Future Farmers Report 6-22-33 Most Successful Year

A year of greater interest, enthuand accomplishment than lasm any in its history was reported for the Oregon Association of Future Farmers of America by the officers at the fifth annual state convention of these Smith-Hughes agricultural students at Oregon State college The organization grew to a new record number of 1036 paid-up members in 35 chapters in this state.

Tom Willett of Wallowa, state president, was given credit for much of the advance in the face of the unsettled conditions, in view of his 1670 mile tour of the state to visit most of the centers of Smith-

Hughes instruction. Willett found time meanwhile to enter the oratorical contest of the Future Farmers and won the right to represent eastern Oregon in the state finals where he was given first place on his oration dealing with federal adjustment of farm mortgages and debts. He will represent Oregon in the regional finals in Salt Lake City in June, George Penrose of Amity was second in the state contest. Other regional win ners were George Cowles, Rainler, and Bill Floten, Coquille,

Another less serious type of "oratorical" contest was for the champion youthful hog caller in the state. Cris Starr of Amity won first place in this, with Gaylord Ramsey,

Molalla, runner-up. Howard Smith of Canby will head the organization this year as state
