A PROMISING PROGRAM.

Autocaster Service. LL sorts of people are putting the industrial depressions such as we have been going through. Most put forward by people who do not really know what they are talking about. There seems, however to about. There seems however, to be real promise in the suggestion of the National Civic Federation to call a national congress of selected delegates from every line of industry and business, and from the ranks of all the important trades as well, to formulate a program of industrial readjustment and to create a permanent organization to maintain the proper balance be-tween production, distribution and consumption.

The suggestion originated with Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, who is chairman of the Commission of Industrial Inquiry of the National Civic Federation. Elihu Root, America's most distinguished "elder statesman," is the honorary chairman of the Federation.

Under such auspices, any move-ment for public welfare starts off with a fair chance of success. Every intelligent person knows that all that is needed to keep business and industry on an even keel, and labor steadily employed, is cooperation to that end between all of the ele-ments involved. Capital alone cannot do it, management alone cannot do it, labor cannot bring it about But if all the groups of these three elements of business and industrial life get together and agree on a program, it is pretty likely to be a program which stands a chance of success. Its value will be increased if the farmers are also included. And it will be lessened in ticians take part in it.

The advocates of this movement are referring to it as "the Ten-Year-Plan." They figure it will take ten accomplishing its purpose. If some method could be devised to compel all of the interests involved to live how most of us are lacking in the up to their joint agreements there up to their joint agreements there held to desire the symptoms may amount to a he couldn't "navigate" without his a decided advance toward success- of Smith-Hughes teachers at Ore is no reason in the world why someting of this sort should not be efcampaign literature. AN HONOR DESERVED.

IN awarding the Capper Gold Medal and its accompanying honorar-um of $5,000 to Dr. L. O. Howard for distinguished service to agriculture, honor is given where honor is due. Dr. Howard, in his long service as chief entimologist of the United States Department of Agriulture, has done more than any other living person, not only to awaken the farmers of the nation to the necessity of combating in-sect pests, but to develop methods of overcoming the ravages of inects and to set up bars against their entry from abroad.

As Dr. Howard has truthfully said so often that it is an old story the great war for possession of the earth is the war between man and insects. Unchecked, insect life would destroy all other life. Great progress has been made in the war n insects in the past forty years, out an enormous amount still remains to be done and only unceas-ing diligence and unremitting warfare will give the final victory to

It is not only the agricultural products that insects threaten; it is human life itself. In unearthing the facts about insect pests and particularly in de eloping means of combating them, Dr. Howard has developed a long and poorly paid career of public service. He is entitled to all the honor that can be paid him.

HABITS OF CRITICAL OBSERVATION.

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall.

President, University of Oregon. In a recent national campaign one of the national campaign committees issued several million copies of a card which on one side promised the laboring men that they would cut down the cost of living until it was reduced to the size of their pay check. On the other side of the card they promised the farmers more money for their grain, beef, poultry, milk and other necessities of life that the farmers sold. I was called in by one of the national campaign officers to criticize the campaign literature. I called atises on the opposite sides of this card were contradictory. They obviously could not lower the prices of poultry to the wage earner and yet raise it for the farmer.

The campaign officer smiled when this was called to his attention and said, "Well, it is too bad that we put precisely the degree in which poll-ticians take part in it. them on opposite sides of the same card." At the close of the campaign the same officer told me that no one else, not even their political opponents, had called their attention to the impossible example—overeating; intense determined by maintained. Like the habit of thinking, the habit of critical and intelligent observation facts. It has been shown that if American people, in order to pay is a habit that will be of increasing the situation had continued as it that amount in beer tax, would need value as the years go by, whether applied to the most technical proects of research or to the m ommonplace problems of daily life.

The wild assertion of the wets that the bootleggers are for prohibition is discredited by the fact that Dan Serritella, who is known to be Al Capone's right hand man in the Illinois senate, voted for the repeal of the state prohibition laws. It is matter of common knowledge that Al Capone's big "racket" is the bootleg racket. His recent conviction upon a plea of guilty simply establishes the fact in the court records.
