O.S.C. MAKES BEST TREE - CUT PAINT

Dr. Zeller's Formula Leads Test of 120 Kinds Tried by U. S. Forestry Bureau.

Oregon orchardists who have been using the bordeaux paint mixture recommended by Oregon State college for protecting pruning or other tree wounds from decay, now may have official assurance from the department of agriculture that this material is the best now known to science.

This paint, developed in 1926 by Dr. S. M. Zeller, plant pathologist at the experiment station, was one of 120 such preparations recently given exhaustive tests by forest pathologists of the United States department of agriculture. Dr. Zeller has just been notified that the preparation he originated proved to be the best of the entire 120 substances tried.

A report on the tests made by Dr. Rush P. Marshall, forest pathologist of the U. S. D. A., stationed at Yale, shows that the bordeaux paint such as is now used generally by Oregon orchardists has the advantage of being able to destroy the decay organisms and yet not form an air-tight or water-tight covering which leads to many complications.

So successful was the material that a commercial concern of Connecticut, the Bartlett company, is preparing to put out a dressing except that a green color will be added to make it better for use on ornamental trees. Each package will give credit to the Oregon Experiment station and Dr. Zeller for the original formula.

This tree paint is easily made on the farm by mixing raw linseed oil with commercially prepared dry bordeaux mixture. It is applied with a brush and brushed out to a thin coat. Wounds are allowed to dry off for a week before the paint is applied.

This paint has been known to remain on a tree wound and resist all sorts of weather for seven years.

Third Irrigation Tour Announced for August

The third annual irrigation tour of the Willamette valley has been arranged by the Oregon Reclamation Congress in cooperation with the state college extension service and will be held August 18 and 19.

A year ago such a tour attracted wide attention and stimulated interest in this type of farm improvement. Final plans for the tour have not yet been completed but tentative arrangements are for the trip to be made through the counties of Washington, Yamhill, Polk, Benton and Lane, with about a half day devoted to experimental irrigation plots at the state college. Less ground will be covered this year, making possible better examination of the projects visited, says Arthur King, soils specialist of the extension service, in charge of advance arrangements. The tour is open to anyone interested.

L. King, assistant to The-lma Gaylord, home demonstration agent. Individuals not on the dependent list may use the cannery and cans by paying five cents a can. Canning appointments are made with the employment manager. To date strawberries, peas cherries and raspberries have been canned. A similar cannery center has been established in an old store building in Oregon City.

Clouds and Rainbows.
"I do set My bow in the clouds," Gen. 9:13.

Every rainbow is set in a cloud. Without a cloud there could be no rainbow. The rainbow is the child of the storm. It springs from the conflict between light and darkness. It is caused by the sun shining upon the fast-falling rain.

And here is a parable. Life has its clouds and its rainbows. Never more than now. We dread the clouds, but without them we would not have the rainbows. Nothing greatly beautiful ever comes to pass in human life except there be sorrow. We sometimes wonder why there should be sorrow and suffering—why human tears must flow so freely. And yet we know very well, as a poet tells us:
"The soul would have no rainbow Had the eyes no tears."

But let us also remember this: That we must have the sun as well as cloud to make a rainbow. No cloud is ever lighted up by a rainbow except by the shining of the sun upon the cloud. And so of human suffering and sorrow: These alone cannot make rainbows in the soul. The rainbows of the soul require not only the fast-falling tears of sorrow and sadness; but also the sunshine of Christ's love, and the light of heaven; unless lighted up by divine love, then suffering and sorrow can bring to pass nothing beautiful in human life. Unless shined upon by the light of heaven, suffering and sorrow remain but a cloud of mystery and darkness.

Hence the song we often sing: "Every cloud will wear a rainbow, if your heart keeps right." Yes, we are bound to have clouds; but unless the heart is right; unless the heart is kept open to God's love, and open to the light from heaven, no cloud will bear a rainbow. So, if we have taken Christ into our lives, there will be no cloud without its rainbow.

Do you have a Church home? If not we very cordially invite you to come and worship with us. Come to our Bible School; there is a class there for you, where the Word of God is studied and taught in its purity and simplicity.

For the next Lord's Day, July 17, the sermon topics are: For the morning worship, "Who is My Neighbor?" and for the evening service, "Christ, the Saviour."
