Official Paper for Morrow County.

WORTHWHILE.

IN THESE days when we hear so much talk about wayward youth and the necessity of providing supervised entertainment for young folks it is heartening to see the large number of boys and girls who are doing things on their own initiative.

In Morrow county some such outlets have been provided through 4-H club work and the Boy Scout movement. There may be others, but to witness accomplishments of the boys and girls in these fields, to see their interest and enthusiasm, and to perceive the manner in which they solve their own problems, is enlightening.

It is well for the mature individual, in considering the youth "problem," to consider that boys and girls begin to reason before they enter the primer grade in school. One psychologist has said that the most important period in any individual's life is the "formative period" before the individual has reached school age.

These movements are stimulating such an interest in the young mind of Morrow county. How fine it would be if every boy and girl, on reaching the age of admission, could be enrolled in the work of such organizations, which have for their aims and ideals instilling of thorough Americanism through cultivating the ability of the individual to take care of himself in any situation, helpfulness to and cooperation with others, the building up of healthy minds and bodies, respect and love of home, and preparation for adult citizenship through training of administrative and financial abilities.

Is it conceivable that youth so prepared should furnish a problem calling for "supervised" entertainment?

THE LEGION TO THE RESCUE. IT SEEMS to us that the unemployment situation throughout the country is likely to be changed soon, now that the American Legion has got on the job.

There are somewhat more than a million men who wore the American uniform in the World War who are members of the ten thousand and more American Legion posts. Under the leadership of Henry L. Stevens, Jr., National Commander of the Legion, and with the cooperation of Matthew Wolf, Vice-President of the American Federation of Labor, a movement has begun having for its avowed purpose the placing of at least one million men, now out of work, in jobs. Cooperating with the Legion and the Federation are such organizations as the Association of National Advertisers, and all of the important press associations, news syndicates and other agencies of publicity.

We think this is going to be a successful campaign, although it is only just starting. We think also that it is a splendid thing for the American Legion to undertake. We can think of no finer patriotic service which these men who once wore Uncle Sam's uniform could perform, than to come to the rescue of an international crisis like this.

There has been some criticism of the Legion in the past, because some of its spokesmen have given the impression that they were more concerned with bonuses and beer, than with unselfish public service. We hope that this movement for the relief of unemployment will not only put an end to that criticism, but that it will turn out to be the beginning of a broad, continuing policy of public service, which may make the American Legion the most powerful influence in the United States, for the betterment and maintenance of social and economic conditions.

IT LOOKS LIKE A GOOD YEAR.

THE YEAR 1932 is still young, and anybody who would undertake at this early stage to forecast what is going to happen between now and next Christmas is either a fool or a better prophet than we are. But as far as we can see from here, the year has started off more hopefully than 1931. We are inclined to look ahead with the same confidence that was exhibited by the old lady who used to say that she had noticed that if she lived through February she always lived through the rest of the year.

It seems to us that the work which has been done at Washington so far, and the other remedial legislation that is apparently certain of passage, has already done a great deal toward relieving fear in the business and financial world. There is at least a feeling of hopefulness, which was almost lacking a few months ago.

It is hard to blame people for being apprehensive when there seems to be no encouragement ahead. It is hard for a man to keep up his courage in the dark. It took a long time for most people to realize that what we had all been dreading by the false prosperity of a few years ago. Money was easy, jobs were plenty, wages were high, and as it turns out now, even the men whom we regarded as wise and intelligent leaders in business and finance were fooled, like the rest of us, into believing that these conditions could go on indefinitely. Most of us spent money recklessly, and a lot of us were greatly surprised when we discovered that the old natural laws were still in force. It turns out that the old fable of the ant and the grasshopper still provides the safest guide for human beings.

From all we hear and observe, we think that people generally have got over the notion that there is an easy road to sudden wealth. Folks we know are much more willing to working hard and living within their means than they were three years ago. We know a good many who were never fooled, and they are the ones who are still sitting pretty today. And, as we said in the beginning, all the signs we can read point in the direction of better times ahead. It looks to us as if, along around 1936, we may be looking back on 1932 as the year when the biggest of all our national prosperity waves began. For one thing is certainly true, and that is that the United States has never failed to come back from periods of depression stronger and more prosperous than ever before.

government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

The FAMILY DOCTOR by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

DERMAL CYSTS

A disfiguring thing is a "wen." It is a tumor on the head, beneath the scalp. We find them more often in women of middle age or beyond. They are painless, unless bruised or irritated. They are harmless, and their chief offense is in their disfigurement. No lady, no matter what her age, wants to go around with a tumor of the scalp the size of a small Irish potato, and sticking up through her hair—which they generally do.

