Legislation cannot make prosperity.

Most men's idea of a snap is the other fellow's job.

An economist has been defined as a man who knows everything and don't do anything.

If all the farm relief plans were placed end to end they would reach—well anywhere except the farmer.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

MARY A. NOTSON, Reporter.

If the old 4 per cent by volume beer was intoxicating, the new 3.2 by weight beer is intoxicating, for they contain the same amount of alcohol. Alcohol is the active principle of intoxicating liquor. If a person drinks enough of it, whether in beer, wine or whiskey, the effect will be intoxication. A very small amount of alcohol will slow down the muscular reaction from the normal one-fifth of a second to two-fifths of a second. In this machine age, that one-fifth of a second more of time between the time the eye sees the danger and the time when the muscles act may prove fatal. An automobile traveling at the rate of fifty miles per hour moves forward nearly fifteen feet in one-fifth of a second. If an automobile is approaching you at that rate and the drivers' normal muscular reaction enables him to stop the automobile five feet from you, you escape injury, but if he is one-fifth of a second slower in his muscular reaction, the automobile hits you and stops ten feet beyond the point of contact. The result may be death. Do you want drivers of automobiles to take that chance with you? One tablespoonful of whiskey or one glass of beer will make that one-fifth of a second difference. Under our present laws, a man who has swallowed only one tablespoonful of whiskey or one glass of beer could not be convicted of drunken driving; but, if he could be convicted, if he struck and killed you because his muscular reaction was slowed down one-fifth of a second, you would be just as dead as if he had been noticeably intoxicated. The Oregon Voter says: "Abandonment of prohibition is facilitating transition from the older to the new deal. It looks like liquor will lubricate politics for years to come. Some new kind of saloon, probably worse than the saloon of unseemly memory, will absorb the wages of the thrifless, whose families will have to get along without clothing, movies and college education while the household head exercises his constitutional right to treat the crowd. All that the dries can do is

INFLUENZA

I am thinking about "flu" this morning. When one is in a battle he naturally rivets a good deal of attention on the enemy. I am losing a case of the dreadful disease today, and that always hurts, and makes one think how helpless we are sometimes, when the odds are too great. My case—now dying—is over 80. And she has been a semi-invalid for years—a neighbor as well. We learn something from each case. This aged lady was eating breakfast; suddenly she sank down, her face on the table, unconscious. She had a "cold" for a few days. I was called immediately after the alarming symptoms set in. A straight case of influenza; it came with a rush—it came to overpower the frail old body. We put her to bed, and gave her all the concentrated nourishment and stimulation she would bear. There was little or no fever but a distressing cough; we endeavored to keep down all the distress possible. Then absorption of nourishment ceased—it was the end of life, hastened by the advent of the "flu" poison—one of the most treacherous I have ever met.

The object of this report is, to urge aged people to be careful and pay attention to the most trivial appearing "cold." It may hold deadly poison. We should do our very best to secure proper ventilation for our aged relatives. No drafts that bring sudden changes of temperature, yet plenty of pure air of comfortable heating. Influenza is one of the few diseases that I generally fear and dread in old people. I wish we had an established, reliable form of treatment. I believe in immunizing vaccines, but they do not always work as we would have them.

to register their votes of protest; appetite, aided by greed, is conquering moral assertion that expressed itself in unwelcome restriction of personal liberty." Soviet Russia has reached the conclusion that intoxicating liquor is seriously interfering with the five year plan. Hence, she is limiting the number of liquor stores. This may help a little, but it is somewhat like the plan of destroying a mad dog by cutting off its tail an inch at a time.

IN OREGON HOMES

Oregon City—Assistance in planning low cost lunches or dinners is one of the services given by the home economics extension service either from the central office at Corvallis or from the various county home demonstration offices. The Warner Grange committee of Clackamas county was assisted in planning such a lunch for the joint meeting of the home economics and agricultural committees lately. The lunch decided upon included Spanish wheat, parsnips and apple casserole, sandwiches, custard, cookies, coffee and milk. Each of the 21 granges was asked to bring certain dishes included in the menu. Corvallis—With a return of some of the practices and interest of grandmothers' day, Oregon homemakers are again piecing patchwork patterns and quilting them. To meet requests for help in duplicating old designs for piecing and quilting, Mrs. Azalea Sager, clothing specialist in the extension service, has written two mimeographs, HE 447, "Favorite patchwork patterns," and HE 448, "Simple quilting designs." Both leaflets are available from county extension offices or from the home economics extension service at Corvallis.

