Extension Service Gives Mince Meat Recipes

Mince-meat! There's magic in the word. It conjures up odors, pictures and tastes of a pastry that never fails to appeal.

Butchering time and the snappy holiday season combine to promote the cause of mince-meat and mince-meat making. Food specialists in the home economics extension service recommend the following recipes for this spicy, tasty food product:

- Mince-meat—No. 1
2 pounds lean beef
1 pound chopped suet
4 pounds tart apples
3 pounds sugar
3 pounds currants
2 pounds raisins
1 nutmeg
1-2 teaspoon ground mace
2 oranges
2 lemons
1-2 pound citron
1 tablespoon salt

Stew the beef in a very little water until quite tender, cool and chop as fine as possible. Add the beef suet, chopped fine, and pared, cored and chopped apples, the sugar, currants, raisins, spices, orange and lemon juice, the grated rind of the oranges and of one lemon, chopped citron and salt. Mix thoroughly.

- Mince-meat—No. 2
3 pounds lean beef
6 pounds sour apples
3 pounds raisins
1-2 pound suet
1-2 pound citron
2 pounds currants
1 nutmeg
2 pounds sugar
2 cups cider vinegar
2 cups molasses
1 tablespoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon mace
2 tablespoons salt

Stew the beef in a little water until tender. Cool it, then chop the meat, the apples, raisins, suet and citron, and washed currants. Mix and add remaining ingredients. Scald. If too dry, add a little warm water at time of using.

- Mock Mince-meat
1-2 cup cracker-crumbs
2 cups chopped raisins
1 cup brown sugar
1-2 cups melted butter or butter substitute
1 cup currants
1 cup molasses
1 cup sour cider
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups cold water
1 tablespoon cinnamon
2 eggs

Mix well together and use as desired. This is a good mince-meat for those who find the ordinary variety too rich.

ON OREGON FARMS

New Spud Outyields Burbank Hillsboro—The new Katahdin potatoes tried out here this year on the A. J. Rowell farm gave a better yield than Burbanks grown in the same field, showing unusual drought resistance, reports County Agent W. F. Cyrus.

The drought resistance is the result of a larger root system typical of the variety, he says. The Katahdin is a round potato and thus is not quite as attractive to the general trade, but it is high in quality and may have a distinct place in western Oregon especially where the long varieties do not always attain desirable size and form.

Oregon Medium as Honey State Corvallis—Census figures show that 5328 farmers in Oregon had some bees in 1930. Survey figures on cost of production made among commercial beekeepers last year show that the cost in alfalfa regions was 6.2c a pound; in the freeweed regions 6.9c a pound, and in the Willamette valley 7.8c a pound.

The average price received for the 1931 crop was estimated at 5c a pound. Oregon has a total of 4,000 colonies as compared with 4,620,650 in the entire United States, according to the latest estimates. Twenty-eight states produced more honey than Oregon and 19 states produced less.

Heppner—A campaign in on in Morrow county to test enough of the beef cattle to permit the county to be placed on the tuberculosis accredited list, reports County Agent Smith. Many tests have recently been made by Dr. H. H. Green of the state veterinarians office with almost no reactors found.

Oregon 4-H Members Win $2055 at Chicago

Oregon 4-H club members ranked high in achievement at the National Club Congress in Chicago, reports H. C. Seymour, state leader at O. S. C. Six Oregon members and one club, in competition with entries from 40 states, won five first places, one second, one fourth and three fifths. Counting the scholarships and trips won, the money value of the awards totaled $2055.50.

The largest single awards were a $300 scholarship at Oregon State college won by Alice Welbes, Multnomah county, from a fruit jar manufacturing firm, and a trip valued at $1000 won by Helen Clark, also of Multnomah, from a big Chicago mercantile firm.

Scollup—Well, I had to give Susie the air—she turned out to be one of those Iowa girls. Wollop—Whatta mean, 'Iowa girls'? Scollup—You know—Iowa dress-maker's bill. 'Iowa month's rent,' etc.

Broccoli—Why did Sophonisba marry that man. He's deaf and dumb and has St. Vitus dance. Spinachi—Her ideal was a man of few words and plenty of action.

Oregon Seedmen Resist Flood of Cheap Alfalfa

In a year when certified seed of the hardy varieties of alfalfa, such as Grimm and Ladak, is apparently fairly scarce, Oregon farmers might well be particularly careful this year to avoid getting seed from sources unknown or from southern western regions, believes E. R. Jackman, farm crops specialist at Oregon State college, who has followed the development of the alfalfa industry for years.

Last year a flood of seed from Arizona, New Mexico and California was offered through the northwest at extremely low prices, even as low as 5c a pound to dealers. Oregon dealers refused to "fall" for this cheap seed, says Jackman, and growers were protected, though carloads of it went to neighboring states.

"Observations on Oregon farms have shown that many thin, weedy fields of alfalfa are the result of planting common seed, especially if from a southern source. "Repeated trials at nearly all the branch experiment stations and elsewhere have shown that Grimm alfalfa is by far the best for western Oregon and Grimm and Ladak for eastern Oregon," Jackman explained. "Occasionally a strain of common alfalfa will show up well, but in no case has a strain from the southwest proved to be long lived."

"The southwest produces large amounts of Peruvian alfalfa which will winter-kill even in western Oregon, and east of the mountains frequently dies out the first winter. Much of the seed from the southwest is of this semi-tropical variety unsuited to Oregon conditions."

Oregon growers are fortunate in having good certified seed available within the state, as considerable is grown in Malheur, Crook, Union and Baker counties. The Montana seed crop, especially of Ladak, was almost ruined by drought and grasshoppers this year, hence the Oregon supplies will doubtless find a quick demand, Jackman believes.

PINE CITY ALMA NEILL

Miss Elsie Strain of Pendleton spent Christmas day visiting friends and relatives at Pine City.

A large number of people from Pine City attended the Christmas program at Alpine Friday evening. holidays with Miss Catherine Peterson in Heppner. Mr. and Mrs. Veri Farrens arrived Thursday for a visit at the home of Veri's parents during the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bleakman and son Norman arrived here from Washington for an indefinite visit with Percy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bleakman.

Mrs. Walter Farrens and children including her married son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Veri Farrens, enjoyed a bountiful "duck" dinner at the home of her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Harshman in Eight Mile on Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Burnside and Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Adams, Duff McKittrick and Jessie McDaniel were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Adams and family for Christmas.

Miss Marjorie Montgomery and William Johnson departed Friday afternoon by auto for Portland where they will spend the holiday season.

The pupils and teachers of the grade school entertained their parents at a Christmas party Friday morning. Each mother received a gift from their children which was especially appreciated because they had been made by the children. A short but beautiful Christmas play was presented by the upper grade room.

Tim Kurth was quite seriously injured last Friday while corraling horses at the Kelly place near here, when the horse he was riding fell on him. He was discovered soon afterwards unconscious and was carried to the ranch where he remained unconscious for about five hours. However he is sufficiently recovered to come into town Monday and it is now evident that no serious injuries were received.

Antone Cunha, Butter creek rancher, does not get to town very often. He was in town Monday transacting business.
