SUMMER EATING.

SUMMER is here and we are changing our eating habits for the warm weather. The canners and the preservers do wonderful things, but somehow or other even the best canned goods don't taste like fresh vegetables right out of the garden. It is not to be wondered at that city folks all try to spend their summers in the country. People that never go outside the big cities don't know what really fresh peas and sweet corn and lima beans and the rest of the garden products taste like. And as for fresh eggs—well, we are just sorry for city folks. With all the talk about depression and unemployment, we notice that people are eating just about as much as they ever did. That is one great thing about these United States, we can make an awful lot of it in a very few parts of the United States that anybody has really suffered for lack of food through all of our recent difficulties.

In the South the watermelon season has begun. It will work its way north until New England's melons are ripe, just a few days ahead of the first September frost. If there was nothing else to look forward to in summer, the watermelon alone would almost be a sufficient excuse for living. That is something we have that they don't have in most other parts of the world. It is hard to believe it, but there are, literally, hundreds of millions of people in Europe who never had a chance to taste a watermelon. And cantaloupes! Some old-fashioned folks still prefer to call them muskmelons. They taste just about as good under one name as under the other. And sweet corn! We don't know who invented Golden Bantam, but he ought to have a medal and his statue in the Hall of Fame. They have been picking strawberries in Florida since January, but it will not be long now before all the rest of the country

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for May 31. JESUS IN GETHSEMANE. Luke 22:39-54. REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D. D. It is recorded by Mark, following the narration of the events in the upper room in Jerusalem when the Passover was celebrated, that the Lord's Supper was instituted. "And when they had sung a hymn, they went out unto the Mount of Olives."

Prayer is the great recourse when there are problems to face and spiritual strength to be obtained. Though Jesus would pray alone He wanted Peter, James and John to be near Him and invited them to come further into the Garden. The scene is best depicted by Hoffmann's great painting of "Christ in Gethsemane." What was the "cup" that Jesus prayed might pass from Him? Surely He did not want to quit the mission for which He came from heaven to earth. Many think that He was afraid of His strength, both physical and spiritual, might not hold out until all had been accomplished. We know at least this for a certainty: He prayed that the will of the Father, not His personal will might prevail. The three close friends failed Him. These men slept, and returned to sleep though Jesus thrice came to awaken them. By Jesus in His solitude as He faced the throne of God. It is in such quiet places that we win the big battles of life, rather than in the open and when we cannot do otherwise as the crowd looks on. The greatest decisions are made when we are thus alone with God. Then Judas comes to the place where He knew Jesus had an altar of prayer and gives the signal for arrest as he betrays the Son of Man with a kiss.

will be eating fresh berries out of our own strawberry beds. Another week or two of sunshine the meadows and pastures of the northern states will be covered with wild strawberries. They are a lot harder to pick, but they are a lot sweeter and juicier than the best and biggest berries ever grown in the garden patch.

Once we get started writing about good things to eat, it is hard to tell where to stop. What we are really trying to say is that this is the season of the year when we folks who live in the small towns and the country have it all over the city people who don't know anything about what good eating is until they come out to the rural districts. Well, come on you city folks. We are always glad to see you, and we feel kinda sorry for you when you have to go back to your kitchenette and canned stuff.

THE HORSE COMES BACK.

THE day of the horses as motive power on the farm is far from being over. Some recent figures, compiled by the Minnesota agricultural authorities, show that for a great many kinds of farm work, which used to be done by horses but lately have been done by motors, the horse is again the cheaper motive power. Oats and hay are selling for the lowest prices in years. Even though gasoline is down, there are a great many farmers who are finding it now more economical to use horses.

On the other hand, race horses and riding horses are more expensive than ever before. The United States Army is finding it difficult to get enough high-grade horses, part thoroughbred, for cavalry remounts. Numerous sales of saddle horses, or so-called steplechasers or hunter type, have been made in the East at prices ranging above $3,000.00 apiece. Horses of a similar type and quality were easily purchasable for $500 or $600 until a few years ago.

