Judas, for thirty pieces of silver, sold the Christ. The Bible has many similar stories. Our first parents, for the sake of a piece of fruit, sacrificed their paradise home. Esau, for the sake of a mess of pottage gave up his birthright. Achan, for the sake of a Babylonish garment and a wedge of gold, forfeited his life. Samson, for the sake of a woman's caresses, lost his hair, his

We know the answer. Of course you are! So are we! What's more, we are interested in you. And it must follow that you are interested in us.

You are interested in our community because you live here, you work here, you have your investments here, you pay taxes here, you are raising a family here, and—well, you like the place.

So do we!

We live here! W werk here! We have our investments here! We pay taxes here! We are raising a big family (of emplyees) here! And-well, we like the place.

Quite a communty of interest.

We are interested in you because it is all the "you's" who have made the community grow. We have grown with the community. We can't grow if it doesn't.
