PUTTING AMERICANS ON THE JOB.

Autocaster Service. THERE is food for thought for all state governments in a recent action by the Federal Government, taken at the instance of the State of Massachusetts. Briefly, Massachusetts asked the Federal Commissioner of Labor to stop issuing labor permits to French-Canadian workers until times improve, and Washington thereupon cancelled all existing permits and issued an order to refrain from granting any more for a time. As a result hundreds of American workmen are back on the pay-roll.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for August 30. THE MISSION TO CYPRUS Acts 12:15; 13:12 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Foreign missions is a genuine romance and there is always an abundance of thrills in its study, whether you go back to the Acts of turn to events in modern history. Antioch had become a new and larger center of Christian activity, but the home church at Jerusalem was not neglected. The apostles had agreed to gather funds for the poor saints of the mother church and the friends in Antioch send such an offering by Barnabas and Saul. Some months previously Saul had been called from Tarsus by Barnabas to help in the growing work in Antioch. At Jerusalem they met John Mark, probably the young man who drew the sword in the garden of Gethsemane in defence of Jesus, and brought him with them to Antioch.

Christianity always has an outreach and ceases to be Christian when only self is considered. While in prayer in the Antioch church the needs of others are being considered, and through the Holy Spirit, there is a definite call for Barnabas and Saul to undertake a preaching mission in Cyprus, an island some distance off the coast. The call is accepted and John Mark is taken along as a general helper.

Preaching begins at the first port and the messages are continued until they reach the further side of the island. At Paphos they had an audience with Sergius Paulus, the governor. As the truth is proclaimed, Elymas, the sorcerer, is greatly disturbed, for if what these messengers declare is accepted by the governor the magician will lose his pull at court. An outcry is made by Elymas which is replied to in most forceful language by Saul and blindness is the penalty for his presumption to stay the progress of the gospel. Such evidences are not to be denied and Sergius makes open confession of his faith.

Maine and readily got jobs cutting timber for pulp-wood for American mills. French-Canadians have a special aptitude for chopping down trees. It takes a special knack to fell a tree so that it will not injure standing timber in its fall, and this is an art that has long been mastered by Quebec workers. They are much sought after by all companies who are felling forests.

In former years many of these men emigrated to New England and became naturalized, pursuing their former calling. Recently, however, they found work slack and flocked by the hundreds to Boston and other Yankee coast towns, waiting for hard times to end. Meanwhile hundreds of French-Canadians have been working in the Maine woods while their American fellow-workers were idle. This has all been changed by action from Washington.

Other states might profit by following Massachusetts' example. It might pay Florida to investigate how many Cuban cigar-makers are working in Tampa; Texas might study how many Mexicans are riding herd while American cowboys are whittling; Kansas may be employing many Canadian harvest hands, and so on.

There is hardly a state in the Union which might not be able to return many of its taxpayers and citizens to work by uncovering a similar situation to that of the alien wood-choppers in the Maine woods and following the lead set by Massachusetts.

AND THEN—? Autocaster Service. A SALESMAN sent into the tropics to sell agricultural machinery, came back with a story which illustrates a number of things. He found the natives contentedly sitting around while abundant Nature grew all their food with the slightest possible effort on their part.

"If you had a plow and a harrow you could grow more food," said the salesman. "And then—?" asked the native. "Then you could get money for it and buy more land."

"Why, then you could buy more machinery and grow still more food and get more money."

"And then—?" "Why, then, after a while you would have so much money you wouldn't need to work."

"But I would be no better off, Senator. I don't work now!" To those who hold to the Puritan doctrine that work is a virtue in itself and that he who does not work is a sinner, the spectacle of anybody getting a living without working is abhorrent. But when you consider that in every religion the ideal of Heaven is the same—a place where nobody has to work—it raises the question whether that point of view is entirely sound.

There is no doubt that the habit of work builds character, even though the work itself may not be congenial. The happiest men and women are those who have found work which interests them so much that they prefer it to anything else. But work merely for the sake of making enough money so you won't have to work is something else again.

Perhaps a lot of us are as foolish as that native thought he would be if he spent a lot of time and effort merely to avoid working.

Education for Radio Is Now Available at O.S.C. For the first time in Oregon opportunity is to be afforded at Oregon State college this fall for comprehensive training of students interested in any branch of the radio industry. This is accomplished, according to the announcement, by grouping of courses which already exist in five schools and departments of the college and by making use of the facilities afforded by the state-owned broadcasting station, KOAC.

By majoring in the department of electrical engineering and taking specialized radio subjects in the department of physics, a student may fit himself for research work in the technical end of radio, or for taking the federal examination as a radio operator. Students interested in the business side of radio or in program handling and announcing may get adequate training in the schools of commerce, home economics and agriculture and the departments of public speaking and industrial journalism.

Opportunity is also afforded for competent students to gain actual experience in handling material for the broadcast programs arranged by the extension service.
