PROHIBITION AND POLITICS

THE long-awaited report of the Wickersham Commission on the enforcement of the Prohibition law reopens on a national scale the whole question of whether or not Prohibition can be enforced. That means that the "Wet vs. Dry" issue will be one of the biggest, if not the dominant issue of the Presidential campaign of 1932.

The Wickersham report itself is definite in its main conclusions and recommendations. It is opposed to repeal of the 18th Amendment. It is opposed to the restoration in any manner of legalized saloons. It is opposed to the Federal or State governments going into the liquor business. It is opposed to any change in the law to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. It believes that the cooperation of the states and the support of public opinion is necessary for complete enforcement of the Prohibition law, but believes that there has been an improvement in enforcement since the forces for that purpose were reorganized, although enforcement and obedience to the law are still inadequate, as are the agencies of enforcement.

The commission recommends that more money should be appropriated for enforcement, and the organization and personnel improved and backed up by more efficient laws for the prosecution of violations and the conduct of investigations. In addition, the commission recommends that "If the 18th amendment is revised" it should give Congress the sole power to regulate the liquor traffic, and not leave anything to the states.

With this last conclusion President Hoover, in his message transmitting the report to Congress, disagrees. He thinks that the burden of enforcement should not rest entirely upon the Federal Government. He has previously expressed himself as feeling that the states have not done their full duty. But with the main conclusions of the commission he agrees.

All of the members of the commission agree on the general statements of fact in regard to Prohibition enforcement, but some of them disagree with the conclusions, although all signed the report. In separate memoranda different commissioners expressed themselves in favor of total repeal of the 18th amendment, of the Government going into the liquor business or authorizing the states to do so, of changing the Volstead law without repealing the Constitutional provision for Prohibition, and of other palliative measures.

Already the forces on both sides of the question are lining up for a great political fight next year. At present the Democratic party leadership, in the North, at least, is wet and getting wetter, while the Republican leadership is mainly dry and getting dryer. But Prohibition cuts across party lines, and one result of the present situation is likely to be some strange new political line-ups.

TIME FOR ALL TO HELP.

THE Red Cross is making good progress in its campaign to raise ten million dollars throughout the nation, to render aid to the hundreds of thousands of people in the lower Ohio and Mississippi Valleys who have been made destitute by the combination of drought and hard times.

This appeal for funds is one that nobody with as much as a dime to spare can ignore. These are our own people who are actually suffering and in want. More than half a million of them are already being fed and cared for by the Red Cross, which never waits until it has the money but goes ahead and pledges its credit and that of its officials to get aid to the needy without delay. "He gives twice who gives quickly" is one of the Red Cross mottoes.

It is to be hoped that there will not be another cold wave in the stricken regions. Observers who have reported on conditions there say that a heavy drop in temperature would certainly mean great loss of life. It may well be that the estimate of ten million dollars will not be enough, although the Red Cross has many times proved its ability to make a dollar go farther in helping the helpless than most people can make five dollars go. Nobody need be afraid that his contribution will be wasted if given to the Red Cross, whose workers are trained but unsalaried, giving themselves as well as their money. And do not let the feeling that there will be money enough deter you from giving.

Miss Lucy Case, in charge of state 4-H health club work, is in the county this week assisting Miss Edith M. Stallard, county nurse, in organizing health clubs.

IONE.

JENNIE E. McMURRAY.

Miss Hazel Brown, 28, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Brown, died in Portland Wednesday, January 28, and funeral services were held in that city on Friday, January 30. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were with their daughter at the time of her death, as was also a sister, Mrs. Roy Lienallen, and a brother, Dale Brown, from here. Miss Brown was well known here, having attended school in Ione, and in later years having visited often with her sister, Mrs. Lienallen. She had been in poor health for several years.

Miss Florence Shippey of Portland is in Ione for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Della Corson, and to help care for her mother, Mrs. Etta Shippey, who is ill.

The city council met in regular session Tuesday, Feb. 3, and voted twenty-five dollars to the Red Cross relief work.

While E. G. Sperry's car was being towed home from Arlington the first of last week an accident occurred in which Elmer Cochran, driver of the Sperry car, was painfully injured. Both cars overturned and Mr. Cochran received a severely cut hand. He went to Portland to the Veteran's hospital for treatment.

