Great Men

Washington and Lincoln were great men in the minds of most American citizens. They are two of the outstanding presidents in the history of the United States. They have given the American people an impression of real leadership that has not been excelled and probably will not be for many years to come. These two great men became president when the country was in turmoil.

Washington, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, led the American troops to victory during the Revolutionary War. He became our first president by the unanimous vote of every person in the United States at that time. He set the United States government on a sound financial basis during his two terms as president.

Lincoln became president during the darkest time in our history, the Civil War. He reunited the states and freed the negroes when the task seemed almost impossible. If a man of Lincoln's type had not been president at this time, it is hard to say what might have happened to our Union.

These great men had two of the same characteristics. They both put the welfare of their country above everything else. Both were severely criticized during their life. On the other hand, Lincoln came from a family of very humble origin, while Washington was born into a family of aristocrats.

These two men obtained their popularity and greatness from their honesty and their interest in the people's welfare. We, too, can acquire popularity by our interest in and helpfulness to our friends and acquaintances.

Patriotism

Looking back some two hundred years, one sees the time when perhaps the greatest of American patriots lived. This man was George Washington. His birthday is commemorated all over the United States today. He was not an unusual person, but just a common ordinary man. What, then, made him so popular among his fellow-men?

Washington was the ideal man. Not only was his patriotism well known, but his character was also applauded. He was kind-hearted. He appealed to the common people and was their leader.

His patriotism was unsurpassed. Washington's love of country made him one of the great patriots. Even though he lived two hundred years ago, Washington set an example which lives today. His example should be followed and carried on, so the coming generations may have it to guide them. Washington had his faults, to be sure; but his good points more than overcame them.

So we pay tribute to "The Father of the Land We Love" by saying—if more of us were the George Washingtons of today, our country would have something of which to be proud.

Hehisch Committee Holds Trial

At the assembly last Friday the Hehisch committee held its first trial. Lamoyne Cox was charged with throwing things while attending a recent basketball game. He was summoned before the table of the Hehisch committee by Sergeant-at-Arms Howard Bryant who read the charge to which Lamoyne pleaded guilty. The committee criticized Lamoyne for his misconduct by a questionnaire, each committee member asking a question concerning loyalty and obedience to the school, to the student body, and to the constitution. After hearing Lamoyne's answers the committee adjourned, and on return sentenced him to deliver a minute-and-a-half apology to the student body.

Debate Given

Heppner high school's debate squad held a practice debate at the assembly program last Friday afternoon. The subject for debate was "Resolved: that the United States should adopt the essential features of the British system of radio operation and control." The affirmative side was upheld by Ralph Curin and Frances Rugg and the negative by Billy Thomson and Francis Nickerson. No decision was given as the debate was for practice only. The debate squad will go to Pendleton Saturday to take part in the debate tournament to be held there. The squad is being coached by Mr. Peevey.

Benzine Ring Meeting

Volcanoes and geysers were the main topics discussed by the Benzine Ring at its meeting last Thursday night. Armin Whilon and Ervin Perlberg furnished information on these interesting subjects. During the business meeting it was decided that the Benzine Ring would conduct a questionnaire column in the Hehisch in which the Ring will endeavor to answer to the best of its ability any questions of a scientific nature. The questions along with reasonably short answers will be published in the Hehisch each week. Questions requiring longer answers will be answered personally. Students are requested to give their questions to Mr. Peevey. The vacancy in the club caused by the absence of Phyllis Pollock will be filled by a new member to be chosen sometime in the near future. All members were requested to be at all future meetings by 7:30 p. m. to avoid having to call the roll twice.

Pep Band Attends Rally

The high school pep band played several selections at an impromptu rally held Saturday night on Main street immediately preceding the Heppner-Pendleton basketball game. After the rally the band pepped up the team during the rest periods of the game.

Pendleton Defeats Heppner

The Pendleton Buckaroos defeated the Irish quintet last Saturday night at the gymnasium by a score of 27-15. Both teams played a fast and brilliant game of ball. The score stood 8-7 for Pendleton the first half. The third quarter ended 13-8 in favor of Heppner. In the last period of the game the Pendleton hoopsters hit the basket with nearly every ball shot. They scored 19 points while Heppner scored only 2.

