If We Had No Temptations.

"Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life." James 1-12. In the old legend called The Quest of the Holy Grail, two characters attract our attention—Galahad and Parsifal. The most significant difference between the two is that Galahad wins with ease but Parsifal wins with difficulty. In his quest for the Grail, Galahad goes as one on a holiday journey. He encounters no enemies, meets no temptations, experiences no conflicts. But not so of Parsifal; from the very start he has a struggle. Enemies challenge every foot of his way. Temptations beset him on every side. When he reaches the Grail he is weary, hurt, bleeding, footsore. And we recognize as the hero of the legend, not Galahad, but Parsifal. The reason lies in the nature of the case. Valor untested is no valor. Untempted virtue is at best what Milton calls "a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies forth and sees her adversary." For the training of moral beings, temptation, (and the winning over it) is necessary. It is thru meeting and winning over temptation that we gain moral strength and a developed manhood.

Galahad is born good and stays good and for that we admire him. But we are not certain of what the result would be, should he come to a wrestling match with the tempter. But of Parsifal we entertain no doubt. From many such wrestling matches he has come off more than victor. We recognize in him the virtue of proved manhood, not merely of untried innocence. And to him goes the victor's crown. If we had no foes to vanquish we would never be victors. There would be no triumphs to our credit if we had no temptations. And remember this:

"There has no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it." 1st Cor. 10-13.

Come to Church here if you are not otherwise affiliated. For the coming Lord's Day a full day of services; so come and enjoy them with us. For the morning service the sermon topic will be: "Disregarded Signals." For the evening service: "God's Plan of a Christian."

MAKE FINE CATCH.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Merrill displayed a dozen beautiful large eastern brook and rainbow trout in the window of the Bibby pastime the first of the week. The fish were part of a catch made at Paulino and East lakes in Deschutes county last week. Mrs. Merrill hooked the largest fish of the lot, a 12-inch rainbow weighing an even two pounds, but Mr. Merrill helped her haul it out of the water. She hooked still a bigger one. Mr. Merrill said, which he would gamble measured 30 inches at least—but it got away.

Business Man Makes Strong Statement

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Robt. A. Strate, prominent business man here, recently said: "I suffered for ten years with as bad a case of stomach trouble as any man ever had. It was impossible for me to enjoy a single meal without suffering. Five bottles of Sargon made me feel like a new man. I have never found anything to equal Sargon Soft Mass Pills. They regulated me perfectly and relieved me of constipation of years standing."

Are you a well-informed person? In every issue this newspaper is filled with news. And our experience is that the news which interests you most is the news which affects you most. When one of your friends has participated in a minor accident, you are more interested in that than in a major accident in another city. Advertising, too, is news of the first importance. It affects you. I is intimate, local news addressed to you. It deals with your comforts, your pleasures and your business. It saves you time by telling you where the merchandise is. It saves you money by announcing fair prices. It is the guide to efficient spending. When you fail to read the advertisements, you do not keep up with the news which is most important to you. You miss many opportunities. The best-informed people are those who read the advertisements regularly. In fact, in this modern age, you cannot ignore the advertisements in your newspaper and still be well-informed.
