

Governors and President Confer on Drought Relief

The chief executives of twelve states and of the United States confer in Washington on measures to aid farmers who have been ruined by the long-continued drought. In the picture besides Mr. Hoover are Governors of California, Missouri, Illinois, Leslie of Indiana, Cooper of Ohio, Conley of West Virginia, Pollard of Virginia, Erickson of Montana, Weaver of Nebraska, Hammill of Iowa, Reed of Kansas, and representatives of the governors of Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, as well as the Secretary of Agriculture and the Chairman of the Federal Farm Board.

the wine industry of France, so says the wet league of France. The wine-growers of Spain take the same stand.

A young man moved recently from Saskatchewan to the state of Washington. After living there for some time, he wrote: "Nearly every town in Canada has a liquor store. I believe that at least eight out of ten men drink and a good share of the women. There was a lake and a dancing resort near our town, and on Saturday nights a large proportion of the young people attending these dances got drunk, boys and girls alike. From what I have seen of the people here in Washington in the past six weeks, I do not believe that one in twenty drinks at all, or if he does he does not show the effects of it as I am accustomed to seeing the effects in Canada. Conditions as I see them in the two communities are all in favor of prohibition from every standpoint." An American officer who was on an excursion boat in Canada three years ago this summer, on which there were about 1200 excursionists, nearly all Canadians, makes this statement: "I saw more drunk boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 20 on that boat that night than I ever saw in the United States, including the old saloon days." Government control in Canada has not solved the liquor problem, and it never will.

Local Happenings

Chas. Marquardt states that a number of his neighbors have begun the work of fall seeding in the north Lexington section, and he expects that it will become general by the 15th of the month. Summer-fallow is in very fine shape over most of the county, though a big rain at this time to bring the weeds up would be appreciated. Mr. Marquardt was doing business here on Tuesday.

Robert M. Lower who has been spending the summer at the home of his cousin, Rev. B. Stanley Moore in this city, departed the past week on his return journey to his home in Philadelphia. En route he will visit Glacier National park and then cross the Great Lakes to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Mr. Lower regained much in health while taking in the eastern Oregon sunshine.

E. L. Cherry and son Howard were visitors here on Tuesday afternoon from Hermiston. Mr. Cherry has been chosen principal of Gilliam county high school at Condon and will begin his work there on the 15th. He was superintendent at Hermiston for a number of years.

W. B. Barratt departed for his home at Portland on Friday. He had come to Heppner to stay for a while and assist his son, Garnet with the fall work, but getting an attack of hay fever and asthma, was compelled to get out of the dry and dusty conditions of eastern Oregon.

John Taylor Doherty was brought to town on Friday suffering a broken leg which he sustained while at work at the ranch of Paul Hiler on Butter creek. He fell from the top of a hay stack and the leg was broken at the ankle. His injuries were attended to by a local physician.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wardwell of Walla Walla were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Allstott on Rhea creek. Mr. Wardwell is a brother of Mrs. Allstott and is foreman of the big orchards of the Baker-Lagdon company at Walla Walla.

Glenn Young and wife, who for the past year have been making their home at Salem, have moved to Heppner to reside. Mr. Young will represent the New York Life Insurance company as local agent in Morrow county.

Bert Johnson and Warren Stender were lone wheat ranchers in Heppner on Saturday. Mr. Stender, who had been suffering for some time with a lame arm, came up to get some relief at the hands of a physician.

Miss Myrtle Craddock visited with her mother, Mrs. Chas. Furlong, at Eight Mile over the week end. She returned Monday night to her work in Portland.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter. Many people wonder where the money comes from to fight prohibition. Last week, in these notes, it was pointed out that 52 millionaires in the United States contributed over $220,000.00 for this work, but this represents only a small part of the money. In France there is an organization called The French International League of Adversaries of Prohibition. Its chief object is to break down and bring about the repeal of the 18th amendment in the United States, because, as they say, prohibition in this country has played havoc with the French wine industry. The president of the league recently said: "We have 100,000,000 people behind us and untold millions of money, which we will spend in our merciless fight to destroy prohibition in the United States." That tells part of the story. This statement was made by a citizen of a country which, bled white in 1917 reached out its pleading hands and begged us to make haste in sending the cream of our young manhood over there to save France from her enemies, a citizen of the country whose soil was enriched by the blood of America's brave sons who went to fight "that civilization might not perish from the earth." War time prohibition was a fine thing, for it saved food for the hungry armies of the allies and for the starving peasants behind the lines, but peace time prohibition is all wrong because it plays havoc with Gay M. Anderson and family enjoyed a visit Sunday and Monday with O. R. Anderson and wife and Will W. Jacobus of Portland. The party attended the Round-Up at Pendleton and then drove to Heppner. O. R. Anderson is a brother of our county clerk, and though he had an invitation of many years standing to visit Heppner, this is his first trip here, and he was well pleased with this section.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merritt, O. B. Lennox and Earl Mays were at Heppner from their home in Wapato, Wash., spending Labor day vacation at the homes of Henry and Leonard Schwarz. They returned to Wapato late Monday evening.

FOR SALE—Bartlett and De Angelo pears, $1.50 per box, prepaid. Bartlett's ready now. A. E. Anderson, R. 2, The Dalles, Ore. 25-6.

Ray Young and family are over from their home at La Grande for a visit with relatives and to remain until after the Rodeo.

Chas. Valentine, pioneer ranchman of the Lexington section, was looking after business in Heppner on Saturday.

Mrs. F. E. Everson of Ione was shopping in this city on Saturday.

Ex-Heppnerite Displays Old Time Booster Spirit

Joe L. Wilkins is remembered by many in Heppner as the city's leading booster at the time he was host at the old Palace hotel, the hostelry once conducted by Phil Metschan, republican candidate for governor. Mr. Wilkins is now in Samoa, Cal., from where he writes: "I would like to say a few words about our old friend Phil Metschan who has been nominated for governor of Oregon. Phil is a great man and a real friend of eastern Oregon, and I do believe he is the best man in the field, qualified in every way. He will and can do more for eastern Oregon than any other man yet put in the front lines. He will handle the state's business satisfactorily to all its people, treating the poor and rich alike, which is a real he-man's job. Let's go and give our friend a 100 per cent vote in Morrow county and eastern Oregon."

In a postscript Mr. Wilkins adds: "Please remember me to my good old friends and don't forget Dillard French. Have the brick bats been removed from the Palace hotel corner yet? When they are I am coming back to dear old Heppner."

LONG SEARCH FOR HEALTH IS ENDED

"I used to be terribly nervous, and my stomach was so disordered that I couldn't eat anything hardly

MRS. JOHN WALKER without suffering with indigestion. I was so constipated that I'd go for days without elimination, and I was subject to severe bilious attacks. Sargon ended my long search for health. I enjoy my food without a touch of indigestion, my whole system is strengthened and I have more energy and endurance than I've had in years. "Sargon Pills overcame my constipation and biliousness without the least discomfort."—Mrs. John Walker, 905 Gladstone Ave., Portland, Oregon. Patterson & Son, druggists, local agents.—(Adv.)