The regular monthly meeting of the Missionary society of the Congregational church was held last Thursday afternoon. A very interesting program was carried out under the leadership of the president, Mrs. Luvina Louy. Eight ladies were present. The next meeting will be March 5.

Wendell Balsiger of Moro spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Balsiger.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lindsay have employment on the Walter Rietmann ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Troge are Portland visitors this week.

David Grabill, who had been receiving treatment in the Heppner hospital, is again at his home on Second street.

The Junior Choir picnic held Saturday was quite an enjoyable affair. Twenty-five were in attendance. The picnic was at the M. R. Morgan ranch and was under the guidance of Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Cutler.

The next meeting of the O. E. S. Social club will be at the home of Mrs. Carl Feldman, February 20th. Albert Pettes who recently underwent a major operation in the Portland sanitarium is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Low are both ill at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Laxton McMurray.

Ione High School Alumni News.

There were four in the class of 1923. Zoe Farrens took her normal training at the school at Bellingham, Washington, and followed teaching for several years—always meeting with success. She married Martin Euerfeld. They are operating a store, postoffice and garage at Morgan. They have a little son, Eugene Martin, who will soon be assisting them in their multitudinous tasks. Linea Troedson has taken up the profession of teaching in earnest. She is a graduate of the State Normal School at Monmouth, and of Oregon State college. She taught in the rural schools of our county and in the grade school at Echo. James Howard graduated from Linfield college at McMinnville. He, too, has taken up the profession of teaching. Ever since his graduation from Linfield he has been teaching at West Lynn, Oregon. He married Miss Lola Rhodes, a McMinnville girl. They are the parents of two children. Tempe Goetchins continued her education at Linfield college and at the University of Oregon—graduating from the university. She is the wife of Alvin Rhodes. Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes make their home in Everett, Washington. Both are in the insurance business. This was J. Clifton Tucker's first year as principal of the Ione school.

$5000 GIVEN RED CROSS.

Word is given out from the local office of the Standard Oil company that the company's Pacific coast division contribution to the emergency Red Cross drought relief fund, amounting to $5000, was given by the head office.

Childish Troubles

Ho-hum . . . It's 10 p. m. Just returned from seeing a little fellow four years of age. The only child ill at the home of a very anxious mother, who co-operated with me at every step. I encountered a moderate fever, a loaded digestive tract belonging to a "very hearty eater," a vigorous and rapid pulse and breathing, a slight sore throat; lungs not involved. Any old mother might have given a dose of castor oil, and wrapped the little patient in warm bed, and he might have been all right tomorrow.

But, this is a highly technical age. Wise young parents do not fool with old wives' fables; they call a physician. The little fellow was very anxious that Santa Claus should visit him; being a personal friend of that Christmas idol of childhood, I readily promised to intercede for the visit of the fat little saint—which brought me a very willing subject for examination. I actually taught that 4-year-old when the widow of Nain receives her son again. Then note the incident when John replies by calling attention to the works and preaching which are common report.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

International Sunday School Lesson for February 15.

JESUS, FRIEND OF SINNERS

Luke 7:36-50.

REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D. D.

Again the entire chapter should be read. Remember that we are studying the entire life of Christ on earth and not just the few incidents therefrom. More miracles are performed. The faith of the Centurion was commended when that man besought Jesus to heal his servant from the distance by merely giving the word. Raising a dead body is no greater problem than any other kind of healing, as is evidenced by the widow of Nain receiving her son again. Then note the incident when John replies by calling attention to the works and preaching which are common report. The Pharisee who invited Jesus to his home evidently did it that he might observe this Nazarene more closely. He did not say "Come for Jesus' sake. There may have been food enough but the common courtesy of washing the soil from the feet was omitted, though that was the work of a slave or lowly servant. A woman who had made her living as a common prostitute rejoices at the opportunity of expressing her joy in the salvation which had come to her through His teachings.

When the Pharisee-host condemns both Jesus and the woman a deep lesson is given by a parable-story about two debtors. The forgiven sinner was therein exalted above the rude Pharisee. The woman was encouraged to make a new start in life, no matter what her forgiven past had been. The Golden Text explains the meaning of it all: "Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." I Timothy 1:15.

