

Katharsis . . . G.O.P. got it

The ancient Greeks had a word, "katharsis," meaning a thorough cleaning out which might apply to the human system or to the hog pen or to a political party.

There is nothing that every human organization needs so badly, every once in a while, as a complete "katharsis." It is the inevitable tendency of all organized groups, once they achieve power, to become arrogant and to lose sight of the primary purpose for which they were organized. That is true of religious, political, financial and all other classes of human organizations.

All human effort to be effective must be organized. But all organizations must be reorganized every once in a while. The old leaders must be deposed and fresh blood taken in to the councils, and any organization which does not do this voluntarily is sooner or later forced to do it by pressure from without.

That, it seems to me, is what has just happened to the Republican Party Organization in America. The time has come for reorganization. Under our two party system the public welfare is best served by the best organized party, which ever it may be. The remedy for the ills of the Republican party is the old Greek one, "Katharsis."

Travel . . and metal mike

I am writing this just an hour or so before sailing on the Italian liner Rex for my first visit to Europe. Sixty-two is still young enough for a man to go adventuring, if he has the spirit of adventure in him, and I never got over that.

I am very curious to see whether the foreign cities and peoples that I have read about and studied about all my life look anything like the way I have pictured them. I have knocked about the American Continent and up and down the coasts in ships a great deal but never before had both the time and the opportunity to cross the ocean.

What particularly interests me is the ship on which I am coming back, the Conte De Savoia. This is the first big ship to be equipped with gyroscopic stabilizers, invented by my old friend, the late Elmer Sperry. A gyroscope is a hard thing to explain in words. It is hard enough to understand it when you see it working. It is, in effect, a fly wheel so suspended that the axle can tip in any direction. Sperry discovered that a gyroscope always tries to put itself in a position where the axle is pointing to the center of the earth. Out of that discovery came the gyroscopic compass, which always points to the North Pole instead of the magnetic pole as the ordinary compass does. Then came the automatic steering device in which the gyroscope keeps the ship's rudder true to the course. Every really important ship in the world is now steered by "metal mike" as the sailors call it. This same power of the gyroscope is now being used to keep the ship from rolling in rough water. It works well on small craft, and I will tell you later how it works on the first big ship to which it has been applied.

Chicago . . . next year

My Chicago friends are beginning to get excited about the "Century of Progress Exposition" which is to be held in the city by Lake Michigan next year. The municipality of Chicago is in serious financial straits, but there is still an awful lot of money in Chicago, and probably the most intense public spirit that exists in any large city in America.

The motto "I will." That is still the Chicago spirit. Regardless of hard times the leaders in Chicago's civic life who set out to build the world's greatest fair for 1933 have succeeded in raising the necessary millions, and from what I am beginning to hear about it I get the impression it will be the most wonderful showing of the resources, the peoples, the art and the scientific and technical development of the whole world that has even been brought together.

At least, that is what my Chicago friends say that it will be, and I have never known Chicago to fail when it really set out to do something.

Money and prices

Thirty years ago W. J. Bryan nearly captured the Presidency with his economic theory that farmers would get more money for their products if there was more money in circulation. In a new book published by the Century Company of New York, F. M. Huntington-Wilson, who was Under Secretary of State in the Wilson administration, handles the same theme, although along different lines. The book is called, "Money and the Price Level."

The author points out exactly what President Hoover meant when he suggested that the European debts to this country might be settled in the currencies of the debtor nations, clearing up that point so that any layman can understand the subject. Briefly, Mr. Huntington-Wilson argues that the alarmingly low price levels of wheat and cotton, and of all other farm products, are now being caused by the high value of the American dollars as compared with the low values of other countries.

The book has been written after consultation with many of the leading experts on finance in both Occidental and Oriental countries, among them being Mr. Rene Leon, widely regarded as the leading foreign exchange and metallic money expert in this country.

Frank McDaniel of Hardman who has been herding sheep for Ray Wright of McKinney creek, was taken to the Veterans' hospital at Walla Walla today where he will receive treatment for a chronic ailment.

Tasty Christmas Cookies Described in New Leaflet

Christmas rolls, brown sugar Christmas cookies, Christmas crisps, Christmas orange cookies, Christmas ginger nuts, Christmas English gingerbread, and Bavarian Christmas cookies are only seven of the 20 different cookie recipes contained in a revised mimeographed leaflet announced by Miss Charbel Nye, state leader of home economics extension, Corvallis.

The three types of cookies—rolled, ice-box and drop cookies—are described and the three methods of mixing cookies are explained in this leaflet. Colored sugar, nuts, whole or chopped raisins, dates, prunes, gooseberry jam, caraway seed, candy covered coconut, little candies, frosting, or chocolate may be used to decorate cookies, points out this bulletin. The gingerbreadman with raisin eyes delights children. Dip the cutter in flour and cut the shapes close together to avoid an unnecessary amount of trimmings. Cookies made from the trimmings will differ in texture from the others because of the additional flour that must be added.

Thousands of Smut Tests Start.

In its determined search for all the facts possible to aid Oregon farmers in combatting stinking smut of wheat, the second most destructive disease of this crop, the Oregon experiment station has recently made 2500 trial plantings of wheat inoculated with more than 100 different "collections" of smut. The project is a cooperative one between the United States department of agriculture and the college station. The problem of finding good resistant varieties has been greatly complicated by the fact determined by scientists at the station that stinking smut is a complex organism of many different strains acting differently on wheat.

Rom. 13:1: "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers." A man was trying to buy a little wooded knoll in the Adirondacks. Between it and the public road was a stretch of meadow land, but he did not want it. So before buying he had to make sure that he could get across the meadow land to and from the camp he was intending to build. He insisted the farmer give him a right of way. When the time came to draw up the deed, the farmer was annoyed by the constant asking of the purchaser for a right of way. Finally the farmer said: "Didn't you know the law of New York state compels a land owner to give a right of way along the shortest line between the property you buy and the main thoroughfare?" The purchaser learned some law, but a great deal more about religion. He saw that if he kept a little territory of his heart still under his control, Satan could demand a right of way from it out through the rest of his life into the world. If Satan can get a little hold it is not long before he will try to ravage and destroy the whole.

No surrender, but that which is absolute is a surrender that counts. We must either give all that we are to Christ or have the grant we do make Him prove ultimately null and void. You are most cordially invited to all our services.

them with the air is the English "God Save the King." Germany, Switzerland and Denmark also sing the same strains.

"The original song had eight verses. The first four are those that are sung today." The four verses not generally used, were sung by the club, and are given herewith:

Our glorious Land today,
"Neath Education's way,
Soars upward still,
It's halls of learning fair,
Whose bounties all may share,
Behold them everywhere
On vale and hill.

Thy safeguard, Liberty,
The school shall ever be;
Our nation's pride!
No tyrant hand shall smite.
While with encircling light
All here are taught the Right
With Truth allied.

Beneath Heaven's gracious will
The stars of progress still
Our course do away;
In unity sublime
To broader heights we climb,
Triumphing over Time
God speeds our way.

Grand birthright of our sires,
Our altars and our fires
Keep we still pure!
Our starry flag undimmed,
The hope of all the world.
In Peace and Light imperiled.
God hold secure!
