Good Judgment Said Best Asset of Modern Wife

Time was when a woman's ability as a housewife was judged by the texture of her cakes, the size of her stitches and the spotlessness of her kitchen—but those days are past.

The chief attribute of the successful housewife of modern days is good judgment. Her test is the ability to manage her household in an efficient manner, and to make wise decisions and choices for her family in the face of the increasingly complicated social and economic order. Fewer and fewer articles for family consumption are made in the home, and the problem nowadays is to choose between the countless brands and makes of commodities advertised.

This situation, according to Miss Jane Hinkley, federal agent for home economics education in the 11 western states, is responsible for the new trend in home economics education, which is toward greater emphasis on family life and relationships and less on skill in such tasks as cooking and sewing.

Miss Hinkley was in charge of an intensive short course just concluded at Oregon State college, in which 45 home economics teachers from seven states took part.

"Home economics courses," said Miss Hinkley during one of her lectures, "have been broadened to include not just the study of food and clothing, but the care and training of children, the maintaining of desirable social relationships in and between families, the wise use of money, time and effort, and the maintenance of the family health."

How to train BABY'S BOWELS

Babies, bottle-fed or breast-fed, with any tendency to be constipated, would thrive if they received daily half a teaspoonful of this old family doctor's prescription for the bowels.

That is one sure way to train tiny bowels to healthy regularity. To avoid the fretfulness, vomiting, crying, failure to gain, and other ills of constipated babies.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. For this, you have the word of a famous doctor. Forty-seven years of practice taught him just what babies need to keep their little bowels active, regular; keep little bodies plump and healthy. For Dr. Caldwell specialized in the treatment of women and little ones. He attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby.