IRRIGON

The Alpine-Irrigon road committee consisting of W. C. Isom, Frank Leicht, D. Rutledge, Vernon Jones and A. Aldrich went to Heppner Wednesday to meet with the court to present several resolutions adopted by them.

Mrs. Sam Smith met with quite a serious accident last Sunday. In stepping upon a chair while house cleaning she fell backward, striking her head on the cement floor. Dr. Christopherson was called and several stitches were taken in her scalp. Though very weak from loss of blood Mrs. Smith is very much improved.

Tom Caldwell returned home from Portland Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brace spent the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Isom Thursday.

The regular meeting of the H. E. club ladies was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Leicht Thursday afternoon. Quite a large crowd was present and a delicious lunch was served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Fred Markham has been on the sick list the past week.

Frank Moody, who has been staying in the Brace home several months, left Thursday for his home in Washington.

The series of meetings being held at the Community church will be continued through the coming week. A great deal of interest is being manifested.

Miss Ruth Wyland of Lonerock visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bleakman Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Audrey Wilcox and Clarence Medlock are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Steers this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson were visiting at the home of Mrs. Robinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Merrill one day last week.

Mrs. Ethel Booher and Miss Margaret Smith were visiting at the home of Mrs. Corda Saling one day last week.

Zetta Bleakman and Marie Saling enjoyed a hiking trip to Glutton falls on Thursday.

Victor Johnson has gone to Ray

Wright's to assist during the lambing season.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Saling visited at the home of Mrs. Saling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John MacDonald.

Bernard Carlson was calling on Miss Golda Johnson on last Sunday. Bud Plak was a visitor in town one day last week.

Do not forget the date, Feb. 14, "Rube and His Ma," at the high school auditorium. Come and enjoy a good laugh. Children 10c, adults 25c. The proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the Sunday school.

ALPINE.

The regular farm bureau meeting was held at Alpine schoolhouse last Saturday evening. Charles Smith, county agricultural agent, and J. P. Conder of Heppner, accompanied by Karl Beach of Lexington, were present. Mr. Smith spoke on matters of interest to farmers, also being responsible for the setting aside of a week to be known as "squirrel poison week" in Alpine community. The poison is to be left at the Doherty ranch for the convenience of the farmers. Mr. Conder spoke to the people regarding the arrangements for the meeting to be held at Alpine schoolhouse on Monday, February 16. After the program refreshments were served in the basement of the school.

A delightful party was enjoyed by the Alpine folks last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kilkenny of Sandhollow. About 70 people were present. The evening was spent in dancing. Music was furnished by a number of local musicians, on the violin, banjo and ukelele. Refreshments were served at midnight.

Bert Michel motored to Hermiston Tuesday where he transacted business.

Claud Wade has been in the community this week, trapping badgers.

A number of Alpine students were absent from school last week due to colds. These were Bruce Lindsay, Bernard Doherty and Peggy Kilkenny. They were all back at school and ready for work Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Finley and son Claudy were looking after business in Echo Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lindsay and children Bruce and Annie motored to Pendleton on business Friday.

The Misses Naomi and Audrey Moore, accompanied by Margaret Howard, drove to Pendleton Saturday and took in a show.

Charles Melville left for La Grande Friday evening where he visited with his niece, Miss Gertrude Tichenor. He returned Sunday evening.

Cecil Gibson, a former student of Alpine high school, was visiting in the community Wednesday of last week from his home in Washington.

CHILD PROBLEMS TO GET ATTENTION

State Conference at O. S. C. to Carry on Work of Hoover Meet at Washington, D. C.

The newer problems of the child of today, considered both from his standpoint and that of his parents, will be the theme of a state-wide Child Development and Parent Education conference called by the Oregon State college school of home economics for February 16, 17 and 18.

This meeting will be an attempt to carry to the people of Oregon the findings of the recent national White House conference on Child Welfare and Protection sponsored by President Hoover. The facts presented there will be interpreted in the light of Oregon conditions; and an attempt made to formulate a program for the improvement of the physical and psychological well-being of the children of this state.

Although the Oregon program is to be carried out primarily through the 365 Parent-Teachers associations and 11 chapters of the American Association of University Women of the state, each of which has been invited to send delegates, several special sessions for parents and others interested in child welfare are being arranged during the conference.

Among the prominent visiting speakers will be members of three committees appointed by Hoover, for the national conference.
