Official Paper for Morrow County

PORTLAND GETS ITS DAM.

LESLIE SCOTT'S reply to Portland complainers should be taken to heart by everyone who realizes that highway improvement out in the state means to Portland. It means far more to Portland growth, Portland commerce and Portland realty values than could expenditure of the same funds within Portland itself.

Oregon Voter's editor Chapman sees the light. So does highway commission chairman Scott. They realize that development of Portland's trade territory must be encouraged if Portland is to progress. They can see beyond the smoke screen of the city and its suburbs to the golden grain fields, the majestic forests, the cattle herds, the sheep flocks and the great mineral deposits of the Willamette coast, and inland empires, the wealth of which is reflected in the marble halls of finance, the smoking factory chimneys and the palatial mansions of the city.

Not all the leading minds of Portland have been able to see that picture. Now there is loud rejoicing over Portland's accomplishment in grabbing a full grown sow from the swine case—the high and mighty Bonneville dam.

But what is true of roads is true of rivers. The Morning Oregonian would have all Oregon rejoice with Portland that its campaign of Bonneville-centered propaganda has been upheld by decision of army engineers and the president. There are those of Oregon who in this instance, at least, would speak for themselves.

Where Senators McNary and Steiwer have risen to glorious heights in their battle for Bonneville before purely Portland-minded eyes, they have shriveled into peanut politicians in the vision of those who can see little benefit from the development to be reflected far beyond the immediate radius of the city.

Portland has obtained its high dam with the promise of $31,000,000 to be expended at its doorway. Let that not be begrudged them. They may get an abundance of cheap power. They may have that also. But the while, the stream of fruits from the field, plain, forest and mine to feed the factories which might use the power, will flow no larger into Portland, in fact, will be diminished as freight differentials to other coast cities are wiped out as they surely will be.

It still remains for the natural course of events to bring the great Northwest into its own. It will not be accomplished by political manipulation.

AFTER PROHIBITION, WHAT? WITH the rock-ribbed "original" dry state of Maine falling into line for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado following close on its heels, it is all over but the shouting so far as National Prohibition is concerned. Twenty-nine states have ratified the repeal amendment so far; every state in which the question has been put to vote. In the light of what has occurred, it is foolish to doubt that all others will vote for repeal as soon as they have the chance, so that by the fifth of December the full thirty-six states whose consent is required to change the Constitution will have registered their consent.

The concern of everyone who regards the liquor traffic as a serious and degrading evil must, therefore, be focussed now on three major items. First, what will Congress do, when it meets in January, in the matter of necessary legislation, both as to the tax to be imposed upon "hard" liquor and laws for the protection of any state which may vote itself dry? For each state is again free to set up its own regulation of the liquor traffic, or to ban it altogether; and it is not at all inconceivable that states which went two to one for national prohibition repeal may vote themselves dry, feeling that they would be able to control what the Federal government could not control. Next, every state, legislature will be faced with the necessity of deciding how to license and tax the traffic.

The third concern of those who are opposed to the liquor traffic is with the education of youth in the ways of temperance. That is the most important item of all. It was tremendously effective in the pre-prohibition days; so effective that drinking was hardly tolerated in most communities and drunkenness was uniformly held disgraceful.

We believe there will be a great revival of the temperance movement, and we sincerely hope it will be effective.

LOOKING AHEAD.

IT SEEMS certain enough to us that we shall pull out of the depression about as rapidly as human affairs in the large can be expected to move. A few months from now everybody will realize that the worst has passed; a year or two from now most will have forgotten there ever was a depression.

Things are getting set for the next big upward spurt. Once we are all on solid ground again, big things are waiting to be done. New inventions, which will be the basis of new industries, have been making time, making tentative advances, becoming perfected and developed, pending the time when the public was ready for them.

Among the things we feel certain will come about is a complete revolution in our ideas of home-building. Everything points that way. New kinds of materials, new methods of construction, new external designs, will replace the old ideas in a high percentage of the new houses that will be built in the next ten years.

We have been interested in some of the pictures and articles about the new kinds of railroad trains and locomotives which are being experimented with. We look forward to a revival of interest in the railroad as a means of transportation. Nothing has even threatened to replace the railroad for long hauls of heavy freight, but swifter and more comfortable means of transportation have affected railroad passenger business. It seems certain to us that railroad speeds of a hundred miles an hour, with air-conditioned cars which will be comfortable in all weathers, are among the promises which the near future holds.

There isn't anything that is much more fun than to watch the world and its ideas change and speculate on what will come next.

Next to a Camel Chevrolet gives most miles per gallon

No argument about the camel. When it comes to miles per gallon, there's nothing in all the Gobi desert—or Sahara—or anywhere else—that can beat him. No argument about Chevrolet, either. It's the most economical form of full-size transportation on wheels. You can travel a long, long way in a Chevrolet Six without a single stop for gas or oil. In fact, you can get more miles out of a gallon of gas in a Chevrolet, than you can get in any other full-size car. The best proof of this is the way Chevrolet is being preferred by leading national business firms. These firms know their mileage figures. And today, Chevrolet is their first choice by an overwhelming count. Chevrolet is also first choice of the American public by the widest margin in history. CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT; MICHIGAN
