Some time ago a professor, a scientist, lecturing on evolution, expressed scorn for mere religionists morphology, physiology, embryology, ecology, paleontology and gen-

If the professor started out to intimidate average folks with a parade of his "ologies," he surely succeeded as far as most of us are

In his lecture the very learned professor, (purblind with overmuch knowledge), declared that man differed from the brute creation only in degree. Arrogantly he brushed aside as impossible of acceptance by any man of science the idea conveyed by the Book of Genesis that man differs from the animal in

And yet that idea has been accepted by many able scientists. Among them the following: Mendel, the formulator of the law of heredity; Linnaeus, the father of modern botany; Versalius, the father of modern anatomy; Wasmann, the great authority on in-sects; Muller, the father of modern physiology; Malpighi, the founder of the science of pathology; Pasteur, the greatest of the world's bacteriologists; Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium.

And many evolutionists, while holding the THEORY that man's present physical form was reached through a long process of evolution, accept the Bible idea that he became a rational, spiritual being by a distinct act of Divine creation. And so far as evolution is concerned, it can never be anything more than just a THEORY; for nothing has ever equiled, in philosophical integrity, or in scientific authority, the simple language of the Bible concerning the origin of man: 'And the Lord formed man out of the dust of the earth, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and he became a living soul." This terse account can never be improved upon by science. It does not tell us the exact method, nor the exact time required, nor can science ever tell us even this much definite and certain about either of these things. All the so-called "LEARNED PRO-FESSORS" of earth may hoot at the Bible idea that man is a distinct 'creation, different from the animal in KIND; and yet no other idea is worthy of a being of such moral and spiritual dignity as that which man possesses. As we come now to the celebration of the triumphant resurrection West Coast Co., Jus. Ct. .... Tilden Williams was a caller in Of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus C. J.
