Harold Kincaid is attending school at the Oregon Institute of Technology in Portland. He is making his home with his aunt, Mrs. John Lundy, and writes home that he is very much interested in his work.

Mrs. Oliver Kincaid accompanied her son Harold when he went to Portland to enter school. She returned home November 1, after a pleasant visit with relatives in the city.

The district meeting of the Order of Eastern Star was held Thursday, Nov. 6, in Arlington, Jasmine chapter of that place acting as hostess. Other chapters represented were Ruth of Heppner and Locust of Ione. At this time Mrs. Carrie Jackson of Baker, worthy grand matron of Oregon, paid her official visit. The meeting was held in the city hall and the banquet was served at the Methodist church by the ladies of the American Legion auxiliary. During the meeting the worthy grand matron was the recipient of a beautiful gift—a present from the three chapters. Mrs. Zada Ebi of Jasmine chapter made the presentation speech. Members of the Ione chapter who were in attendance were Ruth B. Mason, grand representative of Alberta; Anna Blake, worthy matron; George Ely, worthy patron; Della McCurdy, associate matron; Harlan McCurdy, associate patron; Mrs. A. A. Historic London Seen; Local Girl Tells of Trip

Crown is 306 karats and the whole display is one glittering golden mass.

We saw the change of the guards of the tower, called Beefeaters, and dressed in doublets. They looked as though they might have stepped out of a page from Shakespeare.

Our next stop was St. Paul's cathedral, second largest in the world and very historic. Then on to Westminster Abbey. Shall I disillusion you? Westminster Abbey is as black as a stove pipe. I could hardly believe my eyes. The dense London smoke is responsible, but once inside the exterior is forgotten. The interior of Westminster

Succeeds Morrow

Joshua Reuben Clark, Jr., of Salt Lake City, appointed by President Hoover as U. S. Ambassador to Mexico.

Abbey is beautiful. Here are buried Norman Abbots of 1960 along with Dickens, Tenyson, Shakespeare, Browning, David Livingstone and many others. Two weeks before we arrived six native black men from Africa came to the abbey and paid tribute to David Livingstone by kneeling before his grave in silent prayer for one half hour.

The graves are sunken into the stone floors and engraved slabs mark the places. I didn't feel quite right when I walked over the graves of Dickens, Browning and Tenyson, but it is the custom there and there is no other way to get out.

Then to the houses of parliament, Buckingham palace, Scotland Yard, and the Old Curiosity Shop of Dickens' fame. The quaint building is still a little shop and preserved as it was in Dickens' time. I went in and bought a little wall plaque of the shop.

The Christian Endeavorers of London gave us a "squash" one evening. In America we would call it a joint—a place where many people are crowded together. And there were. But we enjoyed the English hospitality immensely and had a great time.

The next morning out through the charming English countryside toward Warwick where we had luncheon at the Porridge Pot, an inn intimately associated in English history with Queen Elizabeth and Cromwell.

After lunch we walked across the road to Warwick Castle which is said to be the most perfectly preserved castle in the British Isles. The castle is majestic and once inside the lovely grounds and the castle itself seems to drop away and gallant knights in armor pace the halls and in another part Cromwell and his men hold the castle against the foes lodged in Kenilworth castle some miles away.

There is a wonderful collection of old armor here with mounted knights on horseback and a great room filled with shining armor. The guide told us that one outfit of armor did not weigh as much as a modern soldier's equipment. But think how stiff it is, especially on a hot day.

The castle has also a collection of beautiful paintings by Van Dyke and Sir Joshua Reynolds valued into the millions of dollars. Some of the world's most famous paintings are here.

Outside the castle we Oregonians spied some Oregon grape and asked the gardener what he called it. He said barberry, but we insisted that it was Oregon grape; which he denied. We would probably be the guide if it hadn't been that the guide came and took us away. Stratford on Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace, is very interesting. We visited Shakespeare's home which seems very bare and humble. Not much furniture is in evidence but many early editions of his books are kept here in his home. Anne Hathaway's thatched cottage is across the town and some distance beyond Stratford on Avon at Shottery village; so that Shakespeare had quite a way to walk to do his courting. Anne's home is much prettier with some polished furniture and the original bench where Shakespeare courted Anne. There is a lovely garden around the cottage.

Finally the time came to leave London and we proceeded to Harwick and took a steamer across the North Sea for the Hook of Holland. From there we traveled to Amsterdam, passing by rows and rows of greenhouses, Dutch windmills, canals and many lovely gardens. Everything was very wet but luxuriant. At Gonda the school children came to the train at 8 o'clock in the morning to sing to us. The Dutch children are so healthy-looking—very cute and very courteous.