Pendleton—"I have had to do some hard planning to get something for nothing," says a Umatilla county homemaker, "but here is what I did. It is not much, of course, but it has improved my kitchen greatly and saved me many steps. I had a dish cupboard made with some glass doors we had on hand. This cupboard cost about $3. My husband made another small cupboard for supplies. I needed tables under these built-ins so I took an old square dining table, pulled it apart and put each half under a cupboard to provide table space. Doors were fastened to the table and the sides closed in to provide another storage space."

FIELD PEAS TO BE TRIED.

More tests of field peas grown on land that was summerfallowed last year will be tried through Morrow county this year. Seed of the varieties found best at the Moro station have been obtained by County Agent Smith for the following growers: J. Y. Gibson, Ione, M. J. Fitzpatrick and O. W. Cutsforth, Lexington.

FORD... becomes banker

By coming to the rescue of the Detroit banking situation Henry Ford has again demonstrated his public spirit, and probably has set himself up as a fresh target for the abuse of the envious. Mr. Ford refused to become a director or a minority stockholder in the two big Detroit banks that were in trouble, because he has original ideas about the way banks should be run, which he couldn't make effective if he were merely one of a group. But he and his son came forward with a proposal to supply all the capital needed for two big new banks to take over the old ones.

I would be willing to make a fair-sized wager that Mr. Ford will introduce revolutionary ideas into banking and will be as successful in that as he has been in his other ventures.

CASH it talks

Henry Ford and his son unquestionably have more cash in banks subject to check than anybody else in the world. Yet Mr. Ford has a profound distrust of most bankers and their methods.

He told me how once, in his early days, he set a trap for some bankers and they fell into it. He had been told that a certain group of bankers wanted to get control of his business. He went to them and "talked poor." They lent him what was then a large amount of money, about half a million dollars. Shortly before the note came due he wrote them a letter asking for an extension. The next morning the head of the banking house was in his office, offering an extension on condition that Mr. Ford would turn over a controlling interest in his company to the bankers.

Ford's answer was to write a check for the entire amount of the loan with interest.

"That was my first lesson in high finance," he told me.

ORIGINALITY . . . asset

I have known Mr. Ford for a good many years. What makes him different from all other leaders in business is that he has no fixed "brain patterns." Because things have always been done in a certain way does not seem to Mr. Ford sufficient reason for continuing to do them that way, if a better way can be found.

Mr. Ford is often called an autocrat, because he insists upon doing things in what he believes to be the right way. He has no patience with people who tell him that his way is the wrong way, before it has been tried out. That is why he bought out his minority stockholders for nearly a hundred million dollars in cash, because they thought the right way to run his business was to pay all the profits in dividends, instead of using them to improve the plant and the product and reduce the price to the buyer.

HOSPITAL . . so different

One example of Mr. Ford's "autocracy" often cited is his management of the big hospital which he gave to the city of Detroit. Although not a resident of Detroit, Mr. Ford was a member of the committee which was trying to raise funds for a new city hospital. Money came in slowly and conflicting ideas about what kind of a hospital ought to be built were put forward. Mr. Ford finally said that if they would give him full control he would put up all the money and build the finest hospital in the world.

He did exactly that, after employing scores of experts to study and report upon hospital construction and management in all the great medical centers.

The Detroit hospital is the only important hospital that is not run by doctors. It is run by Henry Ford's appointees for the benefit of the people of Detroit. A good many doctors don't like that, but I doubt if there is any hospital in the world where ordinary patients have more comfort and better medical care.

FINANCE . wrong again

The depression has proved, not that there was anything the matter with our industrial system, but that our financial system had got into the hands of incompetent or reckless men bent on enriching themselves at the expense of the public.

The chairman of the board of the nation's largest bank resigned a few days ago, as a result of disclosures of his banking methods before a senatorial investigation committee.

The country has been suffering from too many weak banks and too few honest bankers. One of the big jobs the new administration has ahead of it is the reorganization and rehabilitation of the nation's banking systems and methods.

Oral Scott, Blackhorse wheat-raiser, has been suffering for some time with an injured leg, the result of being kicked by a horse. The injury has been bothersome and has kept Mr. Scott confined to his home quite closely. He came to town Monday for medical attention.

