W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, dean of American university presidents, who died last September, over twenty years ago wrote as follows: "It is soberly claimed that the opium traffic is necessary for the welfare of China. Without his pipe-dream, the average Chinaman would never know joy. But it is never well for any man to think he is having a good time when he is not. The function of the nervous system is to tell us the truth. When it is taught to lie, its worth as a guide to action is permanently impaired. The joys of alcohol, nicotine, opium, or any other nerve-affecting drug, belong to the foot's paradise. In the long run, sham emotions destroy as well as torture, whether of love, religion or liquor."

Speaking of the evils of the saloons, Dr. Jordan said: "The evil of the saloons is mainly felt in the years from sixteen to twenty-four. If boys under twenty-one were shut out from them, more than half their evils would be abated. Thousands upon thousands of boys step from the saloon to the brothel—not a long step—to be poisoned for life with the most loathsome of diseases, the red plague, of which no one was ever certainly cured."

In discussing the arguments for wine and beer, while conceding that wine and beer might be relatively innocuous when they do not lead up directly to stronger drinks, Dr. Jordan well said: "The actual relation of wine to temperance in Southern Europe has never been adequately studied. The problem is not a simple one, and the mere fact that there is less visible drunkenness where dilute alcohol is a daily beverage, tells but a small part of the story. The daily partial saturation carries its burden on brain and kidneys and phagocytes (white corpuscles), while on the other hand the spasms of excess are relatively less common. This is a problem of physiology and pharmacology, as well as of social science, and the off-hand answers usually given to it do not advance us very far."

Dr. Jordan, in closing the article quoted from above, used the following quotation from the writings of Robert W. Chambers: "Alcohol is poison, and it has not and never had in any guise the slightest compensating value for internal use. It isn't a food. It is a poison. It isn't an aid to digestion. It is a poison. It is not a life saver. It is a life taker. It is a parasite, forger, thief, liar, brutalizer, murderer. There isn't and there never has been one word to say for it, or any excuse except morbid predisposition of self-inculcated inclination for swallowing it. You can take your choice."

UNCLE SAM.

By Francis G. Blair.
You ask me who is Uncle Sam,
I modestly reply, I am.
These hungry urchins meanly dressed,
These mothers suckling babes at breast,
These traffic cops along the street,
These rushing crowds on eager feet,
These thousands caught in fortune's jam—
All these, and you and I are Uncle Sam.

All farmers working in the field,
All bankers making dollars yield,
All those who teach or preach or pray,
All honest workers, night or day,
All mountebanks who cheat and sham—
All these, and you and I are Uncle Sam.

This miner, climbing from the mine,
This boot-black calling for your shine,
This lawyer pleading at the bar,
This doctor rushing by in car,
This druggist measuring gill and gram—
All these, and you and I are Uncle Sam.

Those prosperous in high estate,
Those beggars waiting at the gate,
Those morons breeding in the slums,
Those soldiers stepping to the drums,
Those toppers swigging down their dram—
All these, and you and I are Uncle Sam.

Not high-topped hat nor stripes nor bars,
Not gaudy coat, bedecked with stars,
Not whiskered chin nor pointed nose,
Not gawky form from head to toes,
Not Yankee Doodle's slap and slam—
Not any or all of these are Uncle Sam.

But pioneers on land and sea,
Unnumbered millions yet to be,
Of Noble men who work and plan
To build and guard their native land,
Who daily do their civic share
Unflinchingly and unaware
Of those who praise or those who damn—
All these, and you and I are Uncle Sam.

Nothing But Leaves.
"And seeing a fig tree afar off, having leaves, He came, if haply He might find anything thereon; and when He came to it, He found nothing but leaves." Mark 11-13.

This recital of the fig tree, in which Christ was disappointed, sets forth the matter of nothing but appearances.

Leaves, plenty of leaves, plenty of appearances. This fig tree had all the appearance of a fruit-bearing tree, BUT, "when He came to it He found nothing but leaves."

Nothing but appearances. That tells all there is to tell of some people. They make a good appearance. They put on a good front. They make a considerable show. They stand well. They attract favorable attention. One is led to think they are really worth while. But when you look for something real; real character; real purpose; real usefulness; you are disappointed. It is not there.

