KEEP SWIMMING POOL FILLED

WHAT a lot of joy, not to say comfort, is being experienced these hot days by all those who patronize the Legion swimming pool in Heppner. When it so happens that water to fill the tank is not available for a day when it is necessary that the pool be cleaned and fresh water put in, then it is that we are made to realize just how greatly the community appreciates this place of recreation. Then, too, we begin to hear the complaint go up of why there is a lack of water available to keep the tank filled these hot days so that there be no need of laying off for a day while the water system of the city can be manipulated as to get the supply at the pool replenished.

Since the new water supply for the city has been provided it seems hard to make the people of the community understand that the present system of mains leading to town and used in distribution, is not sufficient to carry the additional supply, and that these are in such condition that they will not hold up under the pressure that would result if the full force from the well was turned in. It will take time for the city to get these difficulties in the distribution supply out of the way. It is also necessary at this season of the year to have some reserve in the city reservoirs because of the extreme fire hazard, and we should not be too hasty in condemnation of the city water department when we do not have all the water for every purpose that we feel we should have. It is up to us to be somewhat more considerate in this respect and show a better spirit of cooperation. For our part, we are so happy over what has already been accomplished in getting a pure, clean water supply, we do not feel disposed to make a howl because we cannot have an ocean of it right at the back door.

However, we are assured that there will be plenty of water for the swimming pool provided there is better cooperation on the part of the water users of the city. The authorities feel that by the judicious use of water for irrigation there will be no lack to keep the lawns and gardens coming along in good shape, and obedience to requests to cease irrigation for two periods a week will give the supply for the pool. For the sake of the youngsters of the community the swimming tank should have this supply and be kept open during the heated spell. Let's lend a hand and do our part in cooperation with the city water department.

MURDER.

TEN persons out of every 100,000 are victims of murderers every year in the United States. That is an appalling record. Nothing like that number of murders occurs in any other civilized country. But that fact, published everywhere, gives our own people as well as forsigners an incorrect impression of the life of the United States and in the cities which may be called "murder centers." Think it over for a minute. How many people do you know who have had any contact of any kind with murder? How many people in this community have been murdered, in recent years?

We all know that the life of every law-abiding citizen, going about his or her business and not seeking trouble, is as safe in our midst as it is anywhere in the world. Gunmen do not prowl around our streets and byways looking for victims. Women are not afraid to go to the stores for fear of being shot down by stray bullets or intentionally. Yet the picture of life in the United States as Europe sees it would have all of us in constant danger of being killed by some irresponsible murderer.

Even in Chicago, from which we hear more news of murders and murderers than from any other place in America, conditions are not at all like that. Americans unfamiliar with the ways of big cities hesitate to go to Chicago for fear of being killed. Chicago newspapers report that travelers with several hours between trains frequently do not dare to leave the railroad station to look around the beautiful city, because they have heard so much about Chicago gunmen. The International Rotary Clubs recently felt impelled to send out word to its members everywhere in the world, assuring them that they would not be killed if they came to a convention in Chicago!

The plain fact of the matter is that in almost every case of murder the victim is either a criminal, an associate of criminals, or engaged in some reckless undertaking which exposes him unnecessarily to attack. Leaving out the people who have invited murder by their own acts, and officers of the law taking the necessary risks of their occupation, our proportion of murders to population even in Chicago is probably as low as in England or France.

That does not dispose, however, of the fact that there has developed in America a criminal element which is almost defiant in its attitude toward the authorities of the law. These men do not fear the law, because they have found so many ways of evading the punishment which is due them for their crimes. The basic trouble is with our courts and with the public sentiment which permits travesties on justice to go unheeded and unchecked.

MOTERING PESTS.

EVERYBODY who has done any considerable amount of travel by automobile has run into the two commonest pests which annoy the motorist.

One is the "hitch-hiker," using the term broadly to cover any stranger who tries to halt your car and asks for a "lift." The other is the beggar who tries to sell you something worthless when your car is held up in line awaiting the clearance of traffic in the other direction where the road is under repair.

Several states have recently legislated against both of these pests. New York imposes a penalty of fine and imprisonment on anybody asking a passing motorist for a ride. Massachusetts imposes a $50 fine for offering goods for sale to stalled tourists.

MOSES—A COURAGEOUS LEADER. Exodus 3:1-12.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Many regard Moses as the greatest character in the Old Testament, even as they accord that distinction to Paul in the New Testament. Selected portions to introduce us to the life of Moses are: Exodus 1:8-14; 2:1-22; 3:1-14; 11:1-10; 12:30-35; 12:29. Those who will do more intensive study should read, or at least scan, all of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. The life of Moses covers one hundred and twenty years, divided into three periods of forty years each. The date is about as far B. C. (1498) as the discovery of America by Columbus is A. D. (1492). Those who visit Rome are fascinated by the great statue of Moses, carved by Michel Angelo, which is found in the Church of St. Peter in Chains.

