GROUND FOR ENCOURAGEMENT.

THE first detailed report of the National Business Survey Conference appointed last fall by President Hoover is encouraging to everybody except chronic pessimists and those who for personal or political reasons would like to make conditions appear worse than they are.

In many lines of industry, Chairman Barnes reports, conditions are actually better than they were a year ago. In the few where they are not so good, the difference between this period of 1930 and the corresponding period of 1929 is very small, and is diminishing.

Credit is getting easier everywhere. A third more long-term bonds have been marketed this winter than last year. Bank rates are steadily declining. Savings bank deposits are increasing in the East.

Life insurance companies wrote 3 percent more business in February than one year earlier, thus justifying the estimate of increased investment reserves in their hands. Building and loan associations report increased deposits. More farm loans are being made, but there is a marked falling off in foreclosures and delinquencies. Instalment sales are up to last year's and payments are being kept up. Public utilities have begun a program of new construction which will run about $400,000,000 more than 1929. Construction work, except in residential building, is much ahead of last year. Road building contracts let in January and February are 82 percent over 1929. New building contracts in the second week in March were the highest in eight weeks, and are expected to increase as more money becomes more freely available. Railroads have orders out for more rails, more locomotives and almost as many new cars as last year, and railroad payrolls for February were higher than in February 1929. The commitments of the railroads call for spending $140,000,000 more in the first six months of this year than in the first half of last year. Electric railways are spending $44,000,000 more for the year. Shipyards are active, employing 28 percent more men in February than in February a year ago and 10 percent more than in November.

Telephone expenditures for the year will run $95,000,000 above 1929. More radio sets were sold since New Year's than a year ago. Electric light and power companies are carrying out their promise to spend $65,000,000 more this year than last. Iron and steel output is increasing. Automobile production is proceeding at rate to build 4,600,000 cars this year, with payrolls in the industry for February 25 percent higher than January and 28 percent above December. Farm implements business is about 5 percent off. Textiles are from four to 17 percent below normal for the season. Book and job printing was two percent greater than last year and newspaper production three percent higher in February.

Those are not generalizations or guesses. They are specific facts. They are something to show to the grumbler who declares that things are getting worse instead of better. As a matter of fact, this country has never before experienced so wide-spread a depression from which recovery began so quickly. It started in the East, and recovery is coming first in the East, but the reestablishment of the high level of industrial and commercial activity and general prosperity which we were enjoying a year ago is bound to overtake the wave of depression everywhere before the summer is over, unless all signs fail.

MAKE IT A REAL CLEAN-UP.

LIKE the small boy with the dirty face, some property-owners need to be admonished unrelentingly for their negligence before action is taken to clean up their premises. So again this year attention is called to the annual city clean-up day, proclaimed by Mayor McCarty as Monday, April 21, and the whole-hearted cooperation of everyone is asked that the city's appearance may be truly benefited by the day's observance.

Not alone from civic pride should all householders put their places in order. There is an old saying that a man may be judged by the way he keeps his house in order; and that an untidy exterior appearance is an indication of a disordered mind. How much truth this contains, each may judge. But, if what some women say about the way other women keep house could be heard by those other women, doubtless they would alter their methods of housekeeping. There is, then, the personal equation to be considered, and he who tidies up his yard for the world to see will undoubtedly gain in the respect of his neighbors.

The chore will not be so trying if one will keep in mind that he is really doing his bit of service in making a city beautiful. Let's sack up last winter's collection of tin cans, garbage and rubbish and have it at the curb in readiness to be hauled away by the city trucks April 21.

Farm Pointers

Horses, more than any other farm animals, are sensitive to abrupt changes in feeding and in exercise. Polination by agencies such as the honey bee are necessary to set a good crop of many kinds of fruit, says the Oregon Experiment station. It is recommended that the bees be moved into the orchard before the blooming period begins. One colony for each acre of mature trees is necessary to insure full polinization.

There is only one way to be sure potato seed is certified—and that is when a blue tag is sealed to the sack with a lead seal, put there by a representative of Oregon State college.

About 70,000 enumerators started April 2 on the work of taking the farm census, in conjunction with the population census.

The use of large amounts of roughage is not only wasteful but detrimental to the horses, says the Oregon Experiment station.

