

Local Happenings

Mr. and Mrs. Vawter Crawford returned home Monday evening from a six weeks' vacation trip which took them to the coast and as far south as San Francisco where they visited at the homes of their sons Arthur and William V. On the trip going they were accompanied by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schwarz of Prineville. On the return they visited for a week at the home of Mr. Crawford's brother, O. G. and family at Klamath Falls, and from Prineville were accompanied home by Billy Schwarz who relieved his brother Leonard at the Prineville meat market while the latter was taking an enforced vacation due to an injury. Leonard is now back on the job as manager of the Prineville market. At Rockaway where the party spent a week, they had an enjoyable visit with Mrs. Delia Hallack and the W. R. Irwin family, former Heppnerites who now reside at the beach resort. The trip was wholly enjoyable with the exception of excessive fog at points along the coast, and the excessive heat on the return through the Sacramento valley. The coast route was taken all the way going, and the return was made via the east side highway through Sacramento for a view of the large amount of government work in evidence all along the route and especially in the bay region, where two bridges across the bay are in course of construction, the editor says the unemployment problem is still far from solved in the California city.

John Farley, in charge of Wilson's store at John Day, called home folks from Baker Tuesday where he was taking treatment for facial paralysis. John was injured recently when a haystack fell, hitting him on the head, while a boy with him sustained a broken leg. Shortly following the accident John had an attack of flu, and paralysis of one side of his face resulted from either the injury or the flu. The examination revealed a slight fracture of the skull, and it was thought there might be a blood clot on the brain. He reported that the doctor did not advise any special care, and that apparently the injury was not considered critical. His friends here hope for his rapid recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Hughes of McMinnville visited for a short time with relatives and friends here the first of the week. Accompanying them was their 18-months-old baby. Mr. Hughes has a drug store in the valley city. A member of the class of '17, Heppner high school, Emmet saw service in Uncle Sam's navy at wartime, later graduating in pharmacy from Oregon State college. His return visits to the old home town have been few in the last ten years as his interests elsewhere have kept him occupied, and this visit was one of much pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Clark and Ernest and Mrs. L. Van Marter returned home Monday from Port Orford where they sojourned for several weeks enjoying an outing while Mr. Clark was shearing. Bub has an injured foot which he recently cut with an axe, and his season at the coast was further marred by contracting blood poisoning in one hand for a time. He is now back on the job at his barber shop.

Billy Schwarz returned home on Monday from Prineville, where he has been located with his brother, Leonard, since school closed. While there Billy had a job in the meat market. He returned to get ready for the opening of school here and to be with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwarz. He accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Vawter Crawford from Prineville.

Mrs. Lucy Rodgers, county superintendent of schools, returned on Monday from a stay of ten days at Lehman Springs, where she rested from the duties of her office, which have been strenuous of late. Mrs. Rodgers lamented that she could not make a longer stay at the resort, as she thinks it a fine place to rest up.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Crawford, John, Hugh and Calvin and Don Turner motored to Portland Sunday to see Old Ironsides. Returning home Monday evening they stopped at Arlington long enough for Mr. Crawford to visit the Legion post of that city in his capacity of district commander.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Slocum returned Monday from a two weeks' vacation trip which took them among other places to the Oregon Caves and Crater lake. From the caves they returned north via the coast route and stopped off for a visit at the O. T. Ferguson farm near Gold Beach.

Ted, Bernard and Scott McMurdo went by train to Portland the end of the week and on Sunday visited Old Ironsides. They returned home Sunday night and were enthusiastic about the old ship, though it was impossible for them to see all that they wanted to see because of the large crowd.

Richard Peterson took time off from the job of putting up his hay crop in the Kimberley vicinity to visit town Monday in company with Joe Simas, leading land operator under the ditch at Monument.

O. A. Parker, friend of L. W. Compton, was drowned in the river near town Friday afternoon but the body was not found until Monday afternoon. Mr. Parker and Mr. Compton were swimming when they saw that Compton's motor boat had broken loose. Parker swam into the current after it and finding he could not reach the boat he started for the shore but the current was too strong for him. Compton swam out and tried to help him to shore but Parker pulled Compton under with him several times until Compton was forced to quit. Willard Nickerson was near and heard them and he also made unsuccessful attempts to bring him to shore. Compton dived from the motor boat trying to locate the body and other helpers dragged the river. On Saturday C. J. D. Bauman of Heppner and Bill Francis and Frank McMahon, state police, assisted in dragging the river but the wind was blowing the waves high and the work had to stop. Local men continued Sunday and Monday until Monday afternoon when Bud Chaffee and George Mitchell found the body in about four feet of water. The FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

FAMILY READING

I have always been a great lover of newspapers. I like to read "feature articles," especially those that are devoted to health topics. I notice the trend of such articles—they tend more and more toward the special treatment of diabetes. I read an article last evening about the treatment of diabetes. Of course it is good advice and good reading. But the special treatment of any disease belongs to the doctor. I do not advocate confusing the family with the scientific names of drugs, or directions for the administration of highly-organized chemicals, the action of which may not be understood by the reader.

We all condemn the promiscuous use of "headache tablets," and other counter-prescriptions for self treatment, because it is a dangerous practice. I saw a patient yesterday, very weak, from taking an overdose of sedative medicine that is considered harmless.

Sedative medicines quiet all bodily functions—they do not select the organs to attack. They often "quiet" functions that do not need quieting. A man with a damaged heart does not need a heavy, sedative dose for his headache. A doctor should do the selecting of a medicine for him.

If the doctor's fee is the objection—I'd rather prescribe for my patient for no fee—than for him to go ahead and bring himself into a worse condition for me to handle. Sometimes "economy" is not economy in the long run.

In very rare instances I instruct patients how to give a hypodermic dose, like insulin—for diabetes; but I hardly feel like it is doing the best thing for the patient—I'd rather do it myself—even if the patient is unable to pay for the service.

If your elephant wants to ride on top IT'S ALL RIGHT WITH A CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET We didn't actually plan on elephants when we chose the bodies for the new Chevrolet. But we did choose bodies rigid enough, and strong enough, to support six tons of elephant, or anything else you can name. . . . Fisher bodies . . . steel bodies plus a hardwood frame . . . exactly the same type of bodies used on all 12 and 16-cylinder cars. Steel alone is not enough to make you as safe and secure as we want you to be in a Chevrolet. A steel body, welded into a solid wall of protection plus resilient hardwood reinforcing to take up stress, absorb shocks and prevent the steel from following its natural tendency to buckle under pressure makes the sturdiest body of all—the kind used on the Chevrolet, and on no other low-priced car. Remember that when you buy a car. Be sure to get all you pay for . . . the super-safety of a steel-plus-wood Fisher body.
