W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter. The wets who preach modification on one hand and no return of the saloon on the other, thus trying to begot the issue, are having a hard time of it. They evidently discount the intelligence of the American people. Lincoln is sometimes credited with the saying, "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and you can fool all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." And the wets are finding that the part of the people they can fool all of the time is becoming smaller and smaller. Some of the wets loudly proclaim that the solution of the liquor question is in permitting the manufacture of beer containing 2.75 per cent of alcohol. They claim that such beer is in fact not intoxicating, hence it is entirely within the power of congress to modify the Volstead act so as to permit the manufacture of such beer without violating the 18th amendment, since the amendment is aimed at intoxicating liquors. But, you will note that they always speak of 2.75 per cent of alcohol by weight. The alcoholic content of such beer is almost 3.50 per cent by volume. It is estimated that three fourths to four fifths of the beer sold in the days of the licensed saloon contained only 3.50 per cent of alcohol by volume. And everybody who can remember those days knows that men became intoxicated upon that kind of beer. If congress should modify the law so as to allow beer containing 2.75 per cent of alcohol by weight, it would necessarily need to declare such beer non-intoxicating. If a liquor were declared non-intoxicating, there could be no regulation of its sale. It could be sold anywhere to anybody. Men, women, and children could buy it just as they now buy a soda at the soft drink parlor. We would then have all the evils of the old beer saloon less the regulation, such as it was in the days of the licensed saloon. It is well to remember, also, that it was not the temperance "fanatics" who originated the idea that liquor containing one half of one per cent of alcohol by volume is intoxicating. That standard was written into the law at the request, or demand, of the brewers in the good old days. They were willing to pay a tax, provided that all drinks which contained any appreciable quantity of alcohol were subject to the tax. They arrived at the dividing line between intoxicating liquor and non-intoxicating liquor at one half of one per cent by volume. So, when you hear a wet railing around about the absurdity of "one half of one per cent," just remind him that it was his crowd that fixed that standard. "O, consistency, thou art a jewel," but you are not found in the wet camp.

SOME DIDN'T GO—

(Continued from First Page) precautions, evidenced by the total absence of wrecks and by the sight of cars coming to complete stops where danger of collision was imminent. Only one arrest was made by the traffic officer on the job. No fatalities were reported from any cause. There were a few burnt fingers from the untimely explosion of firecrackers, and a few burnt shins as the result of mischievously inclined youngsters throwing crackers beneath unsuspecting victims, mostly girls. A more severe pastime was that of handing lighted crackers about. What might have seemed disrespectful to those who took part in the well intentioned program, can better be accounted for by the answer of some youths who were asked to "cease firing." "Well, this is the Fourth of July, ain't it?" "Whatcha sellin' 'em for if you don't want us to shoot 'em?" The afternoon was one continuous pop, and the efforts of band or speaker were almost useless. Ticked were the youngsters whose prowess won them money in the sport events. But probably no less so were the mothers and grandmothers of some of them who proved especially adept at pumping tires, driving nails or chasing balloons and who were rewarded with articles of merchandise. It is certain the kiddies entered into the sport with no greater zest. Probably no community in the county was without representation, and numerous out-of-state licensees on cars denoted many visitors from the outside. Both forks of the creek above the celebration grounds were dotted with picnic luncheon parties at noon.

WHERE DO YOU SWIM?

Swimming is unquestionably one of the most delightful and healthful of exercises and should be encouraged in every way. It not only provides a very enjoyable form of recreation but it might, and often does, prove of very practical use. Where to swim should be given careful consideration. The Willamette river below Cottage Grove for the greater part is polluted and swimming is not safe from a health standpoint. There are hundreds of rivers and lakes throughout the state, some near by and some far away, which are frequented by swimmers or bathers. The water in many of these is relatively safe, in others it is not. Short of having a test of the water at the point in which you expect to swim and at a time when this body of water and its surrounding cottages and buildings are being used, there is no way of knowing definitely the purity of the water but there are a number of points of observation which will be helpful in determining the probable safety of a swimming place. 1. Always remember that a water is not safe to swim in unless it is safe to drink. 2. Don't place confidence in the appearance of the water. A water may look perfectly clear and still be grossly polluted. 3. Pay particular attention to the location of the lake or stream and its drainage. What are the possibilities of pollution from cottages? Are there streams running into the body of water in which you intend to swim, and if so do they contain water of known purity or may they be polluted by drainage from the territory through which they run? In addition to having safe water the swimmer should safeguard himself with respect to a number of other points.

Pick-Up Ball Tossers Lose to Condon, 18-5

With but nine men in uniform, forming an aggregation the members of which had never been together before—in other words a pick-up team—made necessary because of the absence of many regulars at various celebration points, Heppner put up a bold face but suffered a severe trouncing at Condon Sunday afternoon. The score was probably 18-5, but this is not given as authentic as the absence of the official tally books made it necessary for the score to be kept on a rough piece of cardboard. The game lasted only seven innings as the stands became weary of this type of entertainment, and exhibited a desire to witness the wild horse bucking, scheduled as a part of the celebration program for the day. Pitcher Aune, though working nicely, was somewhat overworked for lack of support, and Bobby Turner, shortstop, went into the box in the seventh. Fred Hoskins went in to receive him, having been on first, and together they held the Condon boys nicely. With the exception of Aune and Turner, all the positions were occupied by strange faces. There were the two Palmer boys from Lexington, one of whom caught and the other played left field. Manager Ferguson was on second, "Doc" Shearer on third, Jap Crawford in right, and "Red" Doe—his proper name was not learned—in the middle pasture. Condon's regular bunch was intact with the addition of Pete and Bud Flisk who are more familiar to fans in the Arlington uniform. "Kewpie" Clow was in the box for them.

THE WATER COMES

timber and the main to bring the waters to town completed through the people assuming a heavy indebtedness. But the water brought relief—it was much better. Time waned and Nature proved not always provident. A series of dry seasons; springs feeding the creek ceased to flow. Reservoir facilities were inadequate to provide during these times. Then there were the autumn and spring freshets which filled the water with silt, making it unpalatable. Additional reservoir space was provided. But still there remained the creek farmers who desired the water for irrigation and who must be given consideration; and the silt also remained.

What to do? More water must be had. To get more surface water a dam must be built. That would be very expensive, and the silt must yet be taken from the water. A filtration plant would be a large item of expense to build and maintain.

It was a grim lot of councilmen who with the mayor two years ago decided to drill a well, with a prayer in their hearts that the suggestion of someone who thought an artesian flow possible, might be shared by the city's entire populace—when news reached town the afternoon of Tuesday, April 22, that artesian water had been struck. Flowing 700,000 gallons every 24 hours, the water has been proved pure, and the quantity found more than sufficient to supply the city.

Though the distributing system is not yet perfect, and the water may bring more troubles in the future, Heppner nevertheless rejoices in the improvement of her water supply.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Mahoney returned the first of the week from a visit at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, former home of the family.
