Maryland. Both are avowed "wets," though there are other reasons given why they will not be serious contenders. Many people are looking carefully at Governor Franklin Roosevelt of New York. Governor Roosevelt is "dry" but has a "wet" party organization back of him. Some suggest Owen D. Young; others think he has too close a connection with power interests. Others are whispering "Keep an eye on Harry Byrd." Byrd is a dry Democrat who has just retired from the Governorship of the dry Commonwealth of Virginia. He is a newspaper man and a brother of Admiral Byrd, the explorer.

REDUCING

We can blame a good deal of the trouble of the wheat growers on the world wide effort to avoid surplus fat, according to Professor James L. Boyle of Cornell University. Bread consumption in the United States has declined 20 per cent, Professor Boyle says, because women—and men, too—are afraid that eating bread will make them fat.

KINGS

up their capture a method of electrocuting the fish has been devised. The harpoon wire carries a wire core connected with a generator on the fishing schooner. Another wire attached to a metal plate is hung overboard and the seawater completes the circuit.

The method is not exactly "sporting," but commercial fishermen are not sportsmen, and the more fish they can catch in a given time the greater their profits.

HEATING

Everybody who has tried to heat a house by electricity knows that it is expensive. But also everybody knows that there is a time between midnight and daybreak when electric power plants are practically idle. In those hours the power companies have surplus power to sell for which they can and usually will make a very low rate.

A New Jersey inventor has devised a way of using this cheap current. A large tank of water in the basement is raised to the boiling point. The tank, being thoroughly insulated, retains the heat through the day and the hot water circulating through the radiators keeps the house warm until the hour for cheap current again arrives, when the "juice" is automatically switched on.

HOME POINTERS

(From School of Home Economics, Oregon State College.)

If lemon pie meringue is cut with a knife dipped in cold water, the meringue will not stick or pull from the slice.

Beets boiled without cutting will not bleed and become tough. When tender, they may be put under cold water until cool enough to handle and the skins rubbed off with the hands.

Scissors are much more satisfactory than a knife for cutting off the fins and tails of fish when cleaning them.

Sweet potato croquettes are often a nice addition to the luncheon menu. To make them add one-half cup of cream to two cups of mashed boiled sweet potatoes. Beat smooth and add one-quarter cup of sugar, an egg, a tablespoonful of butter and a little salt. Roll in egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Paper hand towels are becoming very popular for kitchen use, from a sanitary as well as an economical standpoint.

When lemons become hard, putting them in a pan of hot water kept at the same temperature for about two hours, will soften the lemons and make them juicy once more.

When baking any casserole dish such as macaroni, or potatoes au gratin, a thin layer of bread crumbs sprinkled over the top of the dish makes it look doubly attractive and appetizing.

Charles Mallory Hit By Automobile, Dies

Funeral services for Charles Mallory, 72, early resident of Oregon, who was struck and instantly killed by an automobile at Olympia, Wash., on March 27, were held Tuesday afternoon from the Miller & Tracy chapel. Interment was in the Riverview cemetery, Portland.

Mr. Mallory was born in Sharon, Pa., September 2, 1858. When a small child he came with his parents to Oregon by boat around Cape Horn. He spent most of his life in Marion and Morrow counties. Mr. Mallory was well known by earlier residents of Morrow county. He was a member of Woodmen of the World camp 57, Cascade lodge.

Surviving are five children: Mrs. A. W. Sundsten of Boardman; Lillian Mallory of New York city; Homer A. Mallory of Oakland, Cal.; and Lloyd A. Mallory and Dallas B. Mallory, both of Portland; a sister, Mrs. Belle M. Wright of Union, Or.; a brother William L. Mallory of San Anselmo, Cal., and three grandchildren.

Jerusalem artichokes which have been found valuable in many parts of Oregon are practically always planted in the spring, says the experiment station. Soil preparation is such as to provide a deep, reasonably fine seed bed, similar to that for potatoes.