Well Worn Advice

As I was saying last week ladies, gentlemen and friends, also enemies, if I have any by now. Model T. Ford is well known device to get a person by most people that they sometimes run out of gas. While gas is the topic of conversation, take it before an operation, it will do the most good then. If the operation should be mental take an aspirin. Asbestos is a good insulator for fire or hot things—why not try it for a fever. If you haven't a fever there's red pepper and other substitutes. Speaking of substitutes, it is a good idea to do your own good formation for buildings, but not as good as glass for aquariums. Also don't wait until you jump off an aeroplane to discover you forgot the parachute. It would be a good idea to take it with you; if you doubt me, try it. You will find that it drives easier after the first pint. But when you see a bridge coming, why, suit yourself whether to turn out and let it go by or not. If the bridge isn't good you had better speak to the dentist about it. Well, I'll be signing off for another week among the heart throngs, bye-bye.

HAVE YOU EVER SEEN—

The yell leaders at a pep rally?
Marion Oviatt writing notes?
Mr. Peevey take down his hair and weep?
Francis Nickerson riding in a red Buick coupe?
Chet Christenson running around with a joke book?
Any girls in the boy's Room 8 assembly?

Lon Wattenburger drove the lower bus in Earle's place last week.

Friday, Feb. 23, the Merry Troopers of Hermiston will give a series of plays, skits and dialogues at the Alpine school house.

People should be interested as the girls' glee club from here is going to sing.

The pupils in the primary room have started an aquarium. In the aquarium they have a Japanese Green snail. It is quite interesting to watch. They also have silk worms which are spinning cocoons, and some raw silk.

Two Seasons of the Year.

By Floyd Conrad
Spring is like a maiden
Clothed in lovely green;
Her breath is honey laden—
One more beautiful was never seen.

Winter is an old man,
His hair of flowing white,
With a breath, the land he covers
In a coat of dazzling white.
After we have conquered winter
And have driven him away,
"When shall I enter?"
Lady Springtime seems to say.
I'd like to see a maiden
Who is lovelier than Spring,
And whose breath so sweetly laden!
Such a lovely thing!

CHAS. DEVIN GETS JOB.

Charles Devin, who is now a member of the police force at Bend but formerly served with the state police in The Dalles territory, was appointed as one of the clerks in the state liquor store at Bend, it was announced this week. Devin had applied for appointment as district supervisor under the Knox law.—The Dalles Optimist.

U O. Scientist Proves Spring Early in State

Eugene.—Science now steps forward to corroborate what just about everybody in this part of Oregon has observed—that spring is at least a couple of months ahead of schedule. Louis F. Henderson, curator of the University of Oregon herbarium, who has been busy the past few days adding blooms to the collection here, has compared dates on which he has gathered blooming plants with the earliest recorded dates, and while these dates are not necessarily the earliest of their respective years, they can at least be taken for average, he points out.

A number of plants that ordinarily put forth blooms in the so-called "spring" have been blooming all winter, he has observed. The nearest approach to this year, 1934, occurred in 1926, according to data in the herbarium.

Hazel (Caryus Rostrata Californica) bloomed this year on January 31, Mr. Henderson observed, while the herbarium records show earliest previous bloom as March 19, in 1903. Pussy Willow, (Salix Scouleriana) were in bloom this year January 31, compared to the earliest recorded date of March 5, in 1926. Oregon or Red Alder, in bloom this year January 31, was in bloom February 16, back in 1896.

Other early blooms, with dates as shown in the herbarium, follow:

Oso berry or Squa plum, January 31, 1934; March 7, 1926. Western Early Buttercup, January 30, 1934; April 7, 1902. Common daisy, January 20, 1934; March 14, 1902. Smaller Toothwort, wrongly called Spring Beauty, January 30, 1934; March 24, 1902. Oregon Grape, February 4, 1934; March 9, 1926. Scotch Broom, February 4, 1934; May 28, 1880. Pale Baby Blue Eyes, January 31, 1934; March 27, 1926.
