

STATE CORN BELT SEEN BY LEADERS

College Specialists Believe Crop Holds Promise of Profit for Large State Acreage.

"A Crop for 200,000 Oregon Acres" is the way E. R. Jackman, extension crops specialist at Oregon State college, speaks of field corn. This description is now used as the title of a mimeographed booklet containing articles on corn growing in Oregon and published by the Loggers and Contractors Machinery company of Portland for free distribution.

This booklet, which contains no advertising, is made up of seven articles originally prepared by members of the Oregon State college staff for use over the radio, together with two other articles, one by a farmer telling his experience in corn growing, and the other giving a brief history of corn growing in Oregon.

"Can Oregon grow corn in competition with the middle west?" asks Mr. Jackman. "The answer is no, but we do not need to." Washington and Oregon alone import 150,000 tons of corn from the middle west states, so the price here is always far above the corn belt price. It would take roughly 200,000 acres to make up this deficit in corn."

Jackman points out that in western Oregon at least a farmer can raise as many or more bushels of corn to the acre as wheat, and far more pounds of corn than of oats and at less cost of production per hundred pounds. He also shows that Oregon needs corn badly as a cultivated crop. Other college articles in the publication are as follows:

"The Place for Corn in Oregon Agriculture," by G. R. Hyalop, chief in farm crops; "Artificial Drying of Corn," by F. E. Price, agricultural engineer; "Growing Corn in Oregon," by W. J. Gilmore, head of agricultural engineering department; "Growing Oregon's Corn Crop," by E. N. Bressman, associate professor of farm crops; "The Use of Corn in Poultry Feeding," by A. G. Lunn, chief in poultry husbandry; "Oregon vs. the Corn Belt in Corn Production," by Clyde Walker, assistant professor of agricultural engineering. Other articles are "Our Experience in Growing Corn," by R. V. Stockton, Sheridan; and "Geographic Location of Corn Growing in Oregon," by C. I. Saranous, Portland. Requests for this booklet should be sent direct to the Portland firm.

The Catholic people hold services at 10:30 a. m., the second Sunday in each month at the Paul O'Meara home.

Brother Snodderly of the Pentecostal mission of Heppner holds preaching services at the mission in Ione each Saturday evening and Sunday morning. All are invited to attend these services.

The Pentecostal mission building here is being papered and re-painted on the inside, all work being donated by the friends.

All Union Sunday school meetings are being held this month in the Congregational church. The February meetings will be in the Christian church and the March meetings in the Baptist church. Plans are already underway for the Easter program, March 27.

The members and friends of the Young People's union held a pot-luck dinner at the Christian church Sunday evening. The religious services of the union were held at the usual time, and this was followed by a social hour.

At the regular meeting of Wil-lows grange next Saturday night at Cecil hall, the retiring officers are to furnish the entertainment for the other members of the order.

Through the efforts of Chas. W. Smith, county agent, a meeting of interest to all farmers will be held in Legion hall, Ione, Friday, Jan. 23, starting promptly at 2 o'clock p. m. Speakers for the afternoon are D. E. Stephens, H. A. Lindgren, E. R. Jackman and Mr. Smith.

Wednesday evening at 6:30 the students of the high school had a pot-luck supper at the school house. After supper games were played until about 9 o'clock.

In the primary room those neither absent nor tardy during the past six weeks are, first grade, David Rietmann, Freda Ball, Ernest McCabe, Helen Blake, Marianna Corley, Delmar Crawford, Iris King; second grade, Robert Perry, Van Rietmann and Glen Wardell.

Dinner guests at the Carl Feldman ranch home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. John Turner, Nell Shuirman and Harold Buhman, all of Heppner.

Relatives here have received word that Albert Petteys of Court Rock is making a satisfactory recovery following the operation he underwent recently in a Portland hospital.

Ione News of 16 Years Ago.

In the Ione Independent of April 6, 1918, published by Walter E. Cochran, we read that the Ione high school boys won the first baseball game of the season, defeating Heppner by a score of 12-4. . . (Continued from First Page.)

This is a public party and everyone is invited to come. Admission will be 25 cents and will include playing and refreshments. Playing starts at 8 o'clock. There will be a party in the lodge rooms for the young folks not wishing to play cards.

Lester White has accepted a position with the Standard Oil service station at Heppner. Mr. and Mrs. White moved there last week and are living in the Jones apartment house.

James Leach and Russell Wright motored to Portland Tuesday on business.

Social ride neighborhood met Saturday night with Mrs. and Mrs. George Peck. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Campbell from Heppner were outside guests and Mr. Campbell pleased the crowd with his violin playing. The evening was spent dancing and playing cards. Lunch was served at midnight.