The "sebaceous cyst" of the minor surgeon is easily removed, with little inconvenience or suffering on the part of the patient. I use no anaesthetic in removing them. I merely paint the scalp over and about them with tincture of iodine; then, with the very sharpest of little knives, I make an incision down to the sac, or investing membrane of the tumor. The patient does not feel any disturbing pain. Once down to the white, shiny layer, I take a blunt dissector and "shell the tumor out" entire—an almost bloodless procedure. Once the mass is out completely, the operation is over. But, if the slightest particle of the membrane covering is left, the tumor is sure to return. Care must be taken to get it all.

Finally, I fill the space about the little wound with an insoluble, antiseptic powder, putting in plenty. The patient puts on her hat, pays her fee, and goes out smiling.

It's so easy to be rid of an annoying, teasing disfigurement. I have never performed a small task that gave me more grateful patients. Your doctor knows how to do it, so, when you get sufficiently tired of your wen, go and have him treat it by complete extirpation—the only successful way. Such cysts contain only cheesy, sebaceous matter.

JESUS AND THE MAN BORN BLIND John 9:1-11, 30-38

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Doubtless Jesus preferred to work in Jerusalem as it was the center of the worship of His beloved fellow Hebrews. He also loved the great open spaces and wrought therein as He had opportunity, but He knew that His atonement for the sins of mankind would be effected in the Holy City. As on other occasions, crowds throng about and there are plenty to ask what they hope will be puzzling questions. A blind beggar is in sight and the query is raised about the cause of his affliction, for they sought to relate all present affliction to some sin in the past. That question was answered in the book of Job, but, as today, many would rather raise questions than to believe in the Lord.

Jesus did not look upon the man as a mere exhibit in the argument. It is safe to say that while the conversation was going on coins were not cast into the hand of the needy man by those who were on-lookers. In a miracle of healing Jesus placed a mould of clay over the sightless eyes and bade the mendicant "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam." Perfect sight was the result of the man's exact obedience and the power of the Almighty.

Then tongues began to wag and no age has a premium on this kind of procedure. The jibers tried to implicate the parents when they did not get a satisfactory answer from the man so joyously restored. Meanwhile in all frankness glory was given to God. In place of rejecting, the temple authorities cast him out. Then it was that Jesus sought him again and by a gift of sight to the soul opened the utmost glories of the Kingdom of God unto him. The Golden Text has a universal application: "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life," John 8:12.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter.

Again we find the argument put up by the wets that the restoration of booze would help the farmer. In 1914 the distilleries located at Peoria purchased less than 8,000,000 bushels of corn. In 1929, two food product and industrial alcohol plants, which have succeeded the distilleries, purchased 22,525,000 bushels. These figures are given out by the Board of Trade. In 1917 milk produced for beverage and household use in the United States amounted to thirty-six and a half billion pounds. In 1924 production had increased to fifty-four and one-third billion pounds, an increase of over 50 per cent, as shown by the year book of the Department of Agriculture. As Walter H. Lloyd, editor of the Ohio Farmer, says, "It takes more grain to make a quart of milk than to make a quart of beer."

As a sidelight on some of the benefits of prohibition, the average death rate from tuberculosis per 100,000 of the population for the ten years prior to the adoption of prohibition was 151. The average for the first five years under prohibition was 106. In 1924 the rate dropped to 94. The rate of 1918, the last wet year, was 150. The rate for 1919, the first dry year was 129. Dr. J. Wesley Ohorn, of Sibley hospital, comments: "Note the great drop in deaths in the first year of prohibition. Some say this was due to education, but it is strange that there were no marked results until the first year under prohibition. If there were no other beneficial results, this one item would make prohibition worth while."

Dr. Arthur R. Cushing, Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacology in the University of Edinburgh, says: "Even the smallest quantities of alcohol tend to lessen the activity of the brain, the drug appearing to act most strongly, and therefore in the smallest quantities, on the most recently acquired faculties, to annihilate these qualities that have been built up thru education and experience, the power of self-control and sense of responsibility."

The author of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, said: "The habit of using ardent spirits by men in office has occasioned more injury to the public and more trouble to me than all other sources. And were I to commence my administration again, the first question I would ask respecting a candidate for office would be, 'Does he use ardent spirits?'"
