THIS IS A FLYING YEAR.

PERHAPS the time is not so far distant, after all, when people going to Europe will go by airplane if they are in a hurry. It seems almost certain that it won't be long now before mail matter will be carried across the ocean in a day or so, so fast and far has aviation proved itself.

Look at what has been going on in the air in the past few weeks. Here we have Lindbergh and his brave young wife flying to Greenland to pick out a good landing place for planes on a proposed postal route to Europe. Most people think of the southern route across the Atlantic, by way of Bermuda and the Azores, because of weather conditions. But the Greenland route is far shorter, and it is getting so that planes can fly in the northern latitudes much more safely than formerly.

General Balbo and his 24 Italian army planes came over by the northern route, via Iceland, which isn't as cold as its name implies because of the great volcanic hot springs which modify the climate and enable everybody to keep his house warm without fuel.

Here's Wiley Post, making his second flight around the world in the same plane. He crashed once, but didn't do any serious damage to himself or his plane. And here are the Mollisons, husband and wife, who flew safely from Wales to Bridgeport, Conn., and only crashed on landing in the dark because they got into a mud-flat near the landing field. And we've all read about brave Jimmy Mattern who, crashing in the Siberian wilderness, was resourceful enough to keep himself alive for seven days, by shooting game and catching fish, until rescued.

Lincoln Ellsworth is getting ready for a flight to the South Pole. Crossing the American continent between daylight and dark is so commonplace that nobody paid much attention when Amelia Earhart did it again in record time not long ago.

The rising generation will learn how to fly just as their parents learned how to drive a car.

INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS.

WE DO not quite understand why folks should be saying that the World Economic Conference in London has been a failure, when the United States comes out of it within six weeks with two important agreements.

Our delegation succeeded beyond expectations in getting all of the nations in the world which have an interest in silver to sign an agreement which is calculated to put the price of silver up to where it was before the war, or higher. That is important to the United States for several reasons. For one thing, it will be profitable to our producers of silver, but of greater importance is the fact that it will increase the value of silver money of India, China, Mexico and other silver-using nations, making it easier for them to buy our cotton and wheat and other commodities, and at the same time making it harder for them to undersell us in the competitive markets of the world.

Another plum which we seem to have picked at London is the international agreement for controlling the production of wheat, and so keeping the price up in foreign trade. This will benefit directly a much larger number of American producers than will the silver agreement, although its effect on the total of world commodity prices may not be as great.

Intelligence is what you get from home. Common sense you must develop yourself. Learning is what you obtain in school. Knowledge is what the world hands you. Judgment comes only with the years. Experience is a bitter medicine administered by life itself, and must be taken with a bit of conscience. Wisdom is a phantom often chased but seldom overtaken. Success or failure are a matter of opinion. Reputation is the golden scale. Contentment the final objective.—Buckeye, Archbold, Ohio.

Every government official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it, showing where and how each dollar is spent. This is a fundamental principle of democratic government.

"Faith in God." "Have faith in God." Mark 11-22. A miracle had been done; questions had been raised and Christ is speaking to some of the questioners in the words of the verse quoted above; answering them in the words above: "Have FAITH in God."

What was this Christ wanted people to have in God? What is FAITH? The lexicographer says FAITH is, among other things, "Inward acceptance of a personality as real and trustworthy." Again, "The recognition of Spiritual realities and moral principles as of paramount authority and supreme value." FAITH is also "utter belief" in a personality or authority; "absolute trust" in, or "confidence" in, a personality or movement. FAITH is also, "loyalty to trusted leadership."

And as we note what the various definitions set forth on FAITH, very clearly it comes to us what Christ meant when He said, "Have FAITH in God." Have utter belief and confidence in Him as the great Creator of the earth and all therein. Have perfect trust in Him as a great all-wise and all-powerful Leader; giving to Him and His leadership our utmost loyalty and loving service. We are to have FAITH in God till it shows in our daily living. No claims of ours will ever stand even the slightest and most casual scrutiny UNLESS BACKED UP BY OUR DAILY LIVES. "HAVE FAITH IN GOD." If you have not a Church home, we invite you to come and worship with us. Come and have a part in our Bible School; there is a class for you. For the coming Lotus Day the sermon topics are: For the morning service, "Church Going," and for the evening service, "Have Faith In God." You will find these particular services especially interesting and helpful. Come.

Wheat Prices Still Far From Desired "Parity" With the whole theory of the agricultural adjustment act based on means of obtaining "parity prices" for the farmers' products, increased interest is being shown in the changing relationships between the things farmers sell and the things they buy, according to L. R. Brethaupt, extension economist at Oregon State college. This is particularly true as to wheat, now the object of a definite control program.

The government index of prices paid by farmers as of July 15 is 105 per cent of the 1910-1914 average, now used as the normal period. This is two points rise since June and five points since March. As this index goes up so will the price of farm products need to rise if a fair purchasing power is to be attained.

The average farm price of wheat on July 15 had risen to 86.9 cents a bushel, or almost as high as the pre-war average, but since that time the price has gone down and commodity prices have probably raised somewhat above the 105 index, so parity is not yet in sight for wheat.

As for Oregon, the farm price of wheat has not reached any such figure, as an unusually large spread has developed between Pacific coast cash wheat prices and those at Chicago. This has amounted at times to between 20 and 30 cents a bushel. When one adds to this the freight charges from farm to terminal, it is seen that the "front page" report of Chicago futures prices is far above what the Oregon farmer can get for his wheat.

This abnormal spread between Pacific Northwest and Chicago supplies of wheat in this territory resulting from near collapse of the export outlet the last two years. In an effort to correct this situation and avoid dumping the western wheat on the eastern markets via the Panama canal, the agricultural adjustment administration is seriously considering using a small percentage of the income from the processing tax on wheat to establish an export subsidy or equalization fee by which to make possible export of this northwest surplus wheat to the Orient. Such action, it is stated, would not only restore the normal relationship between Chicago and western markets but would also protect the markets of the entire country from being depressed by distress selling of Pacific coast wheat through the east for what it would bring.

With this widening spread of wheat prices coupled with the fact that western farmers usually have to pay somewhat higher prices than the national average, little hope is seen for attaining "parity" for northwest wheat growers unless some such method is found for reducing the burdensome export surplus in this region.
