tended was followed by an interesting program at 8 o'clock. Officers of the grange were seated in form followed by the ceremonies of opening the bible and presentation of the flag. Roll call was answered by officers with answers to the question, 'Why join the grange?' Several charter members were presented and seated in a position of prominence. An address of welcome by the master was followed by the reading of greetings from the national master. There was a vocal solo by Mr. Spaulding, a drill by the Cecil school, a talk on fire prevention and fire insurance by H. E. Cool, a vocal trio by Mrs. Vernice Crawford, Mrs. Peter Timm and Mrs. Dean Engleman. A talk on the new Morrow county industry, the growing of sorghum and making sorghum 'lasses by Ernest Heliker, a piano duet by Marion and Mansel Krebs, a reading by Shirley Hurst, a talk on state library and child welfare by Mrs. Harriet Brown, singing of well known songs by the audience, a pantomime, a talk by County Agent Smith on the latest developments in the wheat allotment plan, a talk by Oscar Lundell on the principles of the grange, a reading by Mrs. Oscar Lundell and a good night song by Harriet Heliker. After the program the children were engaged in a feather blowing contest. The award for the winning side was a box of candy which they generously distributed among contestants and spectators alike. The floor was then cleared for dancing. An exhibit of needlework and home canning was on display during the evening and a large blackboard was hung on the wall where all farmers were invited to write a notice of any farm produce they had for sale or exchange. Willows grange announces a social dance at their hall on Saturday evening, October 14. Mrs. Bernice Christopherson of Hermiston, district president of the 6th district of the Oregon state department of the American Legion Auxiliary, will install the officers of the local unit at their room in the Legion hall Wednesday evening, October 11. Several members of the Hermiston unit are expected to be present. A short program is being prepared and the members of the Legion have been asked to join the auxiliary members during a social hour following the meeting. All members are urged to be present. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Swanson are having their house remodeled and repainted. A concrete foundation has been put under it, worn sills replaced and new floors laid. The work is being done by a brother-in-law of Mrs. Garland Swanson. Work has been completed on the repairs made necessary on the home of Mrs. Lana Padberg as a result of the fire last spring. The entire house has been re-papered and all woodwork painted. New electrical wiring and fixtures have been installed and considerable repairs made on the building, including a new roof. Carpenter work was done by Clark Davis of Lexington, wiring by W. H. Maht of Heppner and painting and paper hanging by the Thornburgs of Lexington. O. E. S. Hunt, Jack McMillan, Vivian White, Alfred Van Winkle, Garland Thomson, Vester Thornburg, Claud Wilcox. The glee clubs elected the following officers: Faye Luttrell, manager for the girls and Emma Lane, librarian; Jack McMillan, manager for the boys, and Garland Thomson, librarian. Friday was physical examination day for the grades. All the pupils were weighed, measured and tested. Teeth defects were most numerous. Parents should consult Supt. Williams in case of doubt concerning the reports which were sent home. Teeth and eye defects should be corrected now as they mean so much to the health and happiness of the children later on. Friday evening the annual freshman initiation party was held in the gym. Alma Van Winkle and Doris Burchell were responsible for some refreshments which were different. The sophomores showed their good sportsmanship by not repeating the strenuous initiation which they themselves had to undergo last year. The freshmen in their assembly Monday recorded a vote of thanks for the evening's entertainment and promise to have an interesting program for their return party next Friday evening. Bernice Martin, president of the freshman class, says the party will present some very unusual features. Lexington plays a scrimmage with Heppner Friday. Coach Beach expects his men to benefit by this practice game. On Wednesday the freshmen play Mr. Gillis' 7th and 8th grade team. Word has been received that Amy Strodtman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Strodtman, formerly of this city, has been pledged to Theta Sigma Upsilon, national social sorority, at Emporia. Wilcox, and made plans for the meetings during the year. Miss Ruth Dunford of Portland is the guest of Mrs. A. H. Nelson. Reaney, at his home at Wenatchee, Wash. Mr. Reaney had visited at the Burchell home many times in the past and had many acquaintances here. Among those from here who attended the Pendleton Round-Up Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Munkers, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Miller and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Leach, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Tucker and family, Mrs. Adella Duran and son Moses, Mr. and Mrs. George Peck and two sons, Harry Dinges and son Danny, Mrs. Ed Burchell and daughters Grace and Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Tucker, Edith Tucker, Johnnie Miller, Fred Nelson, Lawrence and Harold Beach, George Scott, Woodrow Tucker, Paul Nichols, S. Laurel Beach, after a week's absence, returned to conduct his classes Tuesday. Organization of a glee club will begin immediately. The senior class met Monday to consider plans for the class play and other details of graduation. All the teachers spent an enjoyable day at the institute Friday. The following Lexington teachers will serve on the committee which is to formulate plans for the next institute: Mrs. LaVelle White and Supt. James H. Williams. Mrs. Turner was appointed to serve on the declaratory committee and Miss McMillan on the spelling contest committee. Mr. Gillis will represent the Morrow county teachers when the O. S. T. A. meets in Portland during the holidays. Mr. Beach will be on the committee which arranges the next grade school athletic meet. The P. T. A. held its annual reception for the teachers of Lexington on Wednesday evening in the gym.

