Boys of Four Western States to Compete for Diamond Honors At State Convention.

Baker, Ore., May 21.—On the first day of the 1930 department convention of the American Legion, which will be held in Baker August 14, 15 and 16, four baseball teams representing the cream of the boyhood of the states of Montana, Washington, Idaho and Oregon will respond to the umpire's call of "play ball" and go out on a beautifully prepared diamond to battle for the coveted championship of the western semifinals.

No other feature of the convention is attracting more attention than this regional tournament, the Baker convention commission states.

In addition to the baseball tournament many other spectacular features will be presented during the three days, including a drama in fire, depicting the "Days of '49." Along with the bombs and rockets the visitor will see the huge set

pieces showing in brilliant colors, the "Home in the West," The Covered Wagon, The Discovery of Gold, The Western Mother, The Pony Express, The Indian Attack, and others. During the entire drama, the story, historically accurate, will be broadcast through a system of loud speakers to every corner of the field.

Other major features of the convention are drum corps competition, inter-post relay, distinguished guests program, aerial circus, night and day parades, dances, stunts and a thousand and one impromptu entertainments.

Around the entire program will be thrown an atmosphere of the Gold Rush, those romantic days of '49. All of Baker, it is said, will enter into the spirit of the occasion making the convention outstanding in the annals of Legion history.