There is still money in the horse. There is money for the breeder of thoroughbreds and saddle stock, and there is profit for the farmer who can utilize horses instead of motors. Probably there never will be a time when the small farmer will not use horses, especially in rough or hilly country. A farm without horses may look all right to the youngsters, but older people feel that it is not a real farm. There is nothing about a tractor to get sentimental about. A horse has individuality and character, and often becomes one of the family.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart. Creamed Cabbage. One cabbage, 1 ounce of butter, one gill cream, pepper and salt to taste. Boil the cabbage, drain it, cut it up small and put into saucepan with the butter and cream. Add seasoning of pepper and salt. Stir it all together over the fire until thoroughly hot, then turn out on to a hot dish, and serve with croutons. Chocolate eclairs. Here's the way to make delicious chocolate eclairs. Melt one-third cup butter in saucepan, add two tablespoons granulated sugar and one cup milk and bring to boil. Then add one cup flour. Stir vigorously with a wooden spoon, and as soon as the mixture sticks to the spoon remove from fire. Cool and add four eggs, one at a time, beating two minutes after each addition, and five minutes after all the eggs are added. Shape the mixture on a sheet of waxed paper through a pastry tube into strips half an inch wide and four inches long. Bake for twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Cool and slit each in the side. Fill with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla and a pinch of salt. Put thick chocolate icing on top of each.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

POSSIBILITIES IN BLOOD-PRESSURE

I have frequently had patients assure me, "no, doctor, I haven't any blood-pressure," meaning that they have no high tension in that department. I generally correct them gently, by saying that a man with no blood-pressure is dead! For all things with circulation have "blood-pressure." The condition—high or low—is but a symptom; and high arterial tension may be a very serious symptom, but if its cause is found in the kidneys, it will only relax with the cure of the diseased organs. And cure is in some cases impossible, when the renal disease is too far advanced to correct.

So, if blood-pressure is far above normal, I immediately look after the kidneys; you should do the same. The "change of life" in middle-aged women, is sometimes accompanied by a very high arterial tension, but I regard this sort of manifestation curable, if taken in time—that is, before a brain hemorrhage, or another ugly thing has set up. This possibility means, keep close to your physician in such crises—it will pay.

Certain nervous states cause high blood-pressure; others bring low tension. Weakened, relaxed muscles induce low pressure. Both phases of human existence usually respond to treatment, and should not cause alarm. The hardened arteries of the aged cause what may be termed normal high tension, which rarely does harm or produces alarming symptoms.

Diet, it seems to me, has been considerably overworked in the matter of high tension. I recommend eating moderately, rather than to cut out food that the patient really needs. The meat bugaboo is passing, as I believe it properly should, except in cases of severe kidney disorder. Meats are of too much importance in the human economy to condemn in a routine way.

You should have your blood-pressure reading recorded "at least twice a year," regardless of "your dentist."

Curiosity Desirable in Children, Says O. S. C. If your small son or daughter taxes your store of information, and often your patience by his or her ability to ask questions, you may sometimes feel a trifle irritated. But you are also to be congratulated. Curiosity, according to Miss Rena Heagen, assistant professor of hygiene at Oregon State college, is a sign of normal intelligence in a child. If the questioning tendency tends to appera, she says, there must be grave doubts as to the child's mental integrity.

"Normal children ask every variety of question," says Miss Heagen. "It is of the utmost importance for parents to realize that the bulk of information cannot be acquired within the formal confines of the schoolroom, and that unless normal curiosity is satisfied, the child will remain stunted in his mental stature."

Curiosity, Miss Heagen believes, is a common and essential trait in all children with the possible exception of the idiot. Some children do have an over-supply of it, while others have too little, but it is difficult to decide just when it is beyond the limits of mental health in either direction.

"Why don't you get out and hustle? Hard work never killed anybody," counseled the philosophical gent. "You're mistaken dar, boss," replied Rastus, making a touch. "Ah'se lost foah wivens dat way."
