BOARDMAN

MRS. A. T. HEREIM, Correspondent Miss Erma Broyles left Tuesday for an unlimited stay at Rock Springs, Wyo. She stopped at La Grande for a short visit with her sister Ethel. Mrs. Lottie Attebury was pleased to have her daughter, Mrs. A. C. Nottingham and family of Port-land with her for the week end. They came up on Memorial day and remained over Sunday.

The Home Economics club met Wednesday with Mrs. Chas. Wicklander. A splendid luncheon was partaken of and later a social hour was enjoyed followed by a business meeting. The matter of the approaching North Morrow County fair was discussed at length and other business transacted

Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Kroon of La Grande were overnight guests at the Lee Mead home Thursday. On Friday they went on to The Dalles to visit other relatives. Helen Mead accompanied them.

On Tuesday, June 10, a children's clinic will be held at the school at 9 a. m. This will be for children from six months to two years of age and for all those children who enter school this fall, and for children of any other age whose parents wish an examination. This clinic will be free of charge and it is hoped that parents will bring their children for examination. The children will be weighed, measured, teeth, throats examined, etc. If necessary Miss Stallard will return at intervals of two weeks during the summer to give further assistance to mothers. The health work in the county is a very fine thing and parents should give Miss Stallard cooperation in every way possible.

The time again draws near for the election of school director. Chas. Dillon is the retiring director. There are no burning issues this year, so not a great deal of interest has been shown. It is likely that Mr. Dillon will be reelected without much opposition. He understands the stringent financial condition of the district and the various problems which the directors must meet Paul Smith, Leslie Packard, F. A. Fortier and Jack Gorham are others who have been mentioned as possible candidates for the thankless position. Mrs. Lee ...ead will no opposition as clerk, having filled that place very capably the

This section was visited by a fine rain on Memorial day, which was not much appreciated by the farm-ers who had their hay down. The usual wind followed on Saturday.

Memorial day was not observed here except by those who had loved ones sleeping in "The City of the Dead." Practically every grave was decorated. The cemetery looks far different now than it did eight years ago when Arvie Hango was buried there. It was then a desert waste but at present it has trees planted, it is fenced, some of the lots have grass planted and growing, and a windmill provides water. The Ol-sons and Roots have worked unceasingly there to improve the appearance of the place and it has been a constant struggle against many odds. Last summer the water in the small reservoir became too warm and burned the vegeta-tion; the hot winds in the summer force them to make many trips to the cemetery to irrigate that their labor may not be all in vain. Then, too, there is the constant handicap of insufficient funds. Those buried in the cemetery are Arvie, Wayne and Teddy Hango, Ezra Hopkins, Mr. Kelly, Charles Attebury, Clifford Olson, Mrs. Lulu Wicklander, Mrs. Clarence Berger, Mrs. W. A. Price, Pearl Nickerson, Richard Jessie Bennet, Mrs. Nettie Hill, Mrs. Emma Sherman, W. A. Goodwin, Mrs. Alice Dingmon, Ruby Wilson, the tiny Cooney baby and a wee babe born to Mr. and Mrs. George Gross. The Farleys and Mike Healeys for repairs and a wait of a few days before the wheel came. Gladys Wilson who attends nor-mal school at La Grande, had her tonsils removed this week and is getting along nicely.

Blanche and Ona Imus were week end guests at the O. B. Olson home. Blanche, who is teaching near Kennewick, came down for Memorial day, bringing flowers for the grave of her betrothed, the late Clifford Olson, who was killed two years ago this June. She left Sunday to compiete her school work. Ona will remain here for the summer and

Ralph Davis, a former Boardman resident, had a rather exciting experience recently at his home in Portland when he received a threatening letter from a woman demand-ing that a certain sum of money be paid her. He reported the mat-ter to the police who found it the work of a woman mentally unbal-anced, and a case of mistaken identity, she thinking it was a Dr. Davis whom she was writing. The woman carrying Travelers Cheques is not alone even though she may be traveling in far off Siam. American Express couriers meet her at piers and frontier points and await her at trains; interpreters assist her through the customs; she uses the numerous American Express offices as her mail addresses; their efficient travel men plan her trips and arrange for her accommodations at the better hotels; in a word, her journey is everywhere made more pleasant

As a thoughtful gesture to women who travel, the American Express has reduced its Travelers Cheques to the size of the new U. S. Currency, so that a com-pact, trim wallet of Cheques takes up but little storage space in the interior of the fashionably small handbag.