Last Saturday as Gus McMillan and family were returning from Heppner they came up over a raise in the highway below the Pedro place and loose horses were in the road just ahead of them. On account of the icy condition of the road the car skidded when the brakes were applied and as a result one wheel was broken down, also one fender and one glass.

Luckily the occupants escaped with only minor cuts and bruises. A hard times dance will be given at the hall Saturday night, Jan. 30, by the H. E. club of the grange. Everyone must be dressed in hard time costumes or pay a fine of 10 cents. Admission 50 cents for men and 25 cents for women. Prizes will be awarded to the best dressed couple representing hard times. Music by the Cecil orchestra.

Fred Painter was in town Monday from his home near Hermiston. Mrs. George Peck entertained the H. E. club at a dinner and an all-day meeting last Thursday.

The following ladies were present: Mesdames Palmer, Devine, Cutsforth, Nichols, Cox, Munkers, Miller, Gray, Snouss, Keene, Snyder, Olden, Lane, Dinges, Allyn, Nelson, Van Winkle, Martin, Campbell, Miller, Brown, Shrievers, Rice, Kelly and Wright.

Bud Nolan has returned to the George Peck ranch after spending some time in Idaho.

The athletic club played the scrubs Monday night and defeated them 79-40. The athletics will play the Heppner town team Wednesday night at Heppner.

Carl Davis is working on the Henderson brothers garage this week. They are getting ready to concrete the floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shaw and Jessie McCabe were shopping in Pendleton Tuesday.

The Lucas home was the scene of a lively dinner party last Sunday evening when Miss Florence Emmons and Lyle Riggs entertained 14 of their lone friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Helms and son Gerald from Echo visited a couple of days last week here with relatives and friends.

Oregon Art Course Again Receives Carnegie Award

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 13.—The University of Oregon in the west and Harvard University in the east have again been chosen in summer session teacher training centers in art by the Carnegie Corporation and the American Institute of Architects. It is announced by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University. The grant, which is used both for scholarships and for providing instruction and material, has also been increased for Oregon from $5,000 for the session to $7,500.

Scholarships will be given by the Carnegie Corporation to a large number of college instructors in art and to others in this field, and these will tend to build up the graduate school and further improve the quality of students. Dr. Hall points out.

ON OREGON FARMS

Hood River—Indications that the famous Hood River apples may in the not distant future give place to pears as a major crop of the county are found in summaries of an orchard census begun in 1930 by County Agent A. L. Marble. To date 408 farms have been covered, and a heavy trend toward pears has been found. Mr. Marble believes that pear shipments may exceed apples within a few years. Cherry planting has shown the greatest percentage increase.

Canyon City—Farmers of the Prairie City district seem to be gradually shifting from Victory oats to the Markton variety. Victory oats have given exceedingly good yields, but during the past two years have been late in maturing, and it is hoped that the Markton variety will take care of this deficiency. County Agent R. G. Johnson recently obtained three tons of this variety to distribute among J. S. Guttridge, Prairie City; Dick Shouten, Fox Valley; Julius Shields, Long Creek; C. M. Johnson, Hamilton, and Dick Musgrave, Top. Plans for ordering another truck load are under way.

WANTED—Salesman with car, to establish and operate Rowleigh Routes in Counties of Morrow, Grant, Parts of Umatilla, City of Pendleton. Steady workers can start earning $35 weekly and increase rapidly. Hustlers on similar routes do $6,000 annual business. Reply immediately giving age, occupation, references. Rawleigh Industries, Dept. OR-18-T, Oakland, Calif.

Teacher—Fred, if I said "I am beautiful," what tense would it be? Fred—Past.

NOTICE OF SALE OF ANIMAL.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the laws of the State of Oregon I have taken up the following described animal found running at large on my premises in Morrow County, State of Oregon; and that I will on Saturday, the 30th day of January, 1932, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at my place on Rock creek, mile below Parkers Mill, Oregon, offer for sale and sell the said animal to the highest bidder for cash in hand, unless the said animal shall have been redeemed by the owner or owners thereof. Said animal is described as follows:

One sorrel gelding, about 7 years old, weight about 950 pounds and branded XI on right shoulder.

Too Busy With the Store!
"For also there is the man that neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes." Ecc. 8:16.

A little boy was looking out of the window at the starlit heavens pondering, perhaps, on the great world beyond.

"Mamma," he said, suddenly, "will I go to heaven some day?"

"Yes, dear, if you are good," "And will you be there?" "I hope so, and Papa, too," she added.

