CHANGING THE CONSTITUTION

Autocaster Service. The conventions are over and the Presidential campaign of 1932 is under way.

By the time the spellbinders of both parties have begun to get into action it may be that people will get all excited over such important issues as tax reduction and government economy, and a lot of other things which both parties endorse in different language in their platforms.

As long as there is so much talk and excitement in various parts of the country about this question, it is probably just as well to take steps to find out whether the people of the United States, or any considerable majority of them want a change the dry laws or not.

The only way to bring them out is by the means that both parties propose, that of submitting an amendment to conventions called in the different states solely for the purpose of considering a change and so giving every voter a chance to vote for either wet or dry delegates as he prefers.

THE ROAD IS LONG, COMING BACK

Autocaster Service. The only thing that keeps most of us from realizing our own possibilities and of getting the highest satisfaction out of life is fear.

There are very few human beings in the world who are not afraid of something, and as long as one is afraid of anything he cannot achieve perfect happiness.

Primitive man must have lived in a state of almost constant terror. He was afraid of wild beasts, afraid of enemies of other tribes, afraid of the thunder and lightning, afraid of evil spirits that lurked in the darkness of the forest—of real dangers and of unreal dangers which he imagined.

Sunday School Lesson

THE PASSOVER Exodus 12:21-28 Golden Text: I Cor. 5:7 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

One of the first impressions which will come to the reverent student of the Bible is the unity of the Book. It has one theme from beginning to end: Redemption. There is no subject which is prominent in the New Testament which is not foreshadowed in the Old.

The Passover is an Old Testament version of what becomes the central truth of the New Testament—God's plan of salvation. As one looks closely at the narrative each word is charged with spiritual meaning; the whole Gospel story is mirrored in a few verses. Egypt is a clear type of the world of sin, and Israel a type of unsaved men and women.

The Passover lamb is a wonderful type of Christ, while the sprinkled blood speaks of His atoning sacrifice. That this is the true method of interpretation is shown by our Golden Text, "For Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us," also by such passages as, "Now all these things happened unto them for examples (types)" I Cor. 10:11.

The deepest spiritual lesson, of course, is that which concerns the result of simple obedience to God's saving plan. Those individuals or families of Israel, who took God at His word and evidenced their faith by seeking the shelter of the blood sprinkled door, were infallibly secure, good or bad, wise or ignorant, strong or weak, rich or poor, bound or free.

The truth taught in this lesson lies at the heart of all that the Bible teaches. The one who apprehends the meaning and unmeasured efficacy of the blood-sprinkled lintel insures, will have the key to the greatest mysteries of Scripture. He will, too, have found for himself the pearl of great price.

of the thunder and lightning, afraid of evil spirits that lurked in the darkness of the forest—of real dangers and of unreal dangers which he imagined. Very few people in these days have the perfectly natural physical fears that surrounded the lives of our ancestors. But who of us has not some mental fear, fear of something that has not happened but which we think may happen to ourselves or our loved ones?

In the past two or three years the people of the United States have been the prey of a new kind of fear. They have been afraid that, in the popular phrase, the bottom had dropped out of everything. They have feared that never again would they have a job, that the factories that have shut down would never start up, that they would never be able to sell the products of their farms—those and a thousand other fears which have no relation to common sense or reality seemed to take possession of perhaps the majority of Americans.

And that is one of the reasons we have been so slow in coming back from the economic crisis. We have been afraid to use our intelligence and common sense and go ahead when everybody else was afraid to do anything but accept conditions as they are and paint them, mentally, much worse than they are.

We see signs that this widespread fear is beginning to disappear. We do not believe it ever had any real foundation, and we believe people are beginning to wake up to that fact. If we are right, and hope and courage are beginning to replace fear, then we have made a good start toward the return of good times.

The FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"HEAT STROKE"

In all accidents, I have found the ounce of prevention to be worth many pounds of cure; the best time to lock the garage securely is before the car is stolen.

Heat Stroke—being overheated until we succumb—is a most unfortunate accident. Of course the results of such a thing depend on the strength and "resistance" of the body, the condition of heart, liver, kidneys and other vital organs, as well as the age of the patient, and the extent or degree of overheating.

The accident may occur in the hay-field, at the bench in the shop, or in the canning-factory, in the super-heated retail store,—in fact anywhere that the heat may be empowering and the toil too exacting for the worker. It is only proper here for me to touch the subject in a general, yet practical way.

Symptoms—of course collapse of the bodily energy. The pupils of the eyes may be dilated, indicating brain weakness; the pulse rapid, the breathing deep at first. Severer forms soon develop shallow breathing, with irregular and feeble pulse, and the pupils may become contracted. Involuntary evacuations may occur, with muscular twitchings, cold sweat, and even convulsions—depending on the severity of the heat-stroke.

First Aid—remove the patient to the coolest place available, where the air circulates freely; open the clothing; give plenty of cool—not iced—water, if the patient will accept it. Notice that, in extreme cases of collapse, the temperature falls below normal, and cold sweat occurs—the appearance of a fatal issue; it then becomes necessary to apply warmth to the body. The attendants should do everything possible to turn matters "about face." That is safe to do always. Call the doctor.

Karl W. Farnsworth has left the state tuberculosis hospital at The Dalles and is at home with his family in that city. This information was sent from the hospital last week, and indicates the great progress made by Mr. Farnsworth on the way back to health. He was watermaster in Wallawa county formerly and was taken ill after arduous work in performance of his duties. The family moved to The Dalles to be near him after he had gone to the hospital.—Enterprise Record Chieftain.

