Official Paper for Morrow County. MUST HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF. SO FAR man has not proved sufficiently wise to be able to gain-say the old adage, "History repeats itself."

In the wake of every great war since a record has been kept of man's activity on earth, there has come a period of business stagnation featured by a lowering of standards in all lines of human endeavor. During these periods few works of literature or art of lasting quality have been produced, and few advancements made in the pure sciences.

Space does not permit of a discussion of all the contributing factors which brought about these past periods, had the writer the knowledge. But it is the generally accepted belief that a repetition of them with lesser force, due to accumulated lessons of civilization, has taken place when contributing factors were similar.

Since the founding of the United States of America, and the protecting of all rights of the individual under their constitution, there has undoubtedly been experienced one of the greatest revivals of learning in history, upset at times by conflict, it is true, but the history of this period reveals a general incline in the products of man's mind.

At least this seems true up to the time of the World War, as an effect of which we are now experiencing a depression the magnitude and results of which will not be known for some time.

There are signs which might lead one to believe we are entering a second dark age. Dictatorships in government are on the increase, and state socialism spreading ever wider and wider.

Let sociologists deal with the causes of crime, the influences that make criminals out of boys. But let us all take a practical, commonsense view of the punishment for crime. At all costs let us back up our law-enforcement agencies, let us clear the statute books of the laws which protect the criminal, let us speed up our criminal trials and place men on the bench who will show no mercy to those who deserve none, and then let us consider whether the old-fashioned whipping-post, the stocks and the pillory, which held the convicted criminal up to public disgrace and shame, may not be as effective deterrents of crime as the gallows, the electric chair or the penitentiary.

The outstanding characteristic of the modern criminal gangster is his vanity. Destroy that and you have destroyed his chief incentive to crime. "Two-Gun" Crowley went to the electric chair a hero in his own eyes and in those of his child-mind admirers. Gerald Chapman, murderer, is a figure of greatness among youthful crooks because he smiled when the trap was sprung. Would crime seem heroic, criminals heroes, if Crowley had been flogged in public and Chapman exposed to public contempt in the stocks? We think not. We think that punishment to be effective should be so shameful that dread of their disgrace will deter even the most hardened.

Oregon where the people will labor to serve the state instead of the state laboring to serve the people, with the dictates of one man holding their destiny.

Such is the direction in which the state's ship is headed under the policy of unification. Unification means centralization of control—tending more and more toward the hands of the governor.

Governor Meier may prove a "benevolent monarch." We are not condemning him. The danger lies in the system, under which it is possible for a half dozen people, few if any of whom have obtained the Ph.D.—no lesser credential should be considered from one attempting such a task—to kick over our present higher educational system on a plea of enforced economy.

The plan has been termed a "Noble Experiment." That which is noble can have for its only purpose the attainment of higher ideals. This plan contemplates only securing somewhere near satisfactory results by attempted mass education for the purpose of glorifying the Almighty dollar.

Our institutions of higher education are the backbone and stamina of human progress within the borders of our state. Our state college and university have been brought into the front ranks of the colleges and universities of the nation under their present leadership, under men who have labored and sacrificed for ideals, not dollars.

How He Hates to Pull the Trigger — By Albert T. Reid men tell us. As fast as money and credit begin to circulate freely again people will be able to buy. We are not all going to get rich in a hurry, but the pessimism of a few months ago has given place to optimism almost everywhere, and we believe it is safe to say that the economic skies are getting brighter.

Early Lamb Crop Small In All Western States

Oregon State College, Corvallis, March 16.—A smaller early lamb crop in all the western states with as much as a 10 per cent decrease in California and from 3 to 5 per cent for the country as a whole was indicated in the special government report on early lambs issued by the Oregon State college extension service.

The report for Oregon says that weather conditions all over the state during the winter were unfavorable and feed was short in many sections. Ewes in early lamb bands were in rather poor condition and losses of both ewes and lambs were above average.

New crop lambs were offered in Portland March 9 for the first time this season. They sold as high as $10 per hundredweight. The bulk of the old crop woolled lambs sold in Portland at $5.50 to $6 and up during the week ending March 12, which represents a gain of about $1.50 since the middle of December.
