THE GREATEST FORCE IN THE

THE other day Dr. George Crile, one of the most distinguished men in medical research, announce ed his discovery that the function-ing of the human brain is in the nature of electrical discharges. The brain contains millions upon millions of tiny electrical generators, deriving their energy from the body through the supra-renal glands, just above the kidneys. Mental activity depends upon the proper functioning of those glands. That is another illustration of the depths to which modern science has penetrated into Nature's secrets It is more than that, however; it is an illustration of the fact that nothing, not even the most serious economic distress, can keep men from thinking. And as long as thought persists, and the human mind reals new truths from day to day, the human race is in no danger of lapsing back into barbarism.

We go forward in the things which really count for something in the life of the race, regardless of our temporary money difficulties. Nothing can stop our forward progress. Imagination and courage still are more powerful than wealth, immensely more potent than war.

The other day a young man flew his airplane at a speed of 410 miles an hour, more than six miles a minute, a mile in under ten seconds! Twice in the past month daring young Britishers have flown over the peaks of Mount Everest, seeing and photographing a spot hereto fore unseen by man. The great airship Akron was wrecked, but the greater Macon starts out on her maiden flight with her crew undaunted. And astronomers discover cosmic lights in the distant realms of space which may be unseen planets signalling to unknown worlds across the vastnesses of the uni-

A LESSON

I wish it had not happened, for it makes me sad to think of it. But ed that: It is true in every particular, for I know of the incident first-hand.

A little boy of about nine took an acute attack of appendicitis. The diagnosis was unquestioned, for a fine surgeon was called—he advised immediate operation. The father rebelled stubbornly; "I don't want no cuttin' done," he said with finality. The surgeon returned to his place of business.

Not long ago a farmer could ge eight to ten dollars for a cowhide; now he is lucky, most places, to get fifty cents. Have any of our farm er readers had occasion to sell a cow recently? We hear of cows which were worth $75 to $100 three years ago being sold for $5. One cowhide will make eight pairs of shoes, but it takes nine of them to buy a pair. One farmer told lately of getting a pair of shoes for the of seven hundred pounds of

In normal times nearly half the output of the U. S. Steel Corpor. tion went into things used on the farms. It is going to help that bus-iness and all other business when the farmer can again have a sur-plus to spend; though it is hard to within three or four years the price figure much of a surplus so long as taxes absorb all that even the rosperous farmer earns.

We know of farms that have been sold for taxes; we have heard of farmers giving their farms away to escape responsibility. We do not and it is headed for its old level. think that any kind of inflation A lot of things have delayed it, such could make conditions worse.

For four thousand years silver as the general world-wide depress ion accelerated by Britain going off the gold standard. But the acceptance of silver in payment of war debts at not more than 50 cents an ounce seems now to be on the cards, as well as the purchase of the entire visible supply of silver for money purposes.

The four thousand years silver was the standard money metal of the whold world. Gold began to take its place beside silver about the year of the American Revolution. Gold became the chief money metal less than 100 years ago. Business and the demand for money in-creased so much faster than the gold supply that now there isn't anywhere near enough gold to go

Wrestler . . and farm boy

My friend Doc Roller is dead. When I first met him he was a pro-fessional wrestler, challenging all comers in a series of wrestling bouts in New York. He wore a mask and did not let his name be come known. As the "Masked Marvel" he threw Frank Gotch, "Strangler" Lewis, and many other famous wrestlers, and made himself enough money to quit at 39 and set up in the practice of medicine. Ben Roller started as a farm boy, grew to weigh 200 pounds and way as lithe and quick as a cat. worked his way through college and medical school and was Professor of Physiology in the Univer sity of Washington and supervisor of college athletics when friends urged him to take on a professional wrestler for a purse. He won $1,-600 that night. Then he threw Frank Gotch for a purse of $4,000. Doc Roller died at 57 of pneumonia. He was a good doctor and a good friend as well as a good wrestler. I liked and admired him because he used all of his talents to the best advantage.

Lamont . . has bank ideas

"Tom" Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Company, international bankers, is proud of the fact that he was a newspaper reporter before he was a banker. Lately he has been telling the world what's wrong vith our banks.

I do not see how anyone except "The maid some little man who wants to post as a big man by running a bank on his own, to gratify his vanity, can object to that. Some crooks crooks in the banking business as some folks think, and they are getting weeded out.

The main cause of our system of independent, small, weak banks has been a sort of false local pride. Safety of the money of depositors ought to be the first consideration in starting or running any bank. Real bankers lie awake nights worrying whether they ought to lend money to Tom, Dick or Harry, and whether the Widow Jones' deposit is safe. We need fewer banks and more real bankers.

Tides and harness

There is something fascinating in the idea of making the moon turn a mill-wheel. It is so fascinating that men, since the beginning of time, have tried to harness the tides

On a small scale, in the old days when money, men and materials were cheap, there were many little grist-mills and sawmills along the New England Coast at the mouth of tidal creeks. Twice a day the water rose and was impounded be-

Dusts Control Spittle Bugs. Hydrated lime or two per cent nicotine dust are two materials ad-vocated by the entomology department at Oregon State college for control of spittle bugs on straw-berries. The hydrated lime is the cheaper but does not give as complete control as the more expensive nicotine dust. Either power or hand dusters are needed for either material, as carelessly throwing the dust on the plants gives poor re-sults. Further details for preparation of these materials may be had from any county agent,
