

IONE

By MARGARET BLAKE

W. A. or as he is better known, "Bill" Thomas who has made his home near Morgan for several years was moved last week by A. J. Chaffee of Heppner, into the house occupied until recently by Harvey Ring and family.

Mrs. Victor Peterson of Heppner spent the week end with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Heliker had as their guests last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Howell and family and Mr. and Mrs. James Lindsay and family. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Deos and family of Willows called at the Heliker home.

The Women's Topic club met last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. M. Ward. The subject of study was "Present Day Russia." Roll call, "Rumors I have heard about Russia," was answered by fourteen members. A very interesting review of the book, "First to Go Back," by Skariatina, was given by Mrs. Inez Freeland, Mrs. Elaine Rietmann and Mrs. Ruth Mason. This book was written by a Russian countess now married to an American who, as the name of her book implies, was the first of the titled Russian aristocracy, who is not a communist, to be allowed to return to Russia for a visit.

The book tells of her impressions of the changes which have taken place in the ten years since she had been in her native land. Following this review, Mrs. George Tucker gave a resume of parts of Emily Post's "Etiquette" which would be of general interest and benefit to the members of the club. An open discussion of the program material closed the program after which the hostess served delicious refreshments. Besides the members four guests were present.

E. C. Heliker has purchased one of the Wheatland disc plows put out by Case Machinery company and so far is very well pleased with his new piece of farm equipment. He uses sixteen mules for power to operate it.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Linn will occupy the house formerly occupied by Chas. Allinger.

Members of Locust chapter, O. E. S. held a special meeting last Friday evening as scheduled in spite of the fact that due to illness, Miss Edith Phillips, associate grand matron of Oregon, was not able to make her official visit on that evening as announced. Following the business meeting those present enjoyed refreshments of sherbert and cake. Both the dining room and chapter room were beautifully decorated with spring flowers.

H. D. McCurdy departed Wednesday for Sherman county where he will spend some time on appraisal work for the Federal Land bank.

Willows grange will have a public dance at their hall in Cecil on Saturday night, March 10. Good music is assured. All Willows subordinate grange officers are asked to meet at the hall that evening as near 7 o'clock as possible, to rehearse Pomona degree work.

Mrs. Roy Brown spent the week end with her family at Hermiston.

Mrs. E. G. Sperry, Mrs. Harriet Brown, Miss Lucy Spittle, Mrs. Elmer Baldwin and Miss Lorraine Pope have all signed contracts to teach in the local school again next year.

Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Robison drove to The Dalles on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Hobart Helms of Hermiston is visiting relatives in Ione.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harris spent Monday in Hermiston. Mrs. Harris has been ill for some time suffering with pains in her back. While in Hermiston she received medical treatment for this trouble.

Mrs. Bessie Everson has been awarded the contract to carry the mail on the Star route from Ione to Eight Mile corner and return, beginning July first. The amount for which the contract was let is $1100 per year.

Sam Warfield, a former Ione boy who has been operating a grain elevator at Lacrosse, Wash., for several years, died at the Colfax hospital on Wednesday, Feb. 28.

Mrs. H. O. Ely returned from Portland on Tuesday morning's train. Her father, W. F. Palmara, who went to the city with her remained there for further medical treatment for a growth on his lip.

In a recent issue of the Eugene Register-Guard there is a two column story regarding Bob Harbison, a former student in the Ione school, who has turned a hobby into a profitable income. Bob had carved some little toys out of Port Orford cedar for his small daughter, Dorothy Ann, and they attracted so much attention from friends who visited the Harbison home that, having been idle for some time since the call for university-trained architects has reached a low ebb in the past few years along with many other vocations, he decided to make more animals. He carved cats, elephants, squirrels, deer and other animals, making them about five inches high. These were offered for sale in an art shop in Eugene and their appeal was so great that he was able to make and dispose of 45 articles in the two months before Christmas.

Among others who saw, appreciated and bought his little carvings were members of the staff of the art department of the University of Oregon, and when the Civil Works program included projects for artists, Mr. Harbison was commissioned to carve a series of Oregon animals for the university's art school building. Two, a mother cougar watching her cubs play, and a mother bear on her hind feet with two cubs beside her, had been finished. These figures stand about fifteen inches high when mounted on a base.

you watch him. All the grace and beauty of the deep woods is reflected in the deer." Ione friends of the Harbison family will be glad to learn of the success of Bob in his new work.

