EXAMINER HERE SEPT. 6

Martin Redding, examiner of operators and chauffeurs, will be in Heppner, Wednesday, September 6, at the court house, between the hours of 1 and 5 p. m. All those wishing permits or licenses to drive cars are asked by Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state, to get in touch with Mr. Redding at this time.

Federal examiners who presided over the hearing expect it to be approved and put into effect by September 15, in time for the winter pear and apple movement. More orderly control of markets, resulting in better returns to producers, is hoped for.

Meanwhile the administration has put its hog slaughtering plan into effect in the midwest and has announced that hog raisers in this state will also be eligible later to dispose of light weight pigs and heavy sows to farrow at premium prices. This is purely an emergency plan to avert a disastrous surplus of pork, the officials state.

More permanent plans for handling all livestock were considered at Spokane where amendments to the national code were approved and preparations made to organize the northwest states on a regional basis.

Mr. and Mrs. Gay M. Anderson and Gay, Jr., motored to Walla Walla Sunday morning where they met Miss June, who spent several weeks visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fraser in Spokane.

Northwest is Center of Much Farm Act Activity

Oregon and the Pacific northwest were the centers of much activity related to the agricultural adjustment act and having to do particularly with wheat, fruit, and livestock in this territory, according to a summary of events issued by Oregon State college.

Of vital interest the world over was the informal hearing at Portland on the proposed plan of subsidizing export of some 40 million bushels of surplus wheat in the Pacific Northwest. This constitutes a new policy for the United States and is considered to have special significance just now as the wheat exporting nations are seeking to reach some reduction agreement.

The hearing resulted in formation of a detailed plan reported acceptable to all parties concerned, particularly the producers, and exporters and the millers. The plan calls for selling this surplus wheat for what it will bring in foreign markets and then making up the difference between that and the domestic market price out of proceeds of the wheat processing tax.

The effect of this will be to raise the price in the northwest by wiping out much of the present abnormal spread between here and Chicago, officials believe. It will also clear out the present congested terminals and storage space without flooding the eastern markets and thus harming the entire domestic price level.

Immediately following the wheat hearing the formal hearing on the proposed marketing agreement for tree fruits of the four Pacific northwest states was held. Sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of the agreement submitted by the agricultural adjustment administration, which was a compromise between previous majority and minority reports.

Federal examiners who presided over the hearing expect it to be approved and put into effect by September 15, in time for the winter pear and apple movement. More orderly control of markets, resulting in better returns to producers, is hoped for.

Meanwhile the administration has put its hog slaughtering plan into effect in the midwest and has announced that hog raisers in this state will also be eligible later to dispose of light weight pigs and heavy sows to farrow at premium prices. ## Responsibilities of Success

Jesus went to John to be baptized and for a while John's influence molded him. Jesus, too, retired into the wilderness and there met the first crisis of his career. When he emerged he had formed his own plan for his work; asceticism and denunciation, he knew, were not the role for him.

His first success was swift beyond all expectations. Out of the Temple, shrieking and cursing, went the money-changers, while the crowd cheered his name to the echo. That night the whole city was stirred by the story. When he left, at the end of the feast, and went back into his own north country, he found that his fame had preceded him. Crowds flocked to hear him talk; news of his deeds of healing traveled ahead of him everywhere.

His vision of his work began to take definite shape. He would restore the self-respect of the people, abolishing the rule of formalism, and establishing a fresh, glorious conception of the Fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man. It all seemed so natural, so easy, there in the warm sunshine of Galilee with the responsive faces of the multitude turned eagerly toward him.

The year and a half that followed were filled with the joy of increasing reputation and success. Apparently there was not a single cloud in the sky.

But there were people in Jerusalem with whose private affairs his ideas would seriously interfere. He was not left long in doubt as to their attitude. Incensed at his cleansing of the Temple, they sent their spies into the north country to report his movements and made every effort to turn the crowds away. Perhaps at first he had hope of winning even his enemies to his teaching—so altogether simple and satisfying his gospel seemed to him. If so, the hope soon vanished.

Opposition crystallized; it made itself felt in every audience he addressed, in every town he visited. Reluctantly he had to face the fact that the time was coming when he must compromise or fight. It was with this realization that he faced a second greater crisis.

He had crossed the lake one day in a little boat to get away from the crowds; but they were too quick for him. Running around the end of the lake, and gathering recruits as they ran, they waited for him at the landing place—more than five thousand strong. He was tired, and wanted a chance to rest and think. But here were the people, pathetically eager, and he "had compassion on them." So he sat down among them and went on with his teaching until the day was almost over.

Next week: Eyes Upon the Goal.

More Co-Eds Enter O.S.C. Freshman Week On Soon

Corvallis—A larger proportion of women and a smaller proportion of out-of-state students in the freshmen class at Oregon State college, compared with last year, is indicated by the advance applications for admittance received by E. E. Lemon, registrar.

As freshman week starts September 18, Mr. Lemon is urging students to file their credentials immediately so as to avoid delay and possible disappointment in the last rush at registration time. This applies equally to all institutions, he says.

Students are going to be able to start this year with somewhat less cash in hand than at any time in many years as the result of reductions of fees and other expenses in effect this fall. It is estimated that with the cutting of fees by six dollars a term and with dormitory board and room at $23 a month that it will cost a student at least $100 a year less than could have been estimated a year ago.

Classification of those admitted to the college so far shows that the engineering school leads in total numbers in the coming freshman class. Next in order is home economics, lower division (junior college), secretarial science, education, agriculture, pharmacy and forestry. Those contemplating science as a major register first in lower division.

The tenth annual freshman week will be conducted much as in the past, with the program being arranged to afford the new students a thorough introduction to college life and its surroundings before actual class work begins.
