WILL IT BE A SALES TAX?

THE legislature is working overtime and holding night sessions in order to clean the calendar and get away from Salem. Many of the most important questions before them are yet to be settled, and chief among these is the revenue question. At the special session the measure proposed to relieve the deficit in the state's finances was the sales tax, endorsed by Governor Meier as an emergency revenue producer. The special session turned this down, and the regular session has been wrestling with several other propositions, none of which has been shaped up for presentation to the house and senate.

For our part, we believe that the general sales tax is the best means of raising the necessary revenue to help the state get out from under its deficit and balance the budget, and in this connection we are quoting from a communication headed "A Word Regarding the Sales Tax," handed us by a friend this week:

"After reading much criticism of this plan, advocated by our government and others, I cannot refrain from asking a few questions. First, I would call your attention to the thousands of people who live in our cities and towns in apartments, flats, and furnished houses that are working in stores, foundries, shops, and some as tenants on farms, who do not pay one dollar in taxes; the most of them drawing good salaries, yet get in under the $1500 and $2500 exemptions allowed by our income tax laws. They send their children to our public schools, their families enjoy all the privileges that yours and mine enjoy, and without paying a cent of taxes. Now the first argument to be presented is 'I am paying my tax in the rent to my landlord.' Let's see about this.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Charles E. Dunn, D. D.

Jesus Giving Life and Health. Lesson for February 25th. Mark 5:21-43. Golden Text: Psalm 126:3.

The lesson begins with an indication of the popularity of Jesus. He recrossed the lake, and a vast multitude at once came swarming around Him. He could no more escape crowds than can the President of the United States. Of course He welcomed them, for he loved people. But there must have been sorrow in His heart as He meditated on the fickleness of the multitude. For He well knew that a dark day was approaching when the capricious mob would spurn Him with a brutal cry for His blood.

But Mark quickly turns from the crowd on the lakes' shore to a particular individual in that assembled mass of folk. Jairus was a man of high influence and social standing, a Warden of the Synagogue. Doubtless he had wealth, and a choice home. And it goes without saying that he loved his only child, a sweet girl of twelve, the darling of his heart, now sick unto death.

"Trouble is life's greatest teacher. It was trouble that inspired Jairus to appeal to Jesus. Perhaps he had vainly first employed other physicians. At last, in his dire extremity, he came, heartbroken, to the feet of the Master.

It was trouble also that encouraged the poor woman who had suffered for twelve years from a hemorrhage, to touch Jesus, with superstitious zeal, as He was on His way to Jairus' home, the center of an admiring throng.

The New Testament teaches that adversity is not only to be expected, but is also to be welcomed. "We ought to glory in our troubles," writes St. Paul. Instead of rebelling against disaster, or trying to explain it, we must rejoice in it, using it for the glory of God and the service of our fellows.

I buy a small house, make a down payment and move in. I am compelled to keep up my payments and taxes, insurance and upkeep or lose it, and if bonds or other schemes to raise taxes are voted by the property owner, pays the freight while these thousands who are perhaps more able than I go tax free. I am a farmer but I say give us a sales tax and let these people help us carry the load.

"Statistics show there are more than 50,000 heads of families and single men drawing good salaries in the city of Portland alone that are not paying a cent of tax." The passing of a sales tax will doubtless bring forth a referendum, but the legislature should pass it just the same, and should it be referred to the people, they can give it approval or turn it down; they might do either, but we are inclined toward these "painless" taxes, and as suggested above, would like to see all classes of citizens doing their bit.

HELP YOUR SCHOOL DISTRICT.

THESE are times when it is hard for many school districts to carry on. Tax delinquencies have made it almost impossible to meet budget requirements, and with a large number of the districts the future is presenting serious problems; it may be that a number will have to curtail expenses by shortening the term, at least to the point permitted under the present law. Salaries of teachers are being pruned, and these will no doubt be brought lower, and cuts in expenses are being made wherever possible. Yet the piling up of tax delinquencies and the pyramiding of warrant indebtedness goes on and the picture is not improved as time passes.