Bruce Barton writes of "The Master Executive"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy-burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows"

On Meeting an Objection

Every business man knows the value of being able to oppose an objection and meet it before it is advanced. Jesus knew that far better. He went one night to dine with a prominent Pharisee. While the dinner was in progress, a certain woman of unfortunate experience crept into the room and kneeling down by Jesus began to bathe his feet with precious ointment and wipe them with her hair. Jesus knew what that outburst of usefulness meant to an over-burdened spirit, and accepted the tribute with gracious dignity. But all the time he was perfectly well aware of the thoughts that were passing through the self-satisfied mind of his host.

"Ah," said that cynical gentleman to himself, "if he were a prophet he would have known that this woman is a sinner, and would have refused to let her touch him." He might have been tempted to put his thought into words, but he never had a chance. Quick as a flash Jesus turned on him:

"Simon, I have somewhat to say to thee." "Teacher, say on." It was a half concealed sneer. "There was a man who had two debtors," said Jesus. "One owed him five hundred shillings and the other fifty. Neither could pay and he forgave them both. Which of them, do you think, will love him most?"

Simon sensed a trap, and moved cautiously. "I imagine the one who owed him the most," said Jesus. "Right," said Jesus. "Simon, seest thou this woman?" Simon nodded. He began to wish the conversation had not started. "When I came into your house, you gave me no water for my feet," Jesus continued with that extraordinary frankness which cut straight to the heart of things. "But she has washed my feet with her tears and dried them with her hair. You gave me no kiss, but she has not ceased to kiss my feet. You poured none of your expensive oil on my head, but she has taken her precious ointment, which she could ill-afford, and anointed me."

The dining-room was silent; every eye was turned upon the Teacher; the poor woman still knelt at his feet, embarrassed that her action should have caused so much comment. "She is like the debtor who owed the five hundred shillings," he said. "Her sins which are many are forgiven, for she loved much. To whom little is forgiven, the same loves little." And then with a glance of infinite tenderness:

"Thy sins are forgiven," he said to her simply.

It is easy to imagine that the conversation rather dragged during the remainder of the meal. Even very supercilious and self-assured gentlemen hesitated to expose themselves to the thrusts of a mind which could anticipate criticisms before they were uttered, and deal with them so crisply.

IRRIGON

MRS. W. C. ISOM.

Joe Wilson, the little son of Mrs. Edwin Wilson, fell from the porch of Glenn Ball's residence and broke his collar bone. He was taken to Portland for treatment.

A deal was closed between Geo. Ransier and S. T. Carroll whereby Mr. Ransier now owns the Carroll place east of Irrigon, consisting of 40 acres and Mr. Carroll has taken possession of the former Ransier place of 27 acres east of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Looker of Echo moved on the Ransier place Friday. Mrs. Looker is a daughter of Mr. Ransier.

Mrs. Amy Collins and family moved to the S. T. Carroll place Friday.

Mrs. Archie McFarland entertained the H. E. club ladies at her home at Umatilla Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Jess Oliver was a visitor at the Vern Jones home Friday.

Word was received here recently of the marriage of Miss Shirley Fredrickson to Claude Linkhart of Portland. Miss Fredrickson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fredrickson, and friends here unite in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Linkhart happiness and prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Isom were Hermiston visitors Friday.

Mrs. Rado Williams left Friday of last week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Virgil Tomkins of Prescott, Wash.

Edward Houghton arrived home Friday from O. S. C. of Corvallis for the spring vacation.

Maurice Williams, Florence Brace, Henry Wier and Rob Walpole attended the dance at Echo Friday night.

Carl F. Esle was a Portland business visitor over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Barnes were called to Elgin Tuesday by the serious illness of Mr. Barnes' brother. They returned Friday.

Wilbur Van Cleave, who has been in Portland for some time returned Friday.

Rev. Farrens and wife are holding church services at Milton and Freewater.

Mrs. Wade who is now living at Stanfield was a guest of Mrs. Tom Caldwell Tuesday night.

Mrs. R. H. Minnick has her mother, Mrs. Dasch of Hood River as a guest in her home.

The children of Mrs. Roscoe Williams are absent from school with whooping cough.

Bert Benefield returned home from the Veterans' hospital at Walla Walla Tuesday.

Crimson Clover Shows Promise McMinnville—Crimson clover as a possible cover crop, particularly for nut orchards, has shown exceptional promise this year in limited trials in Yamhill county. In one field visited by interested nut growers it was found that the crimson clover came through the winter without freeze injury and even started to grow by the first week in February. Late freezing failed to stop this early development.
