New Federal Production Credit System Arranged

Provision for farm production credit through regional production credit banks and local production credit associations is the outstanding feature of a new law which has passed congress, says the Oregon Agricultural Extension service in a review of the agricultural situation just issued.

The plan is to have the five divisions of the new farm credit administration, each with a commissioner in charge under the governor and the deputy governors. Each division will handle one class of loans. The production credit commissioner will be in charge of twelve production credit banks, one in each Federal Land Bank district.

"The land bank commissioner will supervise the twelve federal land banks," the circular states. "The intermediate credit commissioner will supervise the twelve intermediate credit banks. The Co-operative Bank Commissioner will administer the Central Bank for Cooperatives and twelve regional Co-operative Banks. And the emergency Credit Commissioner will supervise the regional Agricultural Credit Corporations."

Local production credit associations may be formed by ten or more farmers, and a part of the capital of local associations may be subscribed by the regional production credit bank.

According to the circular the trend of farm prices flattened out somewhat during the past four weeks, compared with the grand advance during the preceding four weeks. As things stood at mid-June, the general level of farm prices is around ten per cent higher than a year previous for the whole county, and around 40 per cent higher for the average in Oregon. High hop prices contributed materially to the upswing of the Oregon general farm price index.

Wool prices staged a remarkable comeback and now head the list in degree of pre-war price "parity" with an index of 90. Wheat advanced sharply, but is still far below "parity" with the May fair wheat price index at 67 per cent of pre-war. The general level of farm prices at 62 is still a long way from "parity" as contemplated under the farm act. Even without any advance in prices for things farmers buy, most farm products would have to go up around 50 per cent to reach parity. Prospects for further improvement are reasonably good, says the report, but much depends upon national and international economic programs and developments.

gony will prepare to help supply." Jackman continued. The corn and cotton states will afford the greatest increased outlet for Oregon seed crops, Jackman believes. The corn states are all clover states except Texas, and all use orchard grass, tall oat grass, white clover, meadow fescue, English rye grass and other crops of which seed is grown in western Oregon.

The cotton states will probably develop an unprecedented demand for hairy vetch, crimson clover and Austrian peas.

Young Earwigs Ready For Poisoned Bran Dose

Young earwigs are on the march again in yards and gardens and just at the best stage for effective poisoning, says R. E. Dimick of the Oregon State college department of entomology. In many localities the ranks of the earwigs have been greatly depleted by the ravages of the earwig parasites that have been liberated in Portland and many other cities of the state, but some supplementary poisoning at this season before the parasites are active has been found a big help in control.

The poison most effective is bran 12 pounds, sodium Fluosilicate 1 pound, and fish oil 1 quart, mixed together without water. The bait is applied thinly over the yard and in large quantities around the base of buildings, trees and fences, avoiding lumps that might attract children.