Relief to a certain degree seems to be in the offing. It is now possible to pay a portion of taxes to the sheriff and have him credit this partial payment to the taxpayer's district. To help out the situation with the schools many are now hustling enough money to care for the amount of their district tax, and the money is being thus applied. Among a number of the larger districts this means is presented of getting in some much needed cash, and if it were possible to raise a goodly percent of the delinquent taxes due, the financial problems of the various schools would be substantially relieved. We are also informed that warrants of school districts will be received and applied on any tax due the district on which the warrant is drawn provided the face of the warrant is not more than the amount of tax due.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Autocaster Service. THE one heroic figure in our national hall of fame, whose memory transcends all partisanship and sectionalism, is that of George Washington. It will be many years before any other great American soldier or statesman becomes such a figure of national honor. Indeed, we doubt whether, even after the lapse of ages, our nation will ever have produced another character commanding such universal respect and esteem.

Yet Washington in his lifetime was the target for abuse and vilification such as few Presidents since his day have had to bear. A British traveler and author, writing in 1795, told how many men refused to drink to the President's health at the celebration of his birthday. When Washington retired to private life at the end of his second term as President, one of the foremost of the newspapers then in existence declared that this was a time of public rejoicing, "for the man who is the source of all the misfortunes of our country is this day reduced to the level of his fellow citizens and is no longer possessed of a power to multiply evils upon the United States... if ever a nation was deceived by a man the American nation has been deceived by Washington."

Very few men in high place escape such calumny. There is something in human nature which resents the idea that one man is superior to others. But it did not take the American people long to realize that in George Washington they had had a leader who was probably the only man who could have successfully led the revolt against British domination and established our nation on an independent basis so sound that the foundations laid by him have never been seriously shaken.

The wisdom of Washington's warnings and admonitions to the young Republic of which he was the first President become more and more clearly apparent as time goes on. Particularly at this time we are impressed with his warnings to the young nation to avoid entangling alliances with Europe. That was not intended, of course, as an admonition to detach America from the rest of the world; it was rather an admonition that we should maintain friendly relations with all nations and not be allied with some in opposition to others. We think this an opportune time to remind our political leaders and the people of America again of Washington's warning against foreign entanglements.

DEATH ON WHEELS.

Autocaster Service. THREE hundred and twenty-five thousand Americans have been killed in motor car accidents in the past fifteen years. That is more than the total number of American soldiers who were killed in the Great War. Last year, according to carefully compiled statistics kept by the Travelers Insurance Company, there were twenty-nine thousand motor vehicle deaths. This is a reduction from the thirty-three thousand five hundred deaths from this cause in 1931, but it must be remembered that there were a great many fewer cars on the road last year than there were the year before. Every death of this kind is a senseless, useless waste of life for no good purpose. It is not enough to say that fatal accidents are the fault of careless drivers; the situation calls for some way of insuring against carelessness in driving. The best insurance of this is requiring everyone who drives a car to be licensed, after a rigid examination into his of her ability to drive carefully, and then to enforce strictly the laws forbidding any unlicensed driver to sit behind a steering wheel and punishing the licensed driver for any accident which causes injury to persons or property. In the half dozen states in which such laws and regulations exist the proportion of automobile accidents is lower than anywhere else.

Automobile drivers are not always at fault. While 44 percent of the persons killed by automobiles last year were pedestrians who were struck by cars, nearly half of those were killed by their own carelessness, either in crossing streets against signals, crossing diagonally between street intersections, or stepping out into traffic from behind parked cars.

No sane person would think of letting a boy or girl handle firearms without making sure that they thoroughly understand the danger inherent in their use and knew perfectly well how to handle them. But people who shudder at the idea of giving children firearms to play with let them run automobiles without any evidence that they have the necessary skill and presence of mind and intelligence to handle them safely. Ten times as many people are killed every year by automobile accidents as are killed by the accidental discharge of firearms. We have not yet learned how to control the motor car.

Farmers of Eastern Oregon have been trucking gasoline from Portland, where it has been selling from seven to nine cents. Deduct the farmers' rebate of four cents and figure how cheap the gas sells. Then recollect back in 1929 when motorists were fighting around gas pumps for their quota and predicting it would be selling for a dollar a gallon inside of ten years.—The Dalles Optimist.

Delay puts out the fire of purpose.

Hard work is the best investment a man can make.

The fellow who does just enough to get by never earns enough to buy much.
