by accessability a good road would have provided. Also the fact that valuable Umatilla National forest is served by not a single hard-surfaced road from this district, communities of which are being relied. upon to cooperate in fighting the fire menace.

One conclusion seems evident. The senator has laid himself open eral times recently in the press of the state: that he is capable of playing petty politics at a time playing petty politics at a time which should call for cooperation with administration policies.

District supervisor of Umatilla National forest, J. F. Irwin, told Lions this week that President Roosevelt's reforestation policy deems conservation just as import ant as replanting.

Irwin further said this district was expecting much aid from reforestation program to be applied mainly on roads. Are we to presume this money will all be spent in Umatilla county, Mr. Steiwer?
