A BIG JOB TO DO.

IN A few days the voters of Oregon will have in their hands a copy of the voter's pamphlet containing the proposed constitutional amendments and measures (with arguments) to be voted on at the general election Tuesday, November 8, 1932. A glance at the 72-page edition, filled with small print, will convince Mr. Average Voter that he has a man-sized job on his hands; so much so, in fact, that many will be discouraged from going into all the merits, pro and con, of the various measures.

The demagogue has sensed this fact and has taken advantage of the opportunity to work his wiles, relying on the inertness of the electorate and a mass of glowing propaganda, based upon public unrest, to put across measures that will work to his interest.

It is to be hoped that the demagogue will be fooled; that the electorate will not prove apathetic, but will tackle the job with rolled-up shirt sleeves and an application of the wisdom that is the American heritage from past ages. It is to be hoped that after the clouds of battle have rolled away, all intent of personal privilege contained in the reams of measures will have been obliterated, and that the general weal will have been truly served.

It is not within the province of a country newspaper to go into the merits and demerits of the various measures in detail, as much as this paper would like to render such service. Many of the measures proposed are of immense portent to the future welfare of the state. Much that is offered reeks of radicalism, which might result in chaos. For this reason, it is to be hoped that every voter will weigh the material that is furnished him at state expense. The arguments contained in the pamphlet are thorough. From them, by application of sound judgment, the voter may arrive at sound conclusions. But any conclusions arrived at by digesting only one side of an argument are not sound; and he who votes convictions so arrived at is shirking his job—he may be likened to the mason, who by putting a faulty brick into an immense building, adds one bit of weakness to cause its earlier disintegration and thus shorten the life of the structure.

A good rule to follow if one is not absolutely certain what will be the effect of adopting any measure, is to vote "no." While the existing order is not perfect, nor is it within the power of man to attain perfection, one knows what to expect. Radical changes lead to uncertainty and further economic instability. Beyond the original guarantee of the right to health, freedom and the pursuit of happiness contained in the national constitution, most laws tend to constrain the activities of our ciizens and are aimed to give some personal interest a special privilege. Mr. Average Voter should realize that he is not among the privileged class who benefit from the making of more laws, and he should be careful to vote only for such measures as he understands thoroughly and whose effects he knows will be beneficial to the public interest.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Charles E. Dunn, D. D.

Gifts for Building the Tabernacle.

Lesson for August 28.
Exodus 35:21-29

Golden Text: Proverbs 3:9.

In the passage chosen for our lesson we read of a hearty, liberal response on the part of the Hebrews to the needs of their tent meeting. "The children of Israel brought a willing offring unto the Lord," jewelry, precious metals and stones, clothing, skins, wood, spice and oil in abundance.

Such giving is a test of character. If you crave a sound understanding of the motives governing your neighbor's conduct, do not be greatly concerned over the amount he spends upon the necessities of life, but rather ask him how much of the remainder he gives to benevolent causes.

It is astonishing how vast are the sums expended in America for luxuries. We spend annually, as a people, $540,000,000 on soft drinks, more than $750,000,000 for candy, and a billion dollars for various types of amusement. Our yearly tobacco bill, in the neighborhood of two billions, is larger than the annual cost of our religious and educational institutions combined!

Now while we recognize that civilization must have its amenities, there is surely need, in the expenditure of our wealth, of a greater degree of sobrity and moderation. God is calling us, as stewards of His bounty, to live a simple life, and to return to Him, in the spirit of the Golden Text, a much larger proportion of the generous wealth He has bestowed upon us.

Personally I am a strong believer in the Old Testament practice of tithing. I watch my expenses carefully through a budget plan, and aim to give my Church and various philanthropic causes at least a tenth of my income. To do this demands a systematic method, with a "check-up." A tither does not give in a haphazard manner.

As Dr. Charles R. Brown has pointed out, the rich young ruler who came to Jesus was familiar with the phrases, "Sell and get," "Sell and hoard," "Sell and spend," but the Master's command, "Sell and give," was to him a new, and uncomfortable idea. In these present days of widespread and tragic want, "Sell and give" is a slogan that might well be proclaimed from the housetops.

THE FIVE DAY WEEK.

Autocaster Service.

THE five day week in industry has been tried for a year or more in a number of important manufacturing establishments of different kinds and sizes, and the general verdict is that it works to the advantage of everybody concerned. We think it is something which was bound to come sooner or later. The period of depression from which we are now emerging has merely hastened it along.

In almost every kind of business these days the Saturday half holiday is generally observed. It is not generally the case, however, that a full half day's work is done on Saturday morning. Some of the large organizations, like the big life insurance companies, which have had a five day week for their clerical staffs for a long time, say that just as much work is done in five days as used to be done in five days and a half. Also, that their employees get such a definite physical and spiritual benefit from having their time to themselves from five o'clock Friday until nine o'clock Monday morning, that it has proved an actual economy to cut down the working week without reducing salaries.

We have too much of a tendency in America to make a virtue out of work for its own sake. A sounder philosophy of life is that work is a necessary evil, and should be regarded as merely a means to the end of achieving more leisure in which to enjoy the really valuable things of life. If the world's work could be done in three days out of every week, we think that this would be a much happier world in which to live.

ON OREGON FARMS

Canyon City—Sheep owners of this region are considering a campaign to eradicate liver flukes that cause the malady known sometimes as liver rot. While the drug carbontetrachloride is effective in treating sheep that have these parasites, treatment is unnecessary where a simple campaign is carried out for eradicating the snails that serve as the alternate hosts for the flukes, says Dr. Robert Jay, federal veterinarian from the State college, who was brought here by County Agent R. G. Johnson. Copper sulfate or bluestone scattered in mashy places where sheep graze destroys the snail hosts.

Lakeview—Ten acres of crested wheat grass planted on dry land by H. M. Parks on his ranch at Fort Rock is producing a lot of forage this year and has remained green after other vegetation has dried up. Mr. Parks has one of the best stands in the county and the grass varies from 6 to 28 inches tall and has stooled out well. This field was planted in 1930 at the suggestion of the county agent. He reports that this grass is proving to be a great drought resistant forage plant in many other sections of eastern Oregon.