Feeding experiments carried on by the dairy department at Oregon State college indicate that the feeding value of kale is nearly as great as that of average corn silage, when fed in the usual quantities. The kale is lower in nutrients, but this seems to be offset by its greater succulence, palatability and vitamin content.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for April 13
THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM
Matthew 18:1-6, 12-14; 19:13-15.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Children had their place in inaugurating the first Palm Sunday when Jesus went in triumph from Bethany to Jerusalem. At first they are not mentioned but they certainly were everywhere in the crowd that thronged the route. Then we find them singing praises in the Temple and Jesus was heartened thereby.

It was about eight months earlier when the disciples asked the question that is part of this lesson study. Read both Matthew 18 and 19 for all the related facts. Much has been said recently about the Kingdom of Heaven that was in process of formation. Even the disciples had mistaken ideas about this and were discussing the relative fitness within the group for high places in the new reign. On a secret ballot there might have been one vote for each as prime minister. It was not in any sense of modesty that the Master was asked "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?"

It appears at first as if Jesus had not heard for He is looking about for a child. When attention is attracted He beckons the little one to come up close. While nothing is said on the subject it is safe to conclude that no one in all Nazareth was as popular with the children as was Jesus. Children always know whom they can trust. They were never afraid of that kindly look and inviting voice. They must have thronged Him, and especially when He was ready to tell them one of His stories.

A child helps in the acted parable as the Teacher tells them that they must become converted and be as little children if they would qualify for this kingdom of God. Some of the childlike qualities that all must cultivate are to be teachable, trustful, venturesome, obedient, loving and truthful. When these characteristics are rightly developed there is wondrous possibility of growth into well-rounded manhood and usefulness.

Special emphasis is placed upon making it easy for children to grow into their full possibilities. Punishment is pronounced against any who place stumbling blocks in the way of the children. The mill stone referred to is so big that it cannot be turned by hand and an ass is required to do the grinding. When such a stone is tied to the neck there is no possibility of anything but death when cast into the deep water.

Even one child in any hundred is important. The story of the lost sheep is positive in showing to what lengths all ought to go in caring for the life and upbringing of any little one. As society improves laws are passed that protect our children. Herein is a great test of religion and civilization.

It was some months later, as Jesus was ministering in Peraea that children are again championed. There mothers are bringing their darlings that He might give them His blessing. The disciples, thinking to protect Him and His time, forbid this. Then Jesus presents the world with the precious teaching of our Golden Text: "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for to such belongeth the kingdom of heaven." Give some attention to art and study the many great pictures that deal with Jesus and the little ones. For example, there is "Christ and the Children," by Ploekhurst. A copy of this should be in the children's department of every Sunday school in the world. A copy can be bought for a few cents as well as dollars.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

When a reader finds something in his newspaper about hormones and vitamins and calories and food-nutrients, and so on, I advise him to read it, if its author is known as reputable. I believe in one learning everything he can about the care of the body and the maintenance of health. But I prefer to talk about the common every-day things, believing that I shall be the better understood by a greater number of my people.

I recall a friend of mine who became a faddist; he was sure that a people dressed too heavily in cold weather; he was absolutely certain that warm, comfortable clothing shortened life—and that folks "dug their graves with their teeth," and he himself went to the other extreme with even worse results to himself.

He ate only two meals a day—a light breakfast, and a very heavy "dinner" any time between four and six o'clock p. m.; he went without an overcoat in the worst temperatures; wore no vest; believed in all-the-year-around suitings. He also believed that, with proper "physical culture" a man needn't ever be sick.

He took strenuous "exercises" and plenty of cold baths, and, up to a certain point, he seemed in wonderful vigor and endurance. He was about sixty-two years old; had retired from active duty.

He had quite a bit of hardening of the arteries, and was spare build. His blood-pressure was slightly above normal for a man of his age, and my modest warnings he took as just so many words wasted, even though he regarded me as a very good physician, one of the few in whom he had confidence.

I was shocked at his sudden death in Lincoln, Nebraska, some time ago; a "stroke" of paralysis cut him down. Here was a man who, with rational care of himself, might have been alive and well as I am—today. There is no argument in favor of the faddist, nor against right living. Our bodies must be kept comfortable at all times, especially those of fifty years and beyond.

HUMORETTES

Friend: How many men work in your office nowadays, Mr. Fracture?
Mr. Fracture: Oh, about half of them.

"So you were held up and robbed last night after bragging that you could lick any man on earth hands down."
"But he didn't give me a chance. He made me put 'em up."

"Look here," said a man to the foreman builder, "can you give me a definite date on which this house will be completed? You see—I'm getting married when it is ready for occupancy."
"Right," the foreman replied. "You leave it to me. I'll see the job's spun out as long as possible."