The little boy shook his head positively. "No," he said, "Papa won't be there; he couldn't leave the store."

And the great tragedy of this day is that there are thousands of fine men and women who are so engrossed with the one thing they are doing, that they think they are TOO BUSY for other things. They have no time for Church or home, or to think about heaven. They cannot "leave the store."

There is the business man so wrapped up in his business and his fraternal organizations that he cannot afford time for anything else. There is the woman who is so busy with her social and other material engagements that she has no time for the things that lead toward heaven. Yes, there are thousands of men and women who are so busy with this or that particular thing that they think they have no time for other things.

Robert Burdette said: "One of the great curses of our present day is that everybody is too busy to get off on one side away from the crowd, for awhile, and get acquainted with yourself." And it might be added, too busy to get acquainted with anyone else. So busy, as Solomon puts it, that they scarcely see sleep day or night. If you want to know the meaning of life and the real joy of living, do not be so busy with the material things of life that you neglect the finer, the better things of life—the spiritual man. Arrange your affairs so you can leave the store at any time.

At the close of the Communion Service next Lord's Day morning, will be held the Baptismal Service for those who have recently made the Good Confession.

Sermon subjects for the coming Lord's Day are: Morning service, "A Plea for Christ." Evening service, "Complete."

87% Students Earn Way Urged to Stay in School

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 13.—Although jobs of any sort are as hard for students to find as they are for others, a total of 87.5 percent of men and women attending the University of Oregon are wholly or partially self-supporting, statistics issued by Earl M. Pallett, registrar, show. Of the nearly 3,000 students on the campus at Eugene, 797, or 37 percent are wholly self-supporting. About one-third of this number are women.

In the present unemployment situation it is highly desirable that young men and women stay in school, educators point out, rather than seek full time employment. In this way, more work will be available for others, and the students will also be benefited by added education.

Student "jobs" range from washing dishes in sorority houses to clerking and even acting as expert accountants for business firms. Employment is controlled by a central agency on the campus, which seeks to place competent students in the various positions.

Foxy Farmer Augments Wheatraising With Foxes

Dwight Misner of Lone has taken a new departure in conducting a Morrow county wheat ranch which adds to his reputation of doing the unusual. Once a traveling salesman, he surprised his friends by becoming a farmer, and once he became addicted to scratching the dirt he ever applied latest methods.

Thus deserving the name of fox, it now comes not so much as a surprise to his friends, that Mr. Misner should choose company of his kind. His latest departure is the addition of seven silver foxes to his north lone wheat holdings, including 5 females and 2 dogs.

Using the Can Opener.
The modern cook has often and mercilessly been ridiculed for an extensive use of the can opener. But the pendulum of knowledge is swinging back and proves that the housewife has been wise after all.

Did you ever stop to think what your winter menu would be like if there were no canned foods? Our forefathers contented their appetites with quantities of corn and wheat bread, molasses, salt meats and sometimes potatoes, a diet which was ill-balanced and very monotonous, calling for great doses of sassafras tea or molasses and sulfur in the spring. Of course, we would not be so destitute for fresh foods as they due to the improved methods of refrigeration, dehydration and winter gardening with rapid transportation.

There has been some question about the food value of canned foods in comparison to fresh. Experiments were carried on for a year by eminent nutrition research workers and it was found that an all-canned diet is adequate to maintain good health.

The food value of canned foods is equal to that of the same foods prepared at home. The food is either hot when put into the can or is heated before the can is sealed. When the food is hot, the cans are sealed and sterilized by heat. This preheating of canned foods is important because it drives most of the oxygen from the cans. This helps to preserve the valuable Vitamin C content of the food. Dr. E. V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins university says that the major factor in the destruction of vitamin C during cooking is oxidation. It has been shown that in canning, after a certain amount of preliminary destruction, subsequent heatings has very little effect in further destruction. The vitamin C content of canned fruits and vegetables appears to be much greater than that of fresh foods which are cooked in the usual manner.

Another idea about canned foods that has been disproved is that it is harmful to leave foods in an open can. This is not true. In general, foods remain in better condition until eaten if the unused portion is left in the can. Spoilage results from exposure to dust, air, and bacteria with which any dish may be covered. There is nothing about the can that will contribute to spoilage. The tarnish on the inside of cans in which foods are packed is due to a thin coating of tin sulfide and is harmless. The higher the protein content of foods the more of it is formed.

And so the next time someone makes fun of you for using your efficient can opener, you can come back with a good argument!

"She says she thinks she could learn to love me."
"Yet you do not look happy."
"It is going to be expensive. Had her to the theater last night, with a little supper afterward. The first lesson cost me $25."