Further Opportunity for Army Enlistment Given
Young men interested in gaining a knowledge of motor mechanics, both aviation and heavy duty tractor engines, will be pleased with Major Paul Hathaway's announcement that the U. S. Army Recruiting station, located at 323 New Post Office building, Portland, is taking applications for enlistment in branches of the army where such training may be had. A very limited number of vacancies are available in the air corps, and a similarly limited number of vacancies exist in a motorized field artillery unit at Fort Lewis, Wash. Major Hathaway also stated that enlistments could be made for Letterman General hospital, San Francisco, where training in clinical laboratory work, X-ray, surgery, dentistry and other technical work may be had. In addition to these vacancies mentioned, enlistments may still be made in coast artillery corps, infantry and in horse drawn field artillery. An enlistment in any of these branches of service may easily become the means of learning a trade that will be of lasting value upon return to civil life.

TROOP NEWS.
The Flying Eagle patrol headed by La Verne Van Marter has gained an excellent lead in the intrapatriot contest with 99 points. The Flaming Arrows are second with 28 points, but are closely followed by the Lions with 23 points. The contest has some time yet to run, therefore the story may be different soon. Among the activities which the Flying Eagles put on to gain their lead was an interesting snapshot hike last Saturday. On Tuesday evening Jackson Gilliam's gang of Lions met at the home of Larry Moore to devise plans for bringing the Flying Eagles down from their perch at the top of troop honors. The weekly troop meeting was held last evening at the gym. An interesting program was put on with the help of Lieut. Vawter Parker who gave the scouts some military drill. After this the scouts enjoyed a game of "Steal the Bacon." The meeting was concluded with the Scout Oath and the blowing of Taps.—Dean Goodman, troop reporter.

Mrs. Everett Hayes and children, Leland and Mildred, arrived from their home at Joseph Tuesday night for a visit with Mrs. Hayes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vawter Crawford. Fourteen million farmers raise the basic commodities covered by the new law.

Last Chance Given to Get Wheat Plan Money

With the deadline for signing applications for wheat allotments set forward about two weeks in many Oregon counties, particularly west of the mountains, those in charge of the campaign in this state are making a final effort to see that every wheat grower is acquainted with the benefits that await him under the provisions of the act, and that he knows this is the last chance to get an allotment for the coming two years. "Indications are that many farmers are just now realizing the fact that this plan affords immediate cash benefits to the individual and that its advantages to the average wheat grower do not depend entirely on future betterment of the wheat market," says Paul V. Maris, director of the Oregon State college extension service, which is directing the educational and organizational campaign. "As fast as this is understood, farmers have hurried to get in their applications. Extension from the first deadline of September 25 was granted at the request of many county organizations to accommodate these late comers." Estimates made at the end of the first closing date were that Oregon will ultimately turn in 6000 applications covering some 800,000 seeded acres of wheat, Maris has reported to Washington. Eastern Oregon has given quick and hearty support to the plan, running 90 per cent or better. Western Oregon, with its many small acreages, has been slower and it is doubtful if the final sign-up will exceed 50 per cent of the acreage, though nearly all the larger growers have applied for allotments. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has directed a final warning to growers in states that have been slow to sign up that there is absolutely no prospect of bettering the wheat situation without production control as provided in the allotment plan. Incomplete reports near the end of September showed 380,472 farmers had signed applications agreeing to take more than 4 1/2 million acres out of production in return for the cash benefit payments, Wallace reported. The original goal was the retirement of about 9 1/2 million acres from wheat production. Those who sign will get the market price for three crops plus cash benefit payments, it is emphasized. Those who stay out will get only the market price.

O.S.C. MAN WINS AWARD.
Students in the school of engineering at O. S. C. have maintained their past record by once more winning one of the two annual awards for the best research paper in electrical engineering prepared by any senior student in the United States. Kenneth Eldredge of Portland, now a graduate student at Corvallis, has just been notified that his paper on "A New Wattmeter for Communication Circuits" has been given the second or honorable mention award. In the seven years the awards have been made Oregon State students have won two first places and six seconds, exceeding the record of any other college. For $2 per year accident policies see A. Q. OREGON FRUIT TO MEET ALL TESTS

Latest Cleaning Methods Worked Out by O. S. C. Chemists Now Used Throughout the State.

Oregon apples and pears will go to world markets this year cleaned better than ever before and fully meeting the new federal requirements of an extremely low tolerance for lead as well as other spray residues, says R. H. Robinson, agricultural chemist in the Oregon State college experiment station. As soon as it was learned early this year that the new regulations would be in effect this season, Robinson and other station scientists set to work in cooperation with growers, shipping interests and cleaning machinery manufacturers to see what extra precautions, if any, would need to be taken by Oregon growers this year to make sure that fruit from this state would receive the federal O. K. The result is the perfecting of washing procedure which is already in effect in the principal fruit sections and which has been recorded in permanent form in a new bulletin entitled, "The Removal of Lead and Arsenic Spray Residues from Apples and Pears," by Robinson and his assistant, M. B. Hatch. "Under most Oregon conditions we find that the usual hydrochloric acid wash as developed by the Oregon station some years ago is adequate to remove both kinds of residue when the fruit is washed promptly and with slightly heated solution when necessary," says Robinson. "Pear growers have experienced little or no difficulty this season. "Complications in cleaning arise mostly through the use of oil sprays late in the season and thru accumulations of wax on the fruit because of its being allowed to remain long on the tree or to stand long after picking before washing. For that reason growers were advised not to apply oil sprays after July 7. Tests this year will show the latest date possible for use of oil sprays." A double washing process using both acid and alkali and employing tandem machines was worked out this summer by the chemists and enough equipment has been installed in the principal centers to handle any of the fruit that proves unusually difficult to clean. The new bulletin, which is free to Oregon residents, gives detailed results of the experiments conducted this year. For Sale—300 ewes from 2 to 5 yrs. W. H. French, Hardman. 281f
