The East Oregonian editor evidently failed to note that Mr. Legge and Nils Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics. U. S. department of agriculture, both emphasized the fact that they were dealing with the fu-ture of the wheat industry in the United States from a long-time viewpoint. They came not as docrs offering a panacea for present lls, but as diagnosticians looking for the seat of the trouble that the patient's diet might be regulated with a view to prolonging his life. In fixing a premise for some sort of bonus plan which he believes the government should adopt in order that the home market might be benefitted through dumping the surplus abroad, and in which he declares Great Britain to be one of the largest purchasers of U. S. ex-ported wheat, the E. O. editor says, Would it be good business or good politics in England to take action that would increase prices in a conuming nation?"