Amsterdam is a city built on millions of wooden piles driven into the mud and water. Its canals are spanned by more than three hundred bridges and when you wish to travel quickly you call a water taxi. Amsterdam is famous for diamonds, docks, canals and great paintings. We took a steamer here over the Zuider Zee to the Isle of Marken and Volendam, land of Dutch fishermen, quaint native costumes and wooden shoes. When we arrived the little children came bumping along in their wooden shoes and begged us to take their pictures. I wanted to pay them with American pennies, but they shook their heads remarking, "No good." The houses are built to the water's edge, but everything is very neat and clean. The women do their washing with paddles in the canals.

Then back to Amsterdam where at the lovely Victoria hotel we were served the first pie we had had since we left home. This was a gracious gesture from the Dutch people to us, as pie seems to be strictly an American "institution." It was a wonderful pie, but only about third cousin to ours. Afterwards, Gerrit J. Diekmann, American ambassador to Holland, welcomed us formally to Holland.

By this time our party had increased to six hundred and we had our private train all through Europe. Our first stop in Germany was Dusseldorf, great industrial city and the principal art center on the Rhine. Dusseldorf has one of the world's largest "solariums" and a special exhibition was given our party to allow us to get acquainted with the moon and stars at close range.

Then on to Cologne which has one of the world's most beautiful cathedrals. It is entirely of Gothic architecture with a wide flung spire that is breath-taking. There is more stained glass, deep and rich looking in its windows, than any other cathedral in the world. One hundred four great pillars of solid stone support the roof. In here are also some of the most famous of Flemish paintings, which differ from the usual paintings in that they are done on a gold background and very vivid colors are used.

From Cologne to Coblenz, headquarters of the American army of occupation until 1923. We arrived two days after the dreadful accident which happened as President Von Hindenburg and his troops and the citizens of Coblenz were celebrating the Allies' evacuation of the Rhineland. The pontoon bridge across the Rhine broke, drowning sixty-two people. Immediately President Von Hindenburg withdrew and ordered all flags at half mast.

From Coblenz we took the beautiful Rhine river trip by steamer to "Fair Bingen on the Rhine." We passed many old castles and terraced vineyards and the famous Lorelei rock. Everywhere throughout Germany there are flowers and little parks and people eating in little out-of-door cafes and beer gardens.

I fell in love with Heidelberg, world famous for its university where students from all over the world gather. In other days dueling and executed with splendid artistic technique has been received and is on display at the Heppner garage, Goodyear tire dealers located on Main street.

The trophy is awarded in recognition of the sales achievement which the Heppner garage attained during July and August of this year in the Goodyear Zeppelin national wide sales race staged for Goodyear tire dealers.

Featuring transportation, the plaque shows the various modes of travel on land and sea back through the early stages of man's progress, carrying the development along to the modern Zeppelin type airship. "It is interesting to note," remarked Dean Goodman in connection with the award of the trophy which they have on display in the store window, "that Goodyear's own development in the rubber industry parallels that portrayed in the plaque—starting back with the rubber tires for horse-drawn carriages and pioneering in automobile and truck and bus tire development as well as leading the way in America in the construction and operation of lighter-than-air ships."

"Goodyear-Zeppelin is now constructing two of the world's largest airships for the United States navy. The 'U. S. Akron,' more than three-fourths of the structure of which has been completed, will be ready for its initial flight next spring at Akron.

"So we are mighty proud of this plaque because it not only represents this splendid achievement on the part of a large industry but a lot of hard work as well on the part of our own organization to win the trophy."

HON. W. D. UPSHAW ENDORSES SARGON

Few men in America are known to more people from coast to coast than William D. Upshaw, former Congressman from the Fifth (Atlanta) District of Georgia. During his eight years in Washington he attained national prominence. A well known national magazine described him as "the most amazing man in Congress."

Obeying a grateful impulse because of the great physical blessing received through the use of Sargon, Mr. Upshaw writes that he is simply doing unto others as he would have them do unto him in making the following voluntary statement.

"My first experience with this remarkable invigorator came in the summer of 1928, when Sargon was brand new. I was suffering from nervous debility and an alarming physical depletion as the result of over-work on the lecture platform, and really feared I would not have strength enough to get me through the political campaign of July and August. Unbelievable as it may seem, two bottles taken with the Sargon Pills simply made me over. After the most hectic speaking campaign through which I ever passed, I came out actually feeling far stronger than when I began. "Later, rushing away on another busy speaking tour covering several States, I did not persevere in the daily use of the medicine until my system was thoroughly cleaned, with the result that twice since then I found myself again suffering from general debility, constipation and dizziness, and each time the Sargon combination has cleared me up and left me feeling tip-top.

"Living now in the aftermath of those refreshing experiences, I am moved by common gratitude to heartily commend this wholesome and effective medicine to everybody whose run-down condition calls for complete restoration."
