Lexington housewives are seen busily engaged with brooms and dust mops, cleaning out the effects of the severe dust storm which raged in this vicinity from Saturday till Monday night. Entry by a high gate from the southwest the dust swept over the town and surrounding country in clouds so dense that at times visibility was reduced to a few feet.

Mr. Sias' topic for the Christmas sermon in the Church of Christ on Sunday morning will be "The Prince of Peace." The program at the church last Sunday night was a very interesting one, and well received, though the storm prevented many from coming. An offering was taken for benevolent work, which will be sent to the home for the aged at Eugene. Offerings of material things, foods, etc., will be made next Sunday for local distribution.

School Notes

Mr. Beach's vocational guidance class listened to Rev. Sias talk on the ministry as a profession last Monday.

A strange commotion occurred in the study hall Tuesday afternoon. A large number of students were grouped about Alfred Van Winkle. It turned out that he had a beautiful black eye. Everyone is still trying to find out how he got it but to date no one has been able to make him divulge the secret.

Miss Hammel's party for the senior play cast turned out to be quite a jolly affair. Dancing provided the main diversion of the evening with Ruth Luttrell playing the piano. The programs consisted of tiny cards made to represent the curtain for the senior play, "The Man From Nowhere." Those present were Rose Thornburg, Fern Luttrell, Garland Thompson, Vivian White, Betty Doherty, Doris Burchell, Jack McMillan, Mrs. LaVelle White and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Williams.

Doris Burchell was elected yell leader at a special student body meeting this week. This was due to the resignation of Bernice Martin from this office.

The one-act play, "Paradise," has been postponed on account of the epidemic of measles.

Galey Johnson, janitor, declares that he has swept enough dust out of the school house after the recent storm to plant a garden in.

The high school drew names for Christmas presents. The student body party will be held on Friday when a tree will be trimmed and presents distributed.

Believe it or not; Doris Burchell really went to Heppner to get the school census last week.

Alma Van Winkle enjoyed herself at the smoker Saturday night.

Kenneth Peck didn't have his history lesson Tuesday.

F. Cooke, representative of the Oregon Farmer, has been in town for several days.

Work is being done on the road up the canyon toward the ranch of J. S. and Arthur Johnson. Several Ione men are at work there. This work is being done under the C. W. A. as is the grading in front of the school house and other work about town.

R. H. Zinter has purchased the ranch which has been farmed by Tilman Hogue for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Hogue have moved to the Esteb place while looking for another location.

The minstrel and carnival staged by the grade school last Friday evening in the gym was an outstanding success both as to finance and also as to quality of entertainment. All who saw it are agreed that it is the best performance in the way of grade school programs that has ever been seen in our town. About three hundred people were present. The play was written by the teachers themselves in order to have material to enable every youngster in the school to be in it. The receipts for the evening were $185.86 and after expenses were paid there was a balance of $135.78 which will be used to cover the cost of the hot lunches being served free to all the grade school pupils each noon. The teachers also wish to acknowledge a gift for this fund from the local American Legion post in the amount of $5. They also wish to express their sincere appreciation to the friends and patrons of the school for the donations of time and food stuffs all of which helped to swell the grand total of funds. The hot lunches are served to an average of sixty pupils each day.

The high wind of the past few days has done quite a bit of damage according to reports brought in from the country. Outbuildings, header boxes and straw stacks are among the things which the wind has upset or blown away.

Mrs. Victor Rietmann and Mrs. Earl Blake were hostesses to the Topic club at the Rietmann home on last Saturday evening. Six tables of bridge were at play during the evening. High scores were won by Mrs. Bert Mason and Werner Rietmann and low scores by Mrs. Edw. Rietmann and Victor Peterson.

Refreshments of creamed chicken and coffee were served at the end of the evening.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan gave a dinner at her home last Friday in honor of the birthday of her son, Milton Morgan, Jr. The affair was a complete surprise to the guest of honor. Those present were Norman Everson, Joel Engelman, Richard Lundell, Norman Nelson, Paul Smouse, Earl McCabe, Norman Swanson, Norton Lundell, Leonard Whitlow and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Lundell.

Louis Halvorsen, a student at the E. O. Normal school at La Grande, is spending the holidays with his father, Matt Halvorsen.

Miss Lorraine Pope has been ill during the past week and her room at school has been taught by Mrs. Inez Freeland.

On Friday afternoon there will be a Christmas program given in the gym at the school house at 12:45 p. m. Later in the afternoon each room in the grades will have a Christmas tree and party and the high school will have a party in their assembly hall.

On Friday evening the boys of the high school played at Rufus, the final score being 19-26 in favor of Rufus. Saturday the high school boys' and girls' teams and also the town team of Roosevelt came to Ione for games. An exceptionally large crowd was on hand to see the local teams win all three games. Final scores were, girls 17-18, boys 9-12, town teams 21-24.

Wheat League Told How Export Plan Has Helped

Vigorous action regarding numerous matters of state and national policy affecting farming in eastern Oregon particularly, and the state generally to some extent, was taken at the annual convention of the Eastern Oregon Wheat league in its "homecoming" session at Moro early in December. The league was organized there in 1926 as an outgrowth of the economic conference on wheat growing sponsored by the Oregon State college extension service.

J. B. Adams of Moro, vice-president for the past year and chairman of the taxation committee for this convention, was elected president for the coming year, and Mac Hoke, Pendleton, vice-president. Charles Smith, Heppner, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Arlington will be the meeting place next year, as the league renews its "swing around the circle" of cities in the wheat belt.

