BERTRAM THOMAS, an English explorer, has lately accomplished a feat which no man has ever pera feat which no man has ever per-formed before. He has traversed the entire width of the Arabian desert, a section of the earth's surface about which we have known as lit-ing, and still are giving, the finest about which we have known as lit-tle as we do about the moon.

One by one the hidden spots of this old world are being revealed. Commander Byrd's explorations last year disclosed facts about the Antarctic continent not previously understood. Russell Owen, the newspaper correspondent who accompanied Byrd, points out that there are still a dozen great regions about which nothing is certainly known. In our time the interior of Africa has been pretty thoroughly explored, but there are still great areas in the upper Nile valley about which we know nothing. The great Australian desert has defied explorers so far. There are at least three areas in South America, one of them half as big as the United States, which civilized men have never penetrated. In Siberia, in Tibet, on the shore of Hudson's Bay and around the North Pole are still other unknown fields for adventurous men to explore. Sir Hubert Wilkins is starting shortly for the North Pole in a sub-marine which will travel under the Commander George M. Dyott with a party of eighteen scientists is starting out to explore the "Green Hills of Amazonia," up the Xingu river in Brazil, with a fleet of airplanes with which to map this trop-ical jungle. Both expeditions will keep in touch with civilization by means of radio. Commander Dy-ott's party will have a complete broadcasting equipment, so that for the first time explorers in distant lands will be able actually to project their voices to the folks back

These explorations may have no immediate commercial value, but everything that adds to the sum of human knowledge is valuable. Such quests as these not only provide an outlet for the spirit of adventure which is our common heritage, but they furnish thrills for those of us who merely stay at home and read about and listen in on the stories of the perils and triumphs of the young discoverers.

FAITH, HOPE AND CHARITY

GOD'S GIFTS Luke 12:16-21; 41-48

REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D. D. Though the lesson text does not deal directly with the subject, the quarterly temperance lesson must be pressed with special earnestness. Therein we have one of the livest topics of the day. Test this out by reading the daily paper for a week seeking down to date news on this subject. In parable form Jesus tells the people in Perea about the man who thought only of his personal grati-fications and desired to do as he pleased regardless of any influence on others. In story form a rich gormand was portrayed. This man was headed for the gout, judging by his objectives in life. He had productive fields which yielded far more than enough for his needs.

When the climax was reached all were startled by the question which Jesus asked. What will you do with mere things when thy soul is required of thee this night? That inquiry brings each one face to face with the Judgment Seat of God.

Peter brought forth the next story and we have the parable of the steward who was unfaithful to his trust while he thought the owner was far away. Thinking power was taken away by the indulgence in strong drink. When in that condition the supposedly trustworthy man harmed his fellow servants and also himself. Society can never be safe when rightmindedness is taken away by any habit forming drug. The corrective is made very clear in the Golden Text: "Be not drunken with wine, wherein is riot, but be filled with the spirit," Ephe-sians 5:18. The Government will be increasingly effective in stopping commercial violations of the law. The Sunday School must meet the non-commercial violations through

There never has been a time in Gazette Times the history of America when these three essentials of good life were so manifest as they are today in our everyday affairs. We as a people are just beginning to emerge from the most serious and long-drawnout period of calamity and depres sion which we have ever experienc-ed. Millions of men and women have been for months literally unable to earn their daily bread. Miland entered at the Post Office at Hepp-ner, Oregon, as second-class matter. without the bare means of subsist-

A less sturdy people than ours would have yielded ere this to despair. A less law-abiding people would have relapsed into banditry, pair. as so many of China's millions have done. But there have been no popular uprisings, no bread riots, no desperate mobs pillaging the stores of supplies. In the face of all that we have been going through there has been no note of despondency.

We have kept the faith; we have not lost our belief in the ultimate return of the old prosperity; we still look upon this country of ours as the greatest and most favored of nations and we have clung to the hope that, sooner or later, somehow, in ways which we cannot quite clearly forsee but which our faith tells us will surely operate for good, all will be well again. We have not lost example of charity in all history. Without excitement, without pressure beyond the mere spreading of the word that help was needed, we have given not merely the ten mil-lion dollars that the Red Cross asked for but millions beyond that; to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and succor the homeless; and we are still giving. All of the machinery of our governments, state and national, has been geared to relieve the distress of the less fortunate among us.

The picture of the people of the United States which this situation reveals is one of which we may well be proud. We have proved again, to ourselves, what some had begun to doubt, that we have not cut loose from the ancient, imperishable virtues; that they still rule our hearts and guide our conduct.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter. According to a recent survey, there is not as much drinking among college students as the wets have been claiming, but there is entirely too much. Our state institu-tions of learning are costing the tax payers a great deal of money; and some of the tax payers do not like the idea of the students wasting their time and nullifying the good esults, to a certain degree, of the colleges and universities. However, it may be somewhat reassuring to ead the following, which was clip-
