STATE WHEAT MEN MAY GET BENEFITS

Those Who Sign up for Acreage Control to Receive Cash by Next September.

Actual cash benefits to Oregon farmers who contract with the government to cooperate in a national plan of agricultural adjustment will be paid early this fall, probably by September 15, according to details of the wheat adjustment policy received by the Oregon State college extension service. Wheat has been selected as one of the two first basic surplus commodities to which acreage control will be applied, cotton now being included under a land rental plan.

The domestic allotment plan has been definitely decided upon as the most practical for immediate use and will now be applied as a three-year program, according to word from Washington. Decentralized administration has also been worked out, intended to make the plan practically self-executing within each county.

In putting the plan into effect, the farm act administration will first determine the average amount of wheat consumed as food in this country in the five year period of 1928-1932. Every wheat producing state will then be "allotted" a share of this domestic production on the basis of the proportion of the total United States crop it produced during the same five years.

Next, every wheat producing county within the state will be allotted a share on the same basis.

The amount of wheat will be that on which benefit payments will be made. It is pointed out that these proportions are worked out on a national basis and allotments will be made without regard to the ultimate disposition of any particular block of wheat.

Disposition of wheat by the grower, as a matter of fact, is no concern of the agricultural adjustment administration under this plan. Once the farmer complies with the other provisions of the contract, it is entirely up to him where or when he sells his wheat, or whether he sells it at all or not.

Acreage control is the fundamental feature of the new plan, and every farmer must sign a contract to reduce his acreage, if called upon, by a specified amount not to exceed 20 per cent. The exact amount may not be determined until after it is seen if an international agreement among the wheat exporting countries for acreage reduction can be reached.

Application of the organization plans in counties may be started in July. Wheat growers in each county will form their own associations for administering the plan and will elect their own officers.

Each wheat farmer will be assigned his share of the "benefit wheat" for his county, the proportion being determined on the basis of his average production for the last THREE YEARS. To join the plan, which is entirely voluntary, he contracts to reduce his acreage for 1934 by the amount specified, and sow his quota to wheat in a workmanlike manner. On completion of the contract he will be eligible to receive two-thirds of his allotment benefits, the remaining third to be paid when he gives proof next spring that the reduction has actually been made.

Just how much these benefits will be is yet to be finally determined, but the plan is to make them enough so that added to the actual market price of wheat they will bring the total return per bushel on this domestic production of the nation's wheat crop up to the pre-war parity with prices of things the farmer buys. The cost is to be paid from a processing tax of about 30 cents a bushel on all domestic food wheat.

Regional work has already been started toward putting the plan into effect here in the west, and as soon as further steps are decided upon, notification will be given through the state extension services which are being used to the fullest extent possible by the agricultural adjustment administration in order to avoid setting up costly duplicating organizations.

Educational Trucks Visit Emergency Forest Camps

Two cooperative forestry educational trucks, known to the forest service as "showboats," have just started out on a summer's campaign of carrying to the President's Emergency Conservation Work camps a program of forestry educational motion pictures and lantern slide talks, according to announcement of regional forester C. J. Buck of Portland.

The "showboats" are two trucks equipped with electric light plant, motion picture projectors, lantern slide machine, silver screen, movie reels, and all other necessary accessories. The Oregon "showboat" has been in service on cooperative forestry educational work for the past six years, and is one of the pioneer forestry educational trucks in America, the Washington truck, modeled after the Oregon vehicle, has been equipped to meet the demands for such work in the peace time camps of the forest corps.

The project is in charge of Geo. E. Griffith, assistant in public relations in the regional office. The Oregon truck will be manned by W. V. Fuller and A. G. Jackson. The crew of the Washington truck consists of Albert Wiesendanger and N. J. Fenick. All of these men are experienced in forestry as well as in public program work.

The Oregon truck started on the Mount Hood camps Tuesday, June 6, and will cover the camps of the 13 Oregon national forests by progressive travel. The Washington truck started Monday, June 12, on the Columbia national forest, covering the camps of the seven na-
