(Autocaster Service) THERE is something about us humans which makes us all want to do queer things in the Spring. As soon as the first green shoots ap-pear boys begin to think about base-ball, men consider the likelihood of getting in a little fishing between tasks, and the women-God bless them!-begin to turn the house upside down.

Perhaps there isn't as much spring housecleaning" done these days as there used to be, but that's a matter of opinion. There is some-thing in the coming of Spring which stirs the feminine instinct for renovation. Perhaps it is a reflection of the replenishment of the earth. Nature has slept all Winter, the trees have been bare, the grasses brown, everything out of doors has a dingy look. Then, suddenly, all is bright and fresh and green. that is so outside, why not inside? That, at least, seems to be the such as it is, behind the housecleaning urge.

Spring is the happiest season of the whole year, however, in spite of the discomfort to the male sex which the upsetting of his dom cile imposes upon him. It is the season of hope. No matter how bad things were last season, no matter how severe and distressful the Winter has been, Spring brings a fresh promise The promise is not alevery year. ways kept, but at least in Spring a man feels that there is something he can do to help things along which he could not do in the Winter. The coming season may be different. At any rate, he won't freeze to death for another nine months at least. Probably we would all get tired of a climate where it was always Spring. People who have gone to live in lands of perpetual mildness are said to get homesick for the changeable climates they came from. And one certain thing about Spring is that it won't last long. Before we know it we will be head over heels in Summer.

Sunday School DD Lesson DD

International Sunday School Lesson for April 26 HOW TO PRAY Luke 18:1-14.

REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D. D. Two more parables force home great truths that are most helpful concerning prayer. The world prays. Those who may doubt this have onto see anyone in some place of distress. That person will either pray or swear and to swear is to pray, for you ask God to do some-Go to any nation in the world that you will and there you will find shrines, altars and temples that are associated with prayer.

It is interesting to note the many places in the Bible where widows are to be cared for by those who are able to do this. Now that woman has taken a different place in the business world she is often able to do more for herself than did her lazy husband. In the parable a widow has a just claim which she continuously presents to the judge. He has kept putting her off, possi bly in the hope of obtaining some bribe. At last adjudication is given that he may not be further annoyed by her repeated pleas. God, however, does not need to be teased into helping us. He is always eager to be gracious but it may not be for our best interest that He do exactly as we want and when we beg for it. We are to keep right on praying when we believe that our petition is in accord with the mind of the Holy Spirit. Our renewed requests especially that we maintaining our faith in Him. We are heard by reason of our faith and not because of our "much speaking." Matthew 6:7.

We can only glance at the Publican and the Sinner while each is at prayer. The haughty man just talked out loud. He never sought an audience at the Throne of Grace. Among the distinct elements in an orderly prayer three are found in that of the humble sinner who petitioned "God, be merciful to me the sinner." There was recognition of the heavenly Father, confession of sin and plea for par-and men, too, for that matter. Not long ago a young woman graduate of one of the most famous colleges, discovered that she had considerable talent as a writer. At the same time she discovered she was in love with a prosperous business man. She wanted a career as a writer, but she also wanted a career as a wife and mother. The man in the case told her to choose between them. He had good business sense. He knew that she was reasonably sure to make a failure of one career or the other if she tried to have both. It took this young wo-man a good while to decide, but finally she came to the conclusion that the place of that particular woman was in the home. That does not mean that every woman's place is in the home, how ever. It depends so much upon the woman. Every one of us knows some splendid woman who has nevr married but who has done magnificent work in helping others. It used to be that a woman who worked in an office or devoted herself to an artistic or literary career did so merely because she had not been able to capture a satisfactory hus-band. There was a stigma about being an "old maid" which has practically disappeared today. The wo-man who chooses to work rather than to marry has her place in the world, and it is not in the home. But the woman who marries, most people will agree, has but one prop-er job, home-making, until her fan: ily has grown up and left the parental nest. That is not to suggest that married women should not have just as good a time as any-body else. But there have been ery few instances where the result of the wife and husband both engaged in occupations outside of the home has been anything but disasrous for the children.

The leaders among women's pol itical and social welfare activities tre mostly women who have either never married or who have been successful home-makers and have reached the age where their children are married or otherwise off their hands. The percentage of grandmothers at any convention of vomen's clubs is very high indeed. Those are opinions. Perhaps they are no more sound than the fixed opinions for the teaching of which $100,000 was offered to different coleges. But everybody will agree that the colleges were right in refusing to be bound to teach any opinion which changing social conditions might alter from generation to generation.

CLEAN GROUND IS TURKEY CURE-ALL

Birds Grown in Semi-Confinement Do Well in Experiment on Disease Control.

Disease control in turkeys is very argely dependent on raising the pirds on clean ground. The spendng of money for poultry tonics, worm or cure-all remedies is un-

This is one of the conclusions drawn by H. K. Dean, superintend-ent of the Umatilla branch experiment station, at the end of the first year of an experiment in raising disease free turkeys by keeping them under semi-confinement on clean ground all their lives.

The turkeys were obtained as dayold poults, brooded in a well-ventilated 12 by 12 house, using a com-Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Col-writer refused the hequest. They enough to leave the brooder they
