Official Paper for Morrow County

THE AMERICAN CITIZEN AND THE N. R. A.

(Written to assist entrants in the American Legion Auxiliary essay and oratorical contests.)

By MRS. LUCY E. RODGERS

Most persons start working full time before they are twenty years old. On the average, people in the United States live until they are nearly sixty. This means that they will work about forty years.

Remember there is no economic Santa Claus. You do not get something for nothing. You don't get pay without work. Neither can you depend upon luck.

The cry of the masses today is, "We want greater economic security." It is terrible to be hungry and without work when you are old and want to work.

The basic ideal behind the N. R. A. plans is not only to put people back to work but to put them to work at fair wages and to keep them steadily employed at such wages.

The world's economic recovery will be largely determined by the degree of success that crowns the American efforts. Will national planning on a large scale succeed?

We are the greatest law makers and law breakers in the world. Perhaps that is the chief reason for the frequent periods of distress which we suffer.

COMPTROLLER ON JOB.

Corvallis—H. A. Bork, new comptroller for the entire Oregon state system of higher education, has arrived and taken over his new duties at the central business office on the Oregon State college campus. Mr. Bork is a comparatively young man who left a position as comptroller at the University of Wisconsin to take over the work of managing the business affairs of the Oregon system. He was interviewed in the east by Chancellor W. J. Kerr some months ago before being offered the position by the state board of higher education.

CONFERENCE BIGGEST YET.

Corvallis—The fourth annual Homemakers' conference at Oregon State college the first week in March was the biggest yet held, with women present from at least half the counties of the state. A widely varied program was carried through resulting in better coordination of home betterment work for the coming year, by all agencies concerned. The conference is sponsored annually by the school of home economics.