The meeting was the occasion for what were considered highly significant reports by officials in charge of government managed exports of wheat from the northwest, and federal farm credit agencies at Spokane.

Orris Dorman, chairman of the federal exporting board at Portland, reported that close to eight million bushels of grain have been disposed of outside the country since the exporting machinery was set up. He said sales are being made only at world prices and that supplies are not being dumped abroad as some had feared. Sales so far have averaged about a 20-cent "drawback" or subsidy from the government processing fund to give growers a domestic price for this export wheat.

Dorman said he is convinced the export plan has been responsible for reducing the spread between Portland and Chicago prices by at least 10 cents, and that it has kept the Portland market at least 15 cents above what it would otherwise have been. He believes that this export subsidy method, which is the first plan closely approaching the old grange export debenture plan ever tried in America, is workable even on a more national scale.

The league voted to ask continuance of this export plan as long as necessary to clear out the oppressive surplus from this area. Carefully prepared committee reports were adopted by the convention dealing with taxation policies, farm finance and marketing, transportation, and production and handling.

LOCAL NEWS

Merle Becket, John Parker, Harlan Devin, Paul Jones and Clarence and Homer Hayes were the guests of Terrel Benge on Sunday, and joined with their host in a rabbit hunt at the Social Ridge farm. A fitting climax to the day's work of slaying rabbits, was the fine turkey dinner served the boys by Mrs. R. L. Benge, and the young men are sure that their best work was done at the dining table.

J. B. Huddleston and sister, Miss Beza Huddleston, visited in this city Saturday and Sunday. While range conditions have been fairly good in the Loroner country he thinks it will be necessary to move the sheep down on Rock creek where pasture is better and thus avoid early feeding. There is just a little snow over that way.

Elerly Martin, aged 8, son of Myles Martin of Lexington, suffered fracture of the left arm just above the wrist Friday morning, when he was thrown from a horse he was riding about the cows. The little lad was brought to Heppner for surgical treatment on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliza Vinson of the Lena district were visitors here on Wednesday. Mr. Vinson thinks little damage was done by the stiff winds in his locality this week, but the dust was flying in clouds and the experience was disagreeable in the extreme.

Kate J. Young lodge, Degree of Honor Prot. Assn., meets Friday, Dec. 22, in I. O. O. F. hall at 8:00 o'clock. The Juveniles are all invited. Each member is asked to bring a gift not to exceed 15 cents. Clara Beamer, Sec. No. 29.

Gene Gentry was in town from his Lexington home Saturday and reported everything moving O. K. in his community. A little touch of winter came on Friday, but being past the middle of December, this is to be expected.

Mrs. Margaret Blake, our Ione correspondent, was doing some shopping in this city Wednesday afternoon.

Henry Smouse, Ione farmer, was an interested visitor at the bank meeting here on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Palmer were Lexington people shopping in this city Saturday.

Lowly Spuds Finally Get Place in Vitamin Lists

Food research is bringing increasing respect to the common potato not only as a source of energy but as a builder of red blood and a protection against common ailments says Miss Lucy A. Case, extension specialist in nutrition at O. S. C. Potatoes are now known to be a good source of the essential vitamins B, C, and G, the vitamin C content, however, being dependent on quick, short cooking. Professor Henry C. Sherman, national nutrition authority, says that potatoes are a very important source of vitamin C because of the large extent to which they enter into the daily dietaries of many people, and in practice it is often largely upon potatoes that the adequacy of the supply of vitamin C in low-cost winter dietaries depends.

One might not consider that potatoes are much like oranges in the diet which some homemakers buy at a sacrifice of other necessary items for fear of a shortage of vitamin C. Potatoes are eaten much more frequently and in larger amounts than oranges, and doubtless the total amount of vitamin C obtained from potatoes is as much as the amount we take in oranges, points out Miss Case.

Potatoes are also valuable for the minerals iron and phosphorus, and as an aid in maintaining the alkali balance of the human body. In low cost diets, where a wide variety of vegetables and fruits is impossible, serving potatoes twice a day is a desirable practice in attaining good nutrition. Fifteen pounds a week are recommended for a family of parents and two children, in an adequate low cost diet and this amount may even be increased.

Soaking peeled potatoes in water before cooking causes loss of minerals and vitamins. Very little mineral is lost by baking, steaming or boiling in their skins, but considerable mineral is lost by peeling and boiling, especially if cut small.

On the other hand, vitamin C is largely destroyed by cooking longer than 15 minutes. In order to strike a balance, bake, steam or boil potatoes whole in their coats part of the time. Part of the time, peel and cut them and boil rapidly, covered not longer than 15 minutes, or until tender, and use the water in soups, gravies and sauces.

Four More Projects Okeed Under CWA

Morrow county's full quota of 119 projects are now at work on CWA projects over the county, and signs of the improvement work are being noted on every hand. Three of the latest projects to be approved were started last Friday and Saturday, with 10 men each being employed on the road improvement work on upper and lower Rhea creek and the Johnson hill section of the Ione-Boardman market road. Telegraphic approval was received yesterday for $50 to be expended in repairing Heppner library books.

A change was made in the local administration force last week end, with Vawter Parker named manager of county CWA work, and John F. Vaughn named reemployment manager. Walter Cochran of Ione has taken a position on the office clerical force.