The charm of an innocent baby has appealed to many a kindly heart. It was just that way when the Egyptians sought to perpetrate their own form of race suicide on the new born babes of the rapidly growing Hebrews, who at that time were abject slaves in the land to which they had been invited in the time of Joseph, the prime minister. A family council in the home of Amram and Jochebed resulted in making a floating basket in which baby Moses was placed on the river Nile. A servant of the princess discovered the wee one and baby nature did the rest. It remained for sister Miriam to suggest that one of the Hebrew women would make a good nurse and the mother was called to this high office. During forty years Moses was trained as Hebrew by the mother and in all worldly wisdom by the wise men of the realm. Sense of fair play was developed in this young man and challenge was offered when wrong was done from them, and frequently become profane and abusive when the motorist refuses to come across, are just a plain unmitigated nuisance, and should be subject to the vagrancy laws without the necessity of special legislation. We are too soft in dealing with minor crimes and misdemeanors, in most parts of the United States. We are too inclined to be sympathetic with the man who makes a pretense of trying to earn money, even though we know that it is only a pretense. Every once in a while the police in the big cities discover that some corner beggar has accumulated a fortune and is better able to ride in his own car and live in luxury than most of those who drop their pennies and nickels into his hat.

So long as human nature is what it is, however, we suppose there will be a fair quota of people trying—and often succeeding—to get money without working for it.

That an average of better than 200 people a day made use of the facilities of the Legion Plunge last week speaks well for the popularity of this community recreation feature. Many of these came from out-of-town points and it is expected that an advertising campaign now under way will bring many more to the city. Doing without irrigation water for two periods a week would seem a small price to pay for the valuable instruction and pleasure the swimming pool affords.

Free Red Cross swimming instruction for two months at the Legion Plunge—something unusual for a town no larger than Heppner situated in the midst of a semi-arid farming district. Why not put on a suit and take advantage of the opportunity to learn to swim right.

Why not clean up the dry grass on that vacant lot at alley adjacent to your property. Big fires from little dry grass plots grow.

Can you believe it possible that the thermometer dropped to 18 below last winter?

ALPINE.

Willard Hawley and Gene Senter were dinner guests at the Clary home Sunday. Afterwards Mr. Hawley drove to Pendleton with Mr. and Mrs. Irl Clary and children and the Misses Eleanor and Mattie Conroy, where the latter took the evening stage for Spokane.

A. G. Barham was in Lexington transacting business Monday. Alpine experienced some of the hottest weather of the year during the latter part of last week. Mrs. Elizabeth Jones and Mrs. Pearl Lambirth and daughter Doris drove to Heppner Friday where they were looking after business interests.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter.

The wets constantly assert that the bootlegger, the blind pig and the speakeasy are the product of prohibition. The following is taken from an editorial in the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Leader of November 15, 1900, nearly twenty years before prohibition was written into the Constitution:

"At the meeting of the retail liquor dealers yesterday the statement was made that there are in Allegheny county 2,300 unlicensed dealers who sell liquor, in violation of the law, every day in the year, Sundays and election day included. This is a decidedly startling assertion, for while it is notorious that speakeasies exist and are to some extent tolerated by the authorities, there has been no visible reason to suppose that illicit traffic was conducted on so large a scale. The district attorney and the public safety directors of the city ought to be heard from on this head. If the law is being violated so extensively as the licensed dealers claim, it is manifest that there must be a wholesale neglect of duty in official quarters."

The official records showed that in 1900 there were 1074 licensed liquor dealers in Allegheny county, Pa., and, if the liquor dealers were right in their statement that there were 2,300 unlicensed liquor dealers, there was then a total of 3377 dealers in the county. The population of Allegheny county was then 775,058. The speakeasies, blind pigs and bootleggers outnumbered the licensed saloons more than two to one.

In an interview with Richard Patterson, a former member of the Pennsylvania legislature and at the time, March 12, 1896, president of the State Liquor League of that state, the Pittsburgh Leader quotes him as saying:

"My investigation disclosed the fact that about 1,900 speakeasies flourish in Wilkesbarre and vicinity, 200 in Bethlehem and South Bethlehem, and 66 in Carbondale. In Scranton the licensed saloons keep open on Sunday, unlicensed by the authorities, but despite this fact there are from 750 to 1,000 unlicensed bars or tap rooms in the city. There are 15,000 speakeasies in Pennsylvania, and about 20 per cent of them would pay for licenses if the charges were more moderate."

"I wish you would help me with this sum, Dad," said a small boy struggling with his home work. "Can't, son," said Dad from behind his paper; "it wouldn't be right."

"I don't suppose it would," said the boy, "but you might have tried."

Squire Perkins: "Well, after I die, I wish you would marry Deacon Brown."

Nell: "Why so, Hiram?"

Squire: "Well, the deacon trimmed me on a horse trade once."