Five young men, selling subscriptions to magazines, were requested to leave town Friday when it was learned they were soliciting the subscriptions under false pretenses. CCC FOREST ARMY PASSES IN REVIEW of these are getting a training that will be of utmost importance if the need of their services should ever arise during war times. They have mastered the technique of feeding, housing, transporting, clothing and sanitation needs of men actually in the field. Not a few men, but hundreds of thousands. It appears like a mighty good insurance, to cover that possibility, ever before us, as to whether the civilization facing the Pacific slope is to remain in the future dominantly white, or whether it is to take on a darker hue.

Tentatively a C. C. C. camp has been assigned for the coming summer to the head of Willow creek on the Umatilla National forest.

Wheat Growers May Still Sign Allotment Contracts

Oregon farmers with an estimated amount of wheat totaling 179,834 acres are once more eligible to join in the wheat production control program of the government and receive allotment on which benefit payments will be made for the next two years unless the wheat price reaches parity, as a result of the reopening of the three-year wheat control program recently announced by Secretary Wallace.

Oregon is among the states with a large signup for the regular campaign, getting 82 per cent of the 1,027,000 acres that make up the base average amount seeded annually from 1930 to 1932. Most of the unsigned acreage in this state is in relatively small holdings in the diversified farming districts west of the Cascades, according to the Oregon State College extension service.

In reopening the campaign the AAA officials say they have received so many requests from growers that they be given a second chance that it is believed a large additional signup will be had, especially east of the Mississippi river. The percentage of signup is given as 70 per cent for the country as a whole.

The new signers will receive the same future benefits that original signers received, but will not get the first payment of 20 cents a bushel on their allotments such as have already been made to early signers. Signup of additional wheat growers may start at once, though there will be no new campaign. Those who desire to join will go to their county wheat control association where old blanks are being adapted for the new use.

Where Rest Is Found "Oh that I had the wings of a dove! For then I would fly away and be at rest. Lo, then would I wander far off and remain in the wilderness."—Psalm 55:6-7.

David had been having a lot of trouble His enemies had been making it warm for him; which added to his already heavy burdens, he felt pained and oppressed under his load. And it was with this feeling that he uttered the cry recorded in the verse above.

"I wish I could leave all this tangle; this perplexity about money; the apparent everlasting need for struggle," said a business man, tired and harassed. He had a feeling akin to that of David. A feeling we have all experienced at one time or another. For there are times when we do wish we could get away from all our cares and troubles and be at rest.

Well, this is a wrong feeling. For the normal man or woman can find rest only in the place and line of duty. Never by fleeing from it. An old writer said this about David's wish: "David should have been praying for the strength of an ox to bear his troubles, not for the wings of a dove to fly away from them."

The necessity for courage, for action, for work, for a struggle, is something from which none of us can ever escape. That is, if we would play our proper part in the world's affairs. And the best way in all the world to meet all such situations as is pictured in David's cry, is in the strength of the Spirit of Jesus Christ in the lives of men and women. There and there only is real rest found this side of the grave.

Democracy in Education Urged by U. of O. Head

Eugene.—A plea for a true "democracy in education," which will not only provide for the needs of the average and the below average student, but for those of superior ability as well, was made here by Dr. C. V. Boyer, acting president of the University of Oregon, at the meeting of Oregon chapter of the American Association of University Professors. Dr. Boyer was honor guest at the meeting, at which he presented his views on higher education in an informal talk.

President Boyer based his talk on his definition of a liberal education, which he said is "an education that expands the capacities of the individual harmoniously." Such an education, he pointed out, not only supplies a man with learning on many subjects, but leads him to integrate the material from the various fields so that his intellectual life may be both coordinated and enriched. To this end the president advocated further development of courses such as the survey courses here, that would actually teach students this coordination.

The president stressed especially the ideal of excellence, which he pointed out, has often given way to the idea of "getting by." "We stress excellence on the athletic field, and there is no reason why this stimulus could not be carried over into the classroom and so inculcated into the student that he would carry it on in his life work," Dr. Boyer said.

Dr. Boyer was introduced by Dr. W. J. Kerr, chancellor of higher education, who declared that the new president had the full confidence and support of the chancellor and the board of higher education.