THEY MUST BE GOOD. When you consider that MONARCH CANNED FOODS have been favorites of the American public for more than 60 years you can come to but one conclusion—"THEY MUST BE GOOD" QUALITY FOODS ALWAYS AT Huston's Grocery SNAILS what are they?

Many an unsophisticated tourist in France has eaten and enjoyed what the bill-of-fare called "escargots," only to learn afterward with disgust that he had eaten snails. This popular French delicacy is under discussion in Paris, where the officials are trying to decide whether they are game, fish or domestic animals.

The wild snails of Burgundy are getting scarce, and snail-lovers invoked the game laws to protect them. But, said the logical French functionaries, anything that you pull off a wall with your fingers cannot be "game." One friend of the snail said they might be classified as "horned beasts." Another said they should be grouped with oysters and other shell-fish.

In the meantime, anybody who wants to be sure of getting a dish of snails of the finest, in the best French style of cooking, would better make his trip to France soon, lest the edible varieties become extinct under the pursuit of ruthless hunters!

MANY ARE GOING "BACK TO FARM"

The records of the sales of farm lands by the federal land bank of Spokane give evidence of a widespread "back to the land movement." More farms were sold thru-out Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana last month than in any other June in the bank's history.

E. M. Ehrhardt, president of the bank, said, "Last June saw a sale of $170,277 worth of land held by the bank in this district. The nearest approach to this figure came in the June of 1927, when it was $146,161. "April of this year was the highest April the farm sales department of the bank has ever had, $263,622 worth of land being sold, an amount surpassed in only three months since 1925, as far as the records go."

The bank has had most of its success in disposing of lands in Ferry, Stevens and Okanogan counties, where 21 farms have been sold so far this year, and in the section in the vicinity of Vancouver, there were also 21 sales.

Mr. Ehrhardt and other officials of the bank look forward to record sales this year, as the total of $1,087,130 for the first six months is not far behind that of $1,300,000 for the whole of 1931. The 1930 total was $1,709,000, 1929 had $2,008,900 and 1928 $2,093,000. The expectation is that the $2,000,000 mark will be easily passed this year.

An old negro preacher was introducing a white preacher. The white preacher had offered to preach a sermon for the colored brother, and, in introducing the white preacher, the old negro could not find enough adjectives with which to praise the visitor.

"Dis noted preacher," said the old negro to his flock, "is one of de greatest preachers of de age. He knows de unknowable, he can do de undoable and he can onsew de onscrutable!"

CALL FOR WARRANTS.

Notice is hereby given that warrants numbered 1013, 1014, 1018, 1019, 1028, and 1029 of District No. 40 of Morrow County, Oregon, will be paid on presentation to the clerk of said district. Interest ceased June 27, 1932.

DEATH as a penalty

Italy was the first modern nation to abolish the death penalty for crime, nearly eighty years ago. Under Mussolini the death penalty was reestablished for certain crimes against the government, and two men were executed a few weeks ago, one for trying to kill Mussolini with a bomb.

This is sure to stir up discussion again of the effectiveness of capital punishment. We have it in almost every State, but it does not seem to prevent murder.

Italy still punishes ordinary murder with only 21 years of prison, but executes those whose acts threaten the sovereignty of the State. I personally think that if anybody is to be legally killed it would be better to inflict the death penalty on those who murder for their personal gain. The American view is—in theory at least—that the safety of the individual is more important than the safety of the Government.

THE WAY OF LIFE

BY BRUCE BARTON

Always—Something Happens

A man whose son graduated from college in June was asking what I thought about a post graduate course in the Harvard Business School.

"I don't assume any school can teach a boy how to succeed," he said. "What I want is to have my son learn something about the history of business."

He proceeded to illustrate from his own experience. Until 1904 he was a newspaper reporter, but that year he took a job with the market acturing concern of which he is now the head.

In 1907, when he was just beginning to get under way, along came a panic. "We cleared away the wreckage and started again," he said, "but in 1910 there was a strike which tied up our plants, destroyed part of our property and disrupted our trade."

"Suddenly the way, and the slump was transformed into a boom! But don't imagine the boom was any picnic. To be sure, the orders rolled in from every side, but prices of raw material sky-rocketed, our capital was limited, and I wore out my shoes and got grey headed borrowing money from one bank to pay back another."

"Then the war ended, and we took an awful beating in our inventory. Then the 1920-22 depression. Then another boom. "It would be advantageous to my boy, I believe, if he were familiar with this sequence of events, if he knew the ups and downs not only of modern business but of business through the ages. Maybe he would come into life without the illusion which has handicapped so many of us—that there is any such thing as 'normal' in the sense of permanent settled conditions and uninterrupted progress."

I thought these were very wise remarks. As far back as I can remember I have been hoping and planning for a time when I should be "comfortably fixed." At first I thought if I could ever accumulate $20,000 in good safe bonds I'd have an income of $1,000 a year and then I could look out with philosophic calm upon the foibles of the world.

The only progress I have made during the past three years has been in health. I try to ride horse back more, swim more, play more golf, and keep generally tough and supple. I'm quite sure that as long as I live I shall have to keep hustling—that just about the time I get everything nicely fixed something will happen.