Nothing but beauty. She was a beautiful woman, admired by many. But one who knew her well, said of her: "Her beauty is all there is to her; she is nothing but beauty."

We all admire unspoiled beauty; but vain beauty soon ceases to be attractive. Mothers many times say to their children: "Beauty is as beauty does." Real beauty is not all on the outside. Outward charms and attractiveness without inward grace and beauty of soul always prove disappointing.

Nothing but wealth. No character. No culture. No sense of obligation to others. Nothing but money and the cheap things money will buy—cheap pleasures; cheap vanities; cheap social position. That describes many who have wealth. They have nothing of life's finer things. We are always disappointed when we look to them for any of the real fruit of life.

The normal life of both the fig tree and man is to bear fruit—fruit for the man of fine living in every relation of life. To find a fig tree without fruit and nothing but leaves is disappointing. It is tragic, to find a man whose life is expressed in nothing but leaves.

"Is it necessary that we should determine to grow, to make it the aim of our life, the supreme desire and passion. The growth of many is slow and feeble, simply because they have failed to realize the necessity and blessedness of making continued advances in their new found experience. Until death 'advance' must be our watchword, and we cannot advance unless we strive to. Paul, near the close of his ministry, emphasized this, when he said, 'This one thing I do.' It is a growth in the love already perfected in us; perfected in its quality, but not in its value. Paul said to the Hebrews, 'Let us go on unto perfection.' There should be a continual advance in our Christian life." Both morning and evening topics this coming Sunday will deal with the development of our Christian character. We desire your presence at the services both morning and evening. You will be welcome.

OREGON BOY WINS U. S. 4-H HONOR

Walter Jaeger Places Second in Livestock at Chicago; Record of Winners Told.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 30—Carl Oldham, 19-year-old Charlottesville, Hancock county, Indiana, club boy, has been named the Prince of junior animal husbandmen, the national committee on Boys and Girls club work announced today. He is the national winner in the 4-H Meat Animal Livestock Project contest conducted to pick America's most outstanding livestock club members.

On Monday evening, November 30, Carl was awarded a $300 agricultural college scholarship in recognition of this achievement by Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer, livestock breeder and chairman of the national committee on boys and girls club work, who sponsored this contest. Two other national winners will be honored at this banquet given annually by Mr. Wilson to the delegates attending the 4-H club congress. They are Walter Jaeger, age 20, Sherwood, Clackamas county, Oregon, and Harold P. Hamilton, age 19, Pine Plains, Dutchess county, New York, who will receive a $200 and $100 college scholarship as the second and third national respectively.

The records of the livestock club enterprises of these three boys were the most outstanding of 36 state champions determined in this contest. As sectional winners, they have received educational trips to the national 4-H club congress held annually in connection with the International Livestock exposition at Chicago. The contestants in this livestock production contest were scored on the record of their club work completed in baby beef, purebred beef animal, market pig, purebred hog, market lamb or purebred sheep projects conducted under the supervision of the extension services of state agricultural colleges and the United States department of agriculture.

Carl Oldham has been a 4-H club member for 10 years. In this time he has developed a fine herd of 14 purebred Spotted Poland China sows and a flock of 30 registered Shropshire sheep on the home farm. He has made a net profit of $604.98 from total receipts of $1,942.65 in his livestock club enterprises. He has also won $998.50 in prizes by exhibiting his stock.

Walter Jaeger has completed 10 years of 4-H club work in baby beef, sheep and pig club projects. He has fed out and marketed 10 head of baby beef, 58 head of hogs and 14 market lambs in his club projects during this period. His livestock club enterprises for this year included 11 head of sheep, 26 pigs and four baby beefs. From total receipts of $6,822.26, he has made a net profit of $3,954.50 in his feeding operations. His show winnings total $992.00.

Harold P. Hamilton is a junior in high school and has been a 4-H club member for six years. He now owns six beef breeding animals and a nice foundation herd of Angus cattle. He selected his first purebred heifer in 1927 from the herd of Briarcliff farms. This year he owned eight animals. His club records show a net profit of $767.26 from $2,812.33 gross receipts in his livestock club enterprises. In addition he has won $282.00 in prizes.
