HAS THE TURN COME?

Autocaster Service.

THERE is a different tone noticeable in the conversation of business men in the past week or two. Instead of wondering how much deeper into the financial hole the country was going to get, more people are expressing confidence that business is going to get better very soon.

This is a very hopeful sign. The principal trouble with the general situation lately has been lack of confidence on the part of those who have money. They have been unwilling to spend their money, to invest it where it would be doing useful work, because of the feeling that perhaps, after all, prices had not yet touched bottom. That has been one serious drawback to a speedier recovery, and another has been the fact that a great many banks and financial institutions, perfectly sound in the long run, have had so much of their depositors' money tied up in securities which cannot quickly be realized on that they have been unable to extend the lines of credit which are absolutely necessary for the normal course of business.

We think Mr. Hoover did perhaps the wisest thing that he has done in his career as President, when he called leading bankers into conference and with their assistance worked out a plan for providing credit beyond what the banks extend. And in calling in leaders of both parties in Congress to reassure the country that this project was not a partisan bid for popularity, but a genuine, patriotic effort to save the nation from worse trouble, he acted with a breadth of vision which must meet with the approval of people of all parties.

It looks at this time as if the $500,000,000 credit which the bankers' committee, under the Hoover plan, has arranged for would turn the trick. It certainly has given the country, at large, a better feeling. While it cannot, in the nature of things, start all the factory wheels turning instantly and put everybody back to work at once, it ought to speed up the resumption of industrial operations very materially.

GOVERNMENT AND THE RAILROADS

Autocaster Service.

THE railroads are asking for a fifteen per cent increase in freight rates. They make this appeal on the basis of the fact that they have not, in recent years, been able to earn the percentage on their investments which they are permitted to earn under the interstate commerce law. It has been estimated that the increased rates would cost every American family

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

Galatians 5:13-25

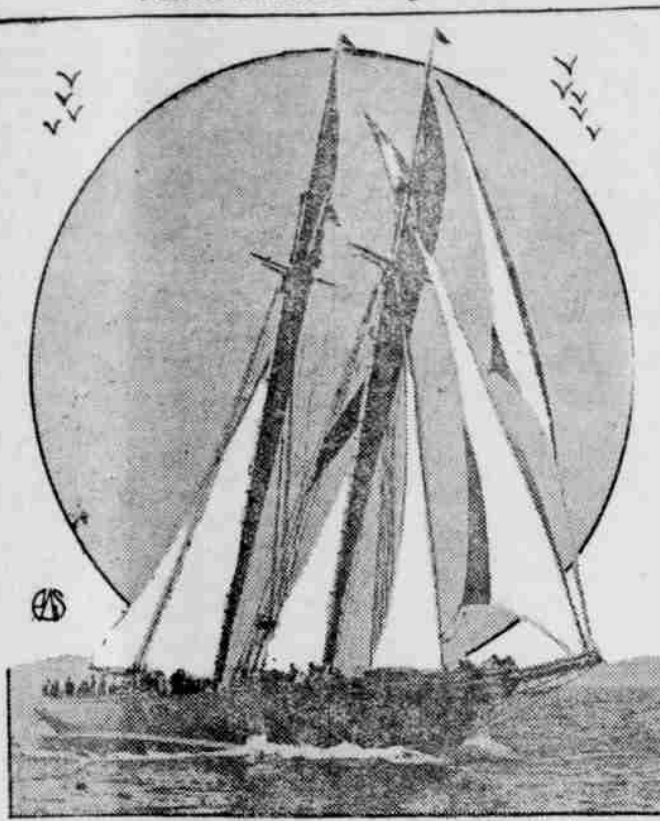

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Special interest will center in a discussion of organized liquor traffic for this World's Temperance Sunday. The date is fixed to occur on the Sunday preceding the usual election day in the United States. Plenty of up to date facts will be found in the newspapers. Two books are suggested for special research. They are PROHIBITION AT ITS WORST by Prof. Irving Fisher, and PROHIBITION AND COMMON SENSE.

"Galatians," from which the lesson is taken, comes naturally before us as it is one of the letters written by Paul from Corinth during his third missionary journey. It is always interesting to note how the Bible, written so long ago, meets the issues in every-day living at the present time. The biggest argument put forth by those who want to sell alcohol, which is always labelled POISON, is that of personal liberty. Paul writes here about "freedom," but makes the distinction between using it as "an occasion of the flesh" or "through love, be servants of one another." Christianity teaches that we are to give up our individual rights that we may be of real help to humanity.

Wickednesses are listed under "fruit of the flesh" and it is the use of liquor which dulls mental activity that aggravates all the sins that are named. In marked contrast the "fruit of the Spirit" is pictured. "Most unbelievable progress has been made in temperance reform during the past twenty years. The Eighteenth Amendment is enforced at least 60 per cent and 80 per cent enforcement of any law is very good. When those who call themselves Christian demand better enforcement it will come.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

MORE EVIDENCE

A very old adage has it, "Fools make feasts; wise men eat them." But we are living in a different age; I don't call anybody a fool because he spreads a feast—if he can afford it; the very much bigger fool is the fellow that gorges himself at the feast.

Last evening, (very much against my better judgment), I accepted an invitation to dine at 6 o'clock with a professional brother—our wives were in attendance. The cares of the day were past and gone; it was time for recreation that is so essential to the brain worker. Every one in the happy group, except myself, adored the six o'clock dinner, and indulged in it at every opportunity.

To say that this was a fine, sumptuous meal, does not half describe the setting. It was a triumph of culinary skill—the quantity was limited to capacity only.

Incidentally, one of the physicians present said he was a little ticklish about coffee—he had a blood-pressure of something over 200, and was one cent a day in the increased price of commodities. For, of course, every increase in the cost of transportation must be reflected in the selling price of the goods carried.

At first glance, this looks to many like an unfair attempt to raise prices at a time when purchasing power is low. But on the other side of the picture there are other things to consider. If the increase in rates will enable the railroads to maintain full working forces of employees without wage reductions, then it is unquestionable that this increased railroad revenue would be beneficial to everybody in the United States. It must be remembered also that the railroads never had the opportunity to make large profits when times were flush. The percentage that they can earn as profits is strictly limited by law. So far as we know, that provision of the law has been properly enforced. But by limiting what the railroads can earn in the best of times, it seems to us that the government has put itself under an obligation to help them out of their troubles in hard times. They are not on the same basis with private industries which are not operated in the public interest. The business which is permitted to make enormous profits if it can, is entitled to no particular public assistance when its profits decline. But the railroads, as an essential factor in the free exchange of commodities, are in a different position.
